30 GUNS CAPTURED AT HALICZ

Russians Take Key to Lemberg and Gen. Korniloff's Cavalry Continues Pursuit of the Austrian and German Armies.

Muscovite Group Said to Be Working With Great Precision in Operations in Eastern Galicia.

British Pushed Back 600 Yards on Front of 1400 Yards at Nieuport in Belgium.

By Associated Press.

PETROGRAD, July 11.—According to a telegram received from the General Staff the pursuit of the enemy in Galicia continues. The capture of Halicz, strategic key to Lemberg, is confirmed, the Russians taking prisoners and more than 30 guns.

The War Office also announced that in addition to capturing thirty guns, the Russians took 2000 prisoners and advanced westward from Halicz to the left bank of the Lomnica River and pressed forward on the Bogorodchan-Zolotvin front.

The Russians have reached the Poslecz-Lesluvka-Kosmacz line. In the fighting between Sunday and Tuesday in the direction of Dolina the Russians took more than 10,000 prisoners and 80 guns.

Gen. Korniloff's operations in Galicia, along a front of 20 miles, broke the Austro-German front, between Halicz and the Carpathians, and yesterday the Russian cavalry had pressed forward for a distance of 16 miles.

From July 2 to 8, inclusive, Gen. Korniloff took 14,000 prisoners and 55 guns, of which 12 were heavy pieces.

Gen. Korniloff's cavalry and Cossacks pursued Gen. Kirbach's retiring army south of Halicz and forced the River Lukovitza, which parallels the River Luvka. The co-operation of the Seventh and Eleventh armies north of Halicz with the Eighth army south of that town has been like clock work. The success of the Eighth army, the military critic of the Retch points out, separates the German army of Gen. von Bothmer from the third Austrian under Gen. Kirbach.

Halicz, 63 miles southeast of Lemberg, on the Dnister River, is an important railroad junction and the most important key to the Galician capital. It is 18 miles north of Stanislau and about eight miles north of Jezupol, captured by the Russians under Gen. Korniloff on Sunday.

BRITISH PUSHED BACK IN BELGIUM

Germans Penetrate Positions to Depth of 600 Yards on Front of 1400 Yards.

LONDON, July 11.—The enemy penetrated the British position in Belgium on a front of 1400 yards to a depth of 600 yards, says a statement issued by the British War Office today.

In their advance the Germans reached the right bank of the Yser, near the sea. The attack followed a 24-hour bombardment in which the defenses in the Dunes sector near the coast were leveled. The sector was isolated by destruction of bridges over the Yser.

The announcement follows:

"After a very intense bombardment lasting 24 hours, the enemy made a determined attack on our positions on the Nieuport front yesterday at 7:45 p. m. Owing to the concentrated and heavy nature of the enemy's artillery fire, the defenses in the dunes sector, near the coast, were levelled and this sector was isolated by the destruction of bridges across the River Yser. The enemy succeeded in penetrating our positions here on a front of 1400 yards and to a depth of 600 yards, thus reaching the right bank of the River Yser, near the sea.

"Further south, opposite Lombaertney, after gaining temporarily some of our advanced positions, the enemy was driven back to his own lines by a counter-attack."

The official announcement shows the British have taken over that part of the front near the sea, which at different times has been held by the French and Belgians. There are indications, also, that the British had been preparing for an attack on this front.

Last night's report recorded an intensive bombardment of the British positions near the coast by the Germans. Near Nieuport the British raided German trenches.

Gov. Gardner Thanks Post-Dispatch for Public Service It Performed in Printing Registration Lists

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., July 11.

GOVERNOR GARDNER said to the Post-Dispatch correspondent today:

"I saw in last night's Post-Dispatch an announcement that they have copied and are printing the revised registration lists for the city of St. Louis.

"The printing of more than 75,000 names and the corresponding numbers means a large expenditure of time, effort and money, but there seems to have been no other way to apprise the men registered there of the numbers assigned to them, and the value of the service rendered cannot be overestimated.

"I want you to convey to your paper my congratulations on the spirit which prompted the effort, and my thanks for the public service it has rendered."

ROOSEVELT'S FOUR SONS SOON TO BE AT THE FRONT

Quentin Made First Lieutenant After Three Months' Rapid Advance in Aviation Corps.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Now that Kermit Roosevelt has accepted a commission in the British Army and will be attached to the staff of one of the British armies operating in Asia Minor or Egypt, Col. Roosevelt's pledge to send his four sons to the front is in a fair way to be redeemed, for Quentin, his youngest son, is training at Mineola for the Aviation Corps of the army and expects soon to join Maj. Theodore and Lieut. Archie, his brothers, who are with Gen. Pershing's force in France.

Quentin has just been made first lieutenant. His commission comes after three months of what experienced army fliers regard as phenomenal advancement. Enlisting as a private in April, Quentin soon won his sergeant's chevrons. In the same time in which most student fliers still rely upon instructors in their daily flights, Quentin has won his spurs by long flights alone—flights as far away from Mineola as Sagamore Hill, where he would circle around, to the delight of his father.

RIDDEN HORSE JUMPS FROM ONE AUTO INTO ANOTHER, DIES

Heart Disease Terminates Lively Spectacle at Fourth and Chestnut Streets.

The unusual spectacle of a horse with a rider on its back jumping out of one automobile into another and falling dead in the tonneau of the second car, was witnessed by several persons at Fourth and Chestnut streets about 5:45 o'clock last evening.

William Stuart of 4300 McCausland avenue, was astride the animal and was leading four other horses from the levee. In front of 415 Chestnut street Stuart's mount became balky and sidestepped into the outo of L. C. Mursinno of 4117 Turner avenue. With Stuart clinging to its back the horse perched its fore feet on the running board and kicked its hind legs into the tonneau.

A crowd gathered and watched the horse extricate itself from the car and cross the street, where it jumped into the automobile of R. W. Bersch, 5731 Von Versen avenue, which was parked in front of 412 Chestnut. After landing in the second car the horse fell over on its side and lay motionless. The rider of the horse was uninjured. A veterinary surgeon was summoned and he pronounced the animal dead from heart disease.

ALL ASKED TO EAT LESS MEAT

Cut Down Each Day's Allowance an Ounce, Federal Board Requests.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—To conserve the nation's meat supply each person in the United States is osked by the Food Administration Board to cut down by at least one ounce the amount of meat eaten each day.

The adoption of this suggestion will, it is believed, relieve the demands of the armies at home and abroad, and also leave a larger supply for the allies.

DYER WOULD CHANGE NAME OF E. ST. LOUIS

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Representative Dyer of St. Louis today announced he would ask Postmaster-General Burleson to issue an executive order changing the name of the postoffice at East St. Louis, Ill., where race riots recently occurred. St. Louis residents, Dyer said, are being embarrassed by the prevalent belief that East St. Louis is part of St. Louis.

HOUSE FURNISHING COMPANY FILES BANKRUPTCY PETITION

Charles Niedringhaus Concern Puts Its Liabilities at $110,840 and Assets at $141,937.

The Charles Niedringhaus House Furnishing Co., 1001 Franklin avenue, filed in the United States District Court today a voluntary petition in bankruptcy, listing its liabilities as $110,840.42 and its assets as $141,937.75.

The liabilities include secured claims of $60,682.99, notes and bills "that ought to be paid by other parties," $40,593.18, and wages due $562.75. The real estate is incumbered as security for $50,000 borrowed from the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co. of Springfield, Mass.

The open accounts have been purchased by the Niedringhaus Furniture and Carpet Co. of Granite City, which is one of the large creditors, and an office has been opened for collections at 823 Franklin avenue. The indebtedness to the Granite City company is $7576.05 on notes and $5072.46 for merchandise.

GERMAN OFFENSIVE NOW IS INADVISABLE, MORAHT SAYS

Military Critic Admits That Adequate Numerical Strength on Any Front Is Doubtful.

COPENHAGEN, July 11.—Maj. Morath, military correspondent of the Deutsches Tages Zeitung, asks in a press article whether the moment has arrived for an offensive by Germany, and concludes that for the present one is inadvisable. All Germany, he says, longs to hear the charging yell of the German armies in a big drive, but it is doubtful whether the necessary numerical strength can be concentrated against any particular front to push an offensive through to real success.

Partial success, Maj. Morath says, is costly and useless, and the General Staff, therefore, is well advised in not attempting a big attack on the western front.

POST-DISPATCH IS PRAISED FOR DRAFT LIST PUBLICATION

Officials Join in Saying That Supplements Are Performing Real Public Service.

MAYOR MUCH GRATIFIED

Proves Great Convenience to Registered Men and for Friends Interested in Them.

Public officials and members of ward exemption boards all over the city continue to congratulate the Post-Dispatch on publishing the complete registration lists of St. Louis and St. Louis County, totaling about 86,000 names, and also expressed appreciation of the public service rendered.

Xenophon P. Wilfley, chairman of the Board of Election Commissioners, sent the following letter to the Post-Dispatch today:

"Your publication of the names of those registered on June 5 is truly a public service. We are in a position to know just how difficult this work was for your office and we are also in a position to know how helpful this information is to the public.

Wide Interest in Lists.

"The numerous inquiries that have come to this office about these names indicates that the interest is not confined to those who are registered, but extends practically to the entire population of the city of St. Louis.

"The enterprise of the Post-Dispatch in undertaking to furnish the detailed information to the public will be as much appreciated as the service rendered in connection with the registration."

Chairman Wilfley has requested the Post-Dispatch to furnish a complete set of the registration supplements to be filed with the records of the office of the Board of Election Commissioners.

Mayor Appreciates Service.

Some of the expressions were as follows:

Mayor Kiel: The Post-Dispatch in issuing the registration supplements has truly rendered a public service. It was a service I thought that all the newspapers would give, but it seems that the Post-Dispatch beat the other papers to it. I was very much interested in it because of my son, Elmer, who registered, and I appreciate the service just as I think everyone else should. It saved everybody no end of inconvenience in getting information in which there is the keenest interest.

Comptroller Nolte: I think the issuance of the registration supplement a most commendable piece of newspaper enterprise. The Post-Dispatch was alive to the great public interest in this information and in furnishing it performed a service that the people cannot help but be thankful for.

Sheriff Bopp of St. Louis County, chairman of County Exemption Board for Division No. 1: I congratulate the Post-Dispatch on the public spirit it exhibits in printing the St. Louis County registration list, as well as that of the City of St. Louis. It is indicative of the progressiveness of the paper. It is the more commendable in that, as I understand it, is it done at a loss. Apart from the public service rendered, it shows a realization of what real news is. Interest in the registration list is very keen. Hundreds are coming to my office and calling on the telephone to find out about it. The Post-Dispatch is the only newspaper that has offered to print the St. Louis County list.

John G. Lonsdale, president of the National Bank of Commerce: The publication of the registration supplement is a great achievement for the Post-Dispatch. It is better than any ordinary news because it is of direct interest to every home.

N. A. McMillan, president St. Louis Union Bank: The publication of the Registration Supplement by the Post-Dispatch was a fine piece of work. It will prove a great convenience to thousands of men who otherwise might have had considerable difficulty in finding their number. The Post-Dispatch deserves the thanks of all interested persons.

Post-Dispatch to Print St. Louis County Draft Lists.

Following the publication by the Post-Dispatch yesterday of the list of 78,000 St. Louisans registered for the military draft, the Post-Dispatch has arranged to publish the complete list of 7818 men registered for the draft in St. Louis County.

The Post-Dispatch Draft Registration Supplement for St. Louis County will be placed on sale tomorrow at the headquarters of the three county exemption boards, in the principal towns in the county, at the news stands at Union Station and at the gates of suburban trains at Union Station. Copies also will be available, as long as they last, at the Post-Dispatch.

EMMA GOLDMAN NOW NO. 19,779 AT JEFFERSON CITY

Begins Two-Year Term for Part in Anti-Draft Conspiracy in New York.

SHE WILL MAKE OVERALLS

Says She Will Utilize Her Spare Time With Study and Writing.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 11.—Emma Goldman arrived here at noon today on a Missouri Pacific train from St. Louis and now is No. 19,779 in the State Penitentiary. Deputy United States Marshal John J. Whelen and his wife, who brought her here from New York City, took her immediately to the prison, where she is to serve two years for conspiracy to interfere with the draft registration. She said she had served two previous prison terms. One was 10 months of a one-year sentence at Blackwell's Island, in the "souphouse" days of 1893, for inciting a riot, and the other 15 days of an optional sentence in New York City for lecturing on birth control.

Asked how she expected to utilize her spare time here she said she would study and write. She said she was a trained nurse and made a living at that profession for 12 years. She volunteered her services as a hospital nurse, in the Spanish-American War, she said, but was rejected because she was an anarchist.

The trip from New York here was practically without incident. The prisoner will be permitted to rest from her trip today and will sleep in the receiving ward tonight. Tomorrow she probably will be "dressed in" and assigned to permanent quarters and duties.

She will be put to work making overalls and shirts. This is the prison occupation of the nine other women Federal prisoners and 50 women State prisoners in the penitentiary. Her cell, like all others, will have only a plain bunk for furniture, but she may decorate it to suit her taste.

Emma Goldman Here Five Minutes on Way to Prison.

Miss Emma Goldman, anarchist leader, passed through St. Louis today on her way to the Jefferson City penitentiary, to which she was sentenced for two years in the New York Federal Court on a charge of disloyalty in actively opposing the army draft.

She arrived on a Baltimore & Ohio train at 8:55 and departed on a Missouri Pacific train five minutes later, in custody of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Whalen, Government agents, who had brought her from New York.

The Whalens said that on the journey she had devoted most of her time to writing letters and had given them no trouble.

To a Post-Dispatch reporter Miss Goldman said: 'I do not consider my plight a misfortune. I am willing to suffer for the cause of conscientious objectors. My actions will have a beneficial effect for peace in time to come."

In order to reach the track on which the train for Jefferson City stood it was necessary for her and her guard to walk a short distance through the Midway.

Greeted by Three Acquaintances.

At the gate Miss Goldman was met by Mr. and Mrs. A. Beyer of 1610 Franklin avenue, and J. Levin of 2727 Park avenue.

"How are you feeling, Emma?" said Beyer. "All right," she replied. Beyer then rushed to her and impulsively threw his arms around her neck and kissed her. There was no apparent objection on the part of Mrs. Beyer.

Beyer and Levin explained that they were Socialists and conscientious objectors to military service and opposed to war.

Miss Goldman wore a white sailor straw hat, a loose-fitting purple coat and a black skirt. She carried a small satchel. Before departing she handed about twenty letters to Beyer and asked him to mail them. As she stepped on the train that was to cover the last stage of her journey to prison she turned and smiled and waved her hand, saying: "An appeal will be filed and I expect to be released very soon."

Steps Taken to Collect $10,000 Goldman and Berkman Fines.

NEW YORK, July 11.—The Government took steps today to collect the two $10,000 fines which were part of the sentence of Alexander Berkman and Emma Goldman, anarchists, who were convicted here a few days ago of anticonscription conspiracy and sent to prison for two years. A Federal Court order was issued impounding $20,000 of the $50,000 cash bail deposited to gain the release of the prisoners preceding their trial. Supplementary proceedings will be started by the United States Attorney-General to ascertain whether any of the bail belongs to Berkman and Miss Goldman. An attorney told the Court the money was advanced by more than 12 persons, some of them influential. He succeeded in obtaining the release of $20,500 and $500 was collected by the Court as a 1 per cent Government tax.

ROADHOUSE FREQUENTED BY SOLDIERS IS CLOSED

Excise Commissioner Suspends for Three Months License Held by Phil Thoman.

Excise Commissioner Lewis today closed for three months the roadhouse run by Phil Thoman at 10157 Riverside Drive, which is near Camp Gaillard, where the Second Engineers' Reserve Regiment is stationed.

A charge was brought against Thoman that on July 3 he sold liquor to a uniformed soldier. This could not be proved, but the testimony was that a teamster had purchased beer and given it to soldiers who were outside. Maj. Laird of the Engineers' Regiment testified that soldiers had been frequenting the roadhouse.

Lewis said he had decided upon a policy of closing saloons which were near military camps. He said that if the engineers were still at the same point at the end of three months that Thoman's roadhouse would remain closed until the engineers left.

WOMEN TO RUN OFFICE BUILDING ELEVATORS

Experiment to Be Tried in Third National Bank and Wright Buildings.

Guy H. Wright, manager of the Wright Building and Third National Bank Building, told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that he would employ women elevator operators in these buildings to release young men for military service. He has applied to the Young Women's Christian Association for one young woman to begin at once in the bank building.

Nearly all the large buildings have recently lost elevator men, owing to the great demand for workers in more lucrative position and enlistment for military service. More will be taken through the selective draft.

Wright will furnish khaki-colored uniforms and pay $45 a month for a nine-hour day. This will be increased to $55 a month after six months' service.

There are seven positions to fill at the Wright Building and eight at the Third National Bank Building.

Women operate the elevators in the Martha Washington women's hotel in New York.

HOLDS NO GERMAN CAN NOW BE ADMITTED TO CITIZENSHIP

Federal Judge Trieber Rules in Case in Which Application Was Made Before U. S. Entered War.

Natives of Germany who applied for naturalization prior to the declaration of war by the United States against Germany are not eligible to citizenship, according to a ruling of Judge Jacob Trieber of Little Rock in the United States District Court today. He held that they were enemy aliens whose applications for final papers could not be favorably acted upon until after the war. There are 250 such applications pending.

The ruling was made in the case of Joseph Beck of 5515 Lansdowne avenue. The Judge suggested that if anybody wanted to test the question the method would be a mandamus proceeding, which would take it to the Court of Appeals.

Judge Trieber has 134 applications for naturalization before him. About 65 per cent are Austrians, Hungarians, Bulgarians and Turks. Inasmuch as the United States has not declared war against these countries they are admitted to citizenship, although they are allies of Germany.

LIBERTY BONDS AT 99 49-50

NEW YORK, July 11.—Liberty bonds sold at 99 and 49-50ths on the Stock Exchange today, one lot of $10,000 going at that price. This is the first time this issue has dropped below par since the day on which trading in the bonds began. The Stock Exchange authorities recently announced they favored free and unrestricted sales and the present recession, representing 20 cents on $1000, is attributed to reports of further liberty loans next fall and spring.

CATHOLICS OPPOSING CHANCELLOR

Center Party in Reichstag to Uphold Erberger in His Demand That War Aims of Germany, Including No Annexation, Be Clearly Stated.

National Liberal Member Declares Chancellor Has No Definite Consistent Program in Foreign Affairs.

Hollweg, in Reply, Says He Would Develop Policy if Given United Support of Reichstag.

AMSTERDAM, July 11.—The Catholic organ Germania of Berlin, says that the Catholic Center in the Reichstag has decided by an overwhelming majority to support Mathias Erzberger, who last week attacked the pan-Germans and advocated peace without annexations or indemnities.

Herr Erzberger's object, the newspaper says, is to induce the Reichstag to make a declartion of war aims in the sense that Germany has not gone to war with a desire for conquest, but merely to defend its freedom and preserve its territorial possessions. In order to nullify definitely any impression on the part of the entente that Germany's peace terms would be dictated by the Prussian military caste, the Reichstag is asked to set forth with unmistakable clearness the German war aims. The entente would then realise, it is contended, that it is waging war with the entire Geoman people.

The Germania adds that the Chancellor has accepted the idea and that the formation of a coalition ministry is being prepared. Thus, it says, unity between the people and the Government will be realized.

HOLLWEG'S FOREIGN POLICY CRITISED

Opponents Declare Chancellor Has No Fixed Program for His Guidance.

COPENHAGEN, July 11.—The debate in the Reichstag main committee yesterday, according to reports received here, was opened by Gustav Stresemann, National Liberal, with a sharp attack on Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg's policy, particularly that of foreign affairs, which he characterized as being based on no definite consistent program. The Chancellor retorted by saying he was forced to look to all sides for support, because the Reichstag offered him no stable majority. Give him this and he would be able to develop a consistent program, he said.

The Vossische Zeitung adds that the Chancellor expressed readiness and willingness to carry through necessary internal reforms.

Herr David, Socialist, painted a picture of the difficult internal situation in Germany. He declared the existing dualism between the Government and the people must cease. Thereafter the Chancellor again briefly spoke before the committee without reaching any decision.

Parties Still Divided.

Afternoon papers yesterday generally assumed that an agreement of all parties except Conservatives and extreme Socialists had been reached by a joint declaration to the Reichstag on peace terms and internal reforms. This, it is said, woul dcontain a reiteration of the Chancellor's announcement of August, 1914, that Germany's purpose in the war was not conquest, but defense and independence of territorial integrity, expressing a readiness to conclude peace on that basis with a provision rejecting all designs aiming at economic boycott and continuance of international hostility after the war.

The declaration, according to report, would also cover the formation of a coalition ministry with representatives of all parties and immediate reform of the Prussian franchise.

The National Liberals, however, at a meeting in the evening rejected the peace part of the resolution the Center had made its attitude conditional on National Liberal support. The Radicals on the other hand declined to concur in that part of the resolution dealing with internal reforms if this were on condition as the Nationals wished of Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg's retirement. The whole matter, therefore, is in doubt again.

One positive fact elicited by Herr Erzberger's declaration is that he and members of the Reichstag did not in the course of attacks on the admiralty and Government suggest the abandonment of the submarine campaign.

Parties Still Divided.

Count von Bernstorff, former Ambassador at Washington, is mentioned in the lobby of the Reichstag as a candidate to succeed Foreign Minister Zimmermann in case of his retirement. The name of Dr. W. S. Wolf, Colonial Secretary, also is mentioned.

A dispatch from Berlin to the Cologne Gazette early in the week said the retirement of Ministers Helfferich and Zimmermann would be gazetted Tuesday.

The Germania of Berlin declared that Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg has accepted the idea of Mathias Erzberger regarding a parliamentary declaration committing Germany to peace on the basis of the Chancellor's declaration of Aug. 4, 1914, namely, no annexations. The Taglische Rundschau, on the contrary, is sure Dr. Bethmann-Hollweg will retire if the resolution is adopted.

According to the Tageblatt, the Crown Council is reported to have developed an almost irreconcilable difference of opinion between Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg and the majority of the Prussian ministers on questions of internal political reform.

The Socialist organ, Vorwaerts, copies of which were received here, devotes blackfaced type to the reports in the Reichstag that the Prussian Government decided to introduce a bill in the Diet for the universal equal suffrage this autumn without waiting for peace.

The Vossische Zeitung announces that the Prussian Minister of Interior, Von Lobell, had an audience with the Emperor Monday. Reports given under reserve are that Minister von Lobell recommended to the Emperor the quickest possible execution of internal reforms and suggested as a preliminary that all imperial Secretaries of State and Prussian Ministers submit their resignations in order to give the new Chancellor a free hand in calling members of the Reichstag to the cabinet.

The Voissiche Zeitung's reserve seems justified in view of Herr von Lobell's known standpoint.

According to the Tageblatt, the Crown Council held in Berlin Monday evening showed that Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg possesses the Emperor's complete confidence. The Emperor, after the adjournment of the council, conferred with the Chancellor until midnight.

Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg's position, the paper adds, seems also to be more secure with the political parties. The radicals are said to be standing by the Chancellor, while the center socialists attach no importance to a mere change of person and not of system. Political circles believe that the matter will end in a compromise.

Tageblatt Editor Says Hollweg Is Attacked for Policy He Opposed.

THE HAGUE, Monday, July 9.—Theodor Wolff, editor of the Berliner Tageblatt, says editorially that in his historic speech before the main committee of the Reichstag, which precipitated the political crisis, Herr Erzberger discussed the question of the Government's policy which drove America into the war. Dr. Wolff adds:

"It would be a curious, but not surprising decree of fate if Bethmann-Hollweg were to fall now, owing to attacks in connection with the submarine warfare and the policy pursued toward America.

"For months he opposed with a stiff back the exaggerated expectations and calculations showered on him in connection with the submarine warfare and for a long time he resisted the theory that America's participation in the war would not lengthen the war.

"With him we refused to share the theory that America's aid would not strengthen the allies. Today it is clear that it is only America's aid that gives the entente courage to proiong the war through another winter campaign and today the Chancellor is attacked by the very papers which last winter regarded every warning about avoiding a breach with America as a symptom of incurable philo-Yankeeism or shameful weakness."

Chancellor Refuses to Divulge Proceedings of Crown Council.

AMSTERDAM, July 11.—Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg declined yesterday to make known to the Reichstag Main Committee the proceedings in the session of the Crown Council on Monday regarding which there is much speculation within and without Germany. The committee then decided to adjourn. These events are described as follows in a semi-official statement issued yesterday in Berlin:

"The Main Committee of the Reichstag met at 9 o'clock this morning. Friedrich Ebert (Socialist leader) requested the Chancellor, who was present, to give information in regard to what happened in the Crown Council yesterday on the ground that knowledge of what took place there was necessary for further fruitful debate. The Chancellor, confirming the fact that the Crown Council had held a meeting, said he was unable as yet to make a statement in regard to the results of the deliberations. Herr Ebert then moved adjournment of the committee, which was agreed to."

Von Bethmann Says Reports Do Credit to Writers' Imagination.

BERLIN, Tuesday, July 10, via Amsterdam, July 11.—Fuller reports of the meeting of the main committee of the Reichstag say that when Chancellor von eBthmann-Hollweg was asked for the result of the meeting of the Crown Council he replied:

"I have read this morning's report in the press, which does credit to the imagination of the writers."

The Chancellor said he could communicate nothing at the present time and asked the House to continue to have patience.

A National Liberal member said the report that his party had expressed a lack of confidence in the Chancellor was incorrect. Discussion on the motion was

GEN. KORNILOFF LATEST HERO OF WAR IN RUSSIA

Commander Who Is Directing Advance in Galicia Has Had Romantic Rise.

PETROGRAD, July 11.—Russia is ringing with the name of the latest hero of the war, Lieutenant-General L. G. Korniloff, victor of Galacia, whose astonishing feat first proved that the new advance is no mere flash in the pan. Gen. Korniloff is the most daring, chivalrous and scholarly officer in the army. For a romantic rise from humble origin, Russian history has only one parallel—that of Michel Vassilievitch Lomonosof, fisherman's son, poet, philosopher, creator of the modern Russian language, in the first half of the eighteenth century.

From log cabin to General is the literal text of the chronicle of Gen. Korniloff's career. Born 46 years ago, son of a need-stricken Karalinsk Cossack in Western Siberia, who later reared a large family on the pittance gained as the village clerk, young Korniloff early began rough forest work. At the age of 9 he received his first instruction. When barely 13 he by his own exertions and all-night studies qualified to enter the Siberian cadet corps, largely composed of sons of local magnates. Thanks again to his own efforts, this indomitable Siberian pioneer character gained free training at the Michailovsk Artillery School, where his amazing mathematical faculties brought approval from the authorities, even though he was suspected, with reason, of being a secret revolutionary.

Next Gen. Korniloff was an officer in the Guards, and, being penniless, he was obliged to serve in Turkestan. In the Japanese war he received the rank of Colonel and was entrusted with a desperate mission—that of covering the retreat from Mukden of one of Gen. Kuropatkin's shattered armies. It was executed with such resolution and skill he was given the St. George Cross. Later he traveled through Turkestan, the Caucasus and Europe, studying, observing and writing invaluable books on Turkestan and the countries of Central Asia.

Amazing to strangers is his gift for languages, for he speaks not only all European, but also Persian, Chinese and every dialect of Central Asia. At the outbreak of the great war he was in command of the Forty-eighth Division, once called "Suvorof's," now Korniloff's. In Galicia, in 1915, he repeated the Mukden feat, covering the retreat under an unexampled month-long hail of Austro-German shells, wherein his own force broke through the encircling force, but he himself was wounded and taken prisoner by the Austrians.

Escapes From Austria.

The enemy press related that their generals were so impressed with Gen. Korniliff's accomplishments and nobibearing that the return of his sword showed greater honor to him than to their own victorious commander. His restless spirit did not long stand captivity. After a daring flight from an Austrian prison camp and astonishing adventures, he reached Russia.

At the outbreak of the revolution he was invited to command the troops of Petrograd, implying full confidence in revolutionary Russia. When the disorders arose Gen. Korniloff, fearing the necessity of repression, resigned, saying he would sooner shoot the foe than his own countrymen. He took command of the Eighth army, whose brilliant exploit is due primarily to him.

RUSSIANS CAPTURE 30 GUNS WITH THE FALL OF HALICZ

in the Yser district of Belgium, army headquarters announced today.

The statement says:

"In the Dunes sector, Marine Corps detachments, experienced fighters of the marine infantry, after methodical and effective artillery preparation, stormed the defensive establishments situated between the coast and Lombashtzyde which had been strongly fortified by the French and which a short time back were taken over by the British. The enemy was driven back over the Yser and more than 1250 prisoners, including 27 officers, were brought in. The British losses in the heavily shelled terrain between the sea and the river were very high. The amount of booty has not yet been ascertained."

Canadian Guns Make Hits on Artillery Positions Six Miles Away.

CANADIAN ARMY HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, July 10.—Operations against Lens on this front, especially around Avio and Lievin are still, for the most part, an artillery affair. Infantry patrols penetrate the area of ruined houses immediately ahead and occasionally blow up a house in which Germans are believed to be sheltered, but the greater part of the task at present falls to the guns.

In counter battery operations for the destruction of the enemy's heavy artillery, very remarkable results have recently been obtained by groups of "Canadian Heavies." Within a period of 24 hours more than a dozen enemy battery positions were put out of action. Many direct hits on gun pits were noted and virtually every shell fired fell well within 50 yards of an enemy gun, although these guns were, in most cases, four to six miles distant and completely out of sight of the gunners.

MATLACK CONFERS WITH HIS WIFE THROUGH THEIR LAWYERS

Income for Her Discussed by Man Who Dines Daily With Mrs. Estelle M. Hously of Chicago.

Mrs. Sarah B. Matlack of Webster Groves and Elwood V. Matlack of the Warwick Hotel, her husband, conferred two hours today at Clayton. Mrs. Estelle M. Hamsley of Chicago, who dines daily with Matlack, was not present.

When the couple met there was no salutation passed and they conversed through their respective counsel.

After the conference S. D. Hodgdon, attorney for Mrs. Matlack, explained that securities valued at $30,000, part of a sum which Matlack placed in trust to yield an income of $3000 a year for his wife and son, would be retired Aug. 1, and effort was made to have Matlack replace them. New securities were offered by Matlack.

Matlack and his wife made a separate maintenance agreement Feb. 16, by which he arranged an income of $3500 a year to his wife and $1500 to his son, Elwood V. Matlack Jr.

LONDON HEARS BIG GUN DUEL ON BELGIAN FRONT

LONDON, July 11.—One of the heaviest big gun duels of the war raged yesterday on the Belgian coast. Sounds of the distant firing were heard in London from 6 o'clock in the morning until nearly midnight and again today, beginning at dawn. In some London suburbs tremors like a slight earthquake could be felt.

The situation was explained with the official announcement today that the British forces had been pushed back near Nieport, and the fighting evidently is continuing.

The Post-Dispatch is the only evening newspaper in St. Louis that receives or publishes news gathered by the Associated Press.

ERZBERGER ONE OF MOST INFLUENTIAL MEN IN GERMANY

Leader of Centrists in Close Touch With Kaiser and One of His Intimates.

BELIES HIS APPEARANCE

Journalist Who Interviewed Him Says Former Schoolmaster Looks Like Butcher.

DR. MATHIAS ERZBERGER, leader of the Centrist party in the German Reichstag, the largest group in that body, who is credited with starting the most recent agitation for a peace-without-annexation-or-indemnities declaration, was interviewed in Berlin in 1915 by an American-trained journalist for the London Telegraph. The interviewer wrote this of Erzberger:

"He is one of the most influential men in Germany today and is in closest touch with the Kaiser. When one day, at the General Staff, I produced my letter of introduction to him, one of the Press Majors remarked, 'Oh, that is all you will need in Berlin. He is, next to the Chancellor, the most intimate friend of the Emperor.' That statement was corroborated several times.

"On meeting Herr Erzberger you would never imagine that he had such power. His appearance is far from prepossessing.

"He has a tendency to German embonpoint, a red face and large red hands with pudgy fingers. In fact, he is a typical representative of the German middle classes, who, you cannot help thinking, would look more suitably clad in white overalls with a large butcher knife than in a frock coat and bowler hat, carrying a bulky porte-feuille under his arm. Not many years ago Erzberger used to be a schoolmaster in an insignificant Bavarian village. Today everyone in Germany has to reckon with him.

"My meeting with the 'great' man was quite spectacular. I called on him to present my letter from Count von Hertling, Bavarian Minister of Foreign Affairs, the morning after his return from one of his periodical trips to Italy. He was in a great flurry and terribly busy.

"'Very sorry,' he exclaimed, running about his private office in the Koenigsgratz platz, collecting a number of important looking documents. 'Very sorry, indeed. I am just on my way to the palace. I am lunching with the Kaiser.

"'I see,' I gasped, duly impressed, and then inquired, 'I trust you are bringing him good news from Rome, from your Italian ally?'

Quotes German Motto.

"'Certainly, yes, certainly,' came back in a very offhand manner; 'as good as can be expected. Nothing to worry about. Anyhow, always remember our good German motto,' and pausing in his perambulations before me he solemnly quoted, 'We Germans fear God and nothing else in the world.'"

A minute later he was off.

I called on him later in the day, after the luncheon with the Kaiser.

"What is it you wanted to know," Herr Erzberger asked. "Oh, yes, Italy. Well we think—ahem—that is, I think that Italy has it in her power to finish the war without any further bloodshed. It would not cost her the life of a single man."

"What?" I could not help exclaiming. "Sorry, Herr Erzberger, but I do not understand. Please explain."

"That's easily done. If Italy declared war on France today, marched across the frontier throwing her whole army at the French right flank France would at once sue for peace. There is no question about that. We know it. I repeat it would not cost Italy a single man."

"Suppose," I asked, "that Italy would join the allies. What then?"

Erzberger thought for a moment and then answered:

"If Italy joins the allies—oh, well, we are fighting eight countries, instead of seven."

Favored U-Boat Blockade.

It is said in Berlin that it took the Admiralty many weeks before it succeeded in persuading the Kaiser to sign the submarine blockade bill. Erzberger is known to have played a conspicuous part in convincing the Emperor of its advisability and its necessity. A day or two before the blockade came into effect I called on him and asked him to give me his views.

"Here they are," he said, presenting me with several sheets of typewritten matter. "You will find all I have to say on the subject here. You had better put it in the form of an interview."

The "interview" said in part:

"When a country of 44,000,000 threatens to starve out a country of 77,000,000, then this latter country has the unquestionable right to defend itself, and fight for its existence and its culture with every means at its disposal. In this war which was forced upon us, we shall never consider what our enemies would like us to do, but only that which is useful and beneficial to our nation. The confidence of the whole of Germany in our navy is so strong, so universal, that everyone looks forward with calm assurance to the successful accomplishment of whatever task it may undertake."

HAIR OFTEN RUINED BY WASHING WITH SOAP

Soap should be used very carefully, if you want to keep your hair looking its best. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and ruins it.

The best thing for steady use is just ordinary mulsified cocoanut oil (which is pure and greaseless), and is better than the most expensive soap or anything else you can use.

One or two teaspoonfuls will cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, which rinses out easily, removing every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves the scalp soft, and the hair fine and silky, bright, lustrous, fluffy and easy to manage.

You can get mulsified cocoanut oil at any pharmacy, it's very cheap, and a few ounces will supply every member of the family for months.—ADV.

FRANCE NOT BLED WHITE, CONSUL IN NEW YORK SAYS

Questions Accuracy of Fred B. Pitney's Statements Upon Internal Situation.

LETTER TO THE TRIBUNE

Declares Class of 1918 Is Not in Trenches or One-Eyed Men Returned.

NEW YORK, July 11.—The series of articles being published in the Tribune, written by Fred B. Pitney, telling of the desperate state of affairs in France and the need of immediate and extensive military aid from the United States has stirred up something of a controversy. Most important of the several who have written letters questioning the accuracy of Mr. Pitney's statements is that of Stephane Lauzanne of the Paris Matin, the French Consul-General here. He wrote to the Tribune as follows:

"To the Editor of the Tribune:

"Sir—I regret to say that I do not see very well whose interests Mr. Fred B. Pitney intends to serve in writing such articles as 'France, Bled White.' He is certainly not hurting the interests of Germany. He is certainly not serving the interests of France. And, what is more serious, he is certainly not serving the interests of truth.

"Mr. Pitney asserts that 'men with one eye are being sent back to the front in the French trenches.' Let him give the name of one of these men, or the number of one of the regiments where such fighters are to be found.

"Mr. Pitney affirms that 'Part of the 1918 class is in the trenches today.' This is substantially and materially untrue. Let Mr. Pitney indicate the trenches or the region where he saw men of the 1918 class on the fighting line.

"Mr. Pitney quotes 'A high official of the French Government' as having told him 'That we (the French) can hold our own until the end of September. But no longer.' I defy Mr. Pitney to give the name of the high French official having made such miserable predictions. It is really too easy to quote unnamed people and tell stories of anoymous soldiers in unknown places.

"In opposition to the uncontrollable assertions of Mr. Pitney we have the letter of Mr. Van Dyke, Minister of the United States, writing in the Friday's New York Times:

"'France is not bled white. France is not moribund, desperate, at her last gasp. I have recently come from Paris and from the forts and trenches of the Verdun fighting line. I know whereof I speak. France has suffered and is suffering immensely; but her eye is not dimmed, nor her natural strength abated. France has still a splendid fighting force.'

"And 48 hours later, corroborating this assertion, Mr. Andre Tardieu, high French commissioner, gave in the Times the following eloquent figures:

"'Our army, which amounted to 1,500,000 men in August, 1914, now amounts to over 2,700,000.'

"This is in direct contradiction with the article of Mr. Pitney; the American public will choose between the affirmations of Mr. Van Dyke and Mr. Tardieu and those of Mr. Pitney.

"STEPHANE LAUZANNE."

Pitney, responding to one of those who questioned his statements, said that his facts and figures had come mainly from high French officials and explained that his object in writing the articles was to rouse the American people to a realization of the fact that they are at war with a tremendous Power which is in deadly earnest and that the French trenches are the first defense line of the United States. The recruiting speeches he has heard here, he declares, to be juvenile and ineffective and declares he began his series to show the desperate need of immediate support for France by this country in its own defense.

SINN FEINER WINS SEAT OF WILLIAM REDMOND IN COMMONS

Prof. De Valera Triumphs Over Patrick Lynch, Nationalist; Recently Released From Prison.

LONDON, July 11.—Prof. Edward de Valera of Dublin University, a Sinn Feiner, has been elected to Parliament from East Clare. He received 5010 votes, against 2035 for Patrick Lynch, the Nationalist candidate. Prof. de Valera is one of the Sinn Feiners arrested at the time of the revolution last year and recently released from prison.

Prof. de Valera will hold the seat in the House of Commons made vacant by the death of Maj. William Redmond, brother of John Redmond, and for years a prominent member of the Nationalist party in Parliament, who was killed at the front last month.

Railroad Earnings Show Increase.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Reports of 178 of the principal railroads of the United States to the Interstate Commerce Commission today showed that despite heavy increases in expenses earnings has increased in May more than $3,500,000 over May, 1916. These roads earned in May, 1916, $101,169,248; in 1917, $104,721,377. Eastern roads showed a decrease which was more thar offset by increases for both southern and western roads

PRESENT INTERNAL GERMAN TROUBLE ONLY TRANSITORY

Washington Thinks Situation Will Not Be Grave Unless Army Staff Is Reached.

PEACE PARTY IS ACTIVE

Admitted That Conditions Have Aroused Feeling of Unrest; Contempt for Austria.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Germany's latest political difficulties are regarded by officials here as due largely to internal problems and probably of a transitory nature only.

The dismissal of Foreign Secretary Zimmerman, Minister of Finance Helfferich, or even Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg himself, would be considered largely a surface movement, for not until the great army general staff itself is reached, it is believed, will the real crust of German militarism be broken.

The German Foreign Office, it was pointed out today, has served during the war merely as a means to get the military leaders out of trouble. Decisions have been made without reference to the civil branch and matters were brought to the attention of the latter only when it was desired to negotiate a way out of the difficulty.

Mere Puppets for the Stage.

American officials agree with allied diplomats here that many of the German officials who figure so largely in the news are, in fact, largely puppets being pulled across the stage as a blind to the German people. Their rise or fall, they say, has little significance on Germany's military and foreign policies.

Nevertheless, it is agreed that there is an enormous amount of unrest in Germany today, which, in all probability, will lead to sensational internal changes in personnel of the Government and in reform of the obvious abuses of the German governmental authorities. The German peace party is very active, and the general opposition to the unrepresentative form of Government has centered attention on the extreme powers of the junkers and pan-Germans, who are being held increasingly responsible for the ills of the country.

Fundamental internal reform in Germany is believed here to be only a matter of time. Those who have most recently been to Germany say that reform is certain the moment war is over, and that the chances greatly favor initial steps being taken even during hostilities.

Austria Treated With Contempt.

Austria's influence is being more and more insistent toward a liberal peace. Austria is said to be treated most contemptuously by German officials and given consideration only as the unavoidable weak link in the chain.

Nevertheless, it is known that she would make peace tomorrow if possible, and her activity in consulting German statesmen and political leaders is undoubtedly causing worry at German headquarters.

HILL OUT, MIX MADE TRUSTEE

Bondholders Win Point in Litigation Over a Missouri Railway.

George E. Mix, a St. Louis lawyer, has been appointed trustee for the bondholders of a $500,000 mortgage against the Boonville, St. Louis & Southern Railway Company, in place of Walker Hill, president of the Mechanics-American National Bank, who was appointed trustee in 1911. There was a provision that the holder of a majority of the bonds could select a new trustee, and action to remove Hill was taken by the brokerage firm of Spitzer, Rorick & Co. of Toledo, O., holder of about three-fourths of the bonds.

The firm has applied to the Federal Court for an injunction to restrain the Missouri Pacific Railway Company from proceeding with a foreclosure sale under a mortgage against the Boonville, St. Louis & Southern.

COPENHAGEN, July 11.—Coal cards have been introduced in Berlin in order to regulate the winter supply. 140,000 MEN WILL BE ADDED TO GREEK ARMY

New Divisions Will Give Total of 200,000 Troops—To Be Equipped in Four Months.

ROME, July 11.—The Gree army is to be increased from three to 10 divisions (about 200,000 men), the equipment of which is to be completed within four months, according to plans outlined today by Charles C. A. Jonnart, Entente High Commissioner in Greece. Jonnart has reached Rome on his way to Paris where he will lay before the representatives of the entente Powers the results of his work in Greece, which includes the abdication of King Constantine, and important reforms which he expects to carry out under the new regime of Premier Venizelos.

In an interview with the Associated Press Jonnart said: "Now that the transition from the old regime is accomplished we shall proceed to the important work of reconstruction. One of the first measures will be reorganization of the Greek army so as to make it worthy of the country and a real factor in the situation.

"Concerning recruiting there can be no doubt. This will remain wholly with M. Venizelos and the Greeks. In the matter of munitions, heavy artillery and other supplies and equipment, the cooperation of France and Great Britain will be required. Military advisers who accompany me have exact details in regard to what this equipment must be in order to make the new Greek divisions thoroughly effective, and I am confident this branch of the reconstructive work will be carried out rapidly. The army is being reorganized on a most efficient basis.

"After being torn by internal dissension for tht last two years, Greece finds her financial resources sadly depleted and she needs and expects friendly co-operation and assistance of those great powers which wish to see the smaller nations placed on a firm and enduring foundation. Great Britain and France may be depended on for the army reorganization and in the same way we shall hope to have the powerful assistance of the United States in realizing effective reorganization of the civil branch. America's co-operation will be a most precious factor."

4 WHITE MEN WHO AIDED IN KILLING NEGROES KNOWN

Coroner's Jury Resumes Hearing and Is Expected to Get Additional Names Today.

OFFICIALS DENOUNCED

Attorney-General Says Disrespect for Law Was to Blame for Race Riot.

With the resumption of the inquest into the East St. Louis race riots this afternoon it became known that the Coroner, as the result of testimony given at the previous sessions has the names of four white men who aided in murdering negroes July 2. It also was said that today's testimony was expected to implicate two other white men.

The inquest, thus far held behind closed doors, is also understood to have revealed the names of a number of negroes who were in the mob which killed two policemen the night of July 1, thus precipitating the riots.

Scott Clark, a negro who was injured by the mob, died at St. Mary's Hospital today. This increases the known total of negro deaths to 32

Was Dragged Through Street.

Clark was the man whom the mob tried to hang at Fourth street and Broadway late in the afternoon of July 2, as graphically described by Carlos F. Hurd of the Post-Dispatch staff in his eyewitness account of the rioting.

The negro, who was a teamster, was in his home when it was set on fire by the mob. When he ran out to escape the flames he was caught by the mob. A rope was tied about his neck and preparations were being made to hang him when someone suggested that "we drag him around a little while." He was dragged through the street with the rope while members of the mob stoned him and shot at him. One bullet struck him.

A second atempt to hang him was about to be made when he was rescued by a squad of militiamen under command of Col. Tripp.

G. W. Middlekauf, assistant to Attorney-General Brundage, today told a Post-Dispatch reporter that Brundage last night conferred with Mayor Mollman and made a personal demand that the Mayor at once reorganize the police force. He told the Mayor that under present conditions the Police Department could be of little use to the Attorney-General's office in gathering evidence on which to base prosecutions.

Mollman Makes No Promises.

Mayor Mollman, according to Middlekauf, made no promise that he would accede to the demand and said he wanted time to consult with his friends.

Middlekauf was in conference with the Mayor and several of Mollman's political advisers today. He said the Mayor, in a general way, promised full co-operation with the State authorities, but said nothing to indicate he would reorganize the Police Department. Police Commissioners Schein and Schmidt were at the conference.

Disrespect for Law Cause of Race Riots, Attorney-General Says.

Edward J. Brundage, Attorney-General of Illinois, told a Post-Dispatch reporter today in East St. Louis that he had come to East St. Louis to take complete charge of the riot investigation and that State's Attorney H. E. Schaumleffel would only be asked for such aid as the Attorney-General may think Schaumleffel can give. Brundage made it plain that the investigation would not be left to the discretion of East St. Louis or St. Clair County officials.

With Brundage were his assistants, James H. Wilkerson, William E. Trautman and C. W. Middlekauf, who will remain to conduct the investigation, assisted by John E. Hamlin of East St. Louis and James Farmer, former State's Attorney, of Belleville.

Brundage expressed the belief that the riot was the culmination of a widespread disregard of and disrespect for the law of St. Clair County officials and some citizens.

"We mean to teach a respect for the law in this county," he declared, "and to make sure that the lives and property of all law-abiding citizens shall be safe."

The local police and other authorities will not be depended on in gathering evidence against the rioters and other lawbreakers, Brundage added.

To Take Up Lawlessness Later.

Conditions of vice and immorality in general, which have prevailed and been denounced by prominent citizens, will be disposed of later, Brundage promised. Important evidence on this phase of St. Clair County lawlessness, he added, has been gathered and he believes sufficient information is in possession of the State to secure convictions.

Military Court Proposed for Inquiry Into Race Riots.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 11.—At a conference with Gov. Lowden this afternoon, Adjutant-General Dickson will present his plan for a military investigation of the East St. Louis riots.

If the Governor approves the plan, the investigation probably will begin tomorrow. The inquiry will be in the nature of a military court. Whether the investigation will be held here or in East St. Louis has not been announced.

Police Sergeant Meehan Denies He Ordered Militia to Fire on Negroes.

Police Sergeant Con Meehan of East St. Louis, who was named yesterday by Col. E. P. Clayton in testimony before the secret inquest into the East St. Louis 'massacre as the officer whose orders resulted in the shooting and killing of two negroes by militiamen on "The Island," in the southern part of the city, July 2, today declared to a Post-Dispatch reporter that he did not order the shooting and that he did not see the shots fired.

He said he was told by the police lieutenant over him to go to "The Island" and close a saloon and round up a number of negroes who were said to be armed. He stated that he took Patrolman James O'Brien and eight soldiers. They started out in two automobiles, O'Brien and four of the soldiers preceeding about 75 yards. When the first car neared the saloon its occupants got out, Sergt. Meehan said, and he saw them run around to the opposite side of the building. Before he reached the scene he heard several shots and when he arrived the first party had rounded up fifteen or twenty negroes. He said he personally searched all the negroes and failed to find arms on any of them.

The soldiers told him, he asserted, that they had been fired upon by one of the negroes, who then threw his revolver in the lake near by. He said he did not give the soldiers any orders to shoot, but, on the other hand, warned them to be very careful not to shoot unless it was absolutely necessary.

Col. Clayton was the officer in active charge of the field operations of the militia during the worst part of the East St. Louis trouble.

Negro Pythians Consider Cancelling St. Louis Convention.

WACO, Tex., July 11.—The supreme lodge, Colored Knights of Pythias, may not meet in St. Louis Aug. 19 to 25, as planned, on account of the outbreak in East St. Louis, Ill., last week, it was stated here today by W. S. Willis of Waco, grand chancellor of the Texas Knights of Pythias. He was just in receipt of correspondence which officers of the negro lodge have been carrying on in regard to the meeting. Location of the supreme lodge is undecided.

Division No. 3—City hall at Kirkwood. W. G. Lackey of Kirkwood, vice president of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., chairman of board; Philander P. Lewis of Eureka, president of the State Board of Agriculture, and Dr. Charles A. Dunnavant of Kirkwood.

Second Division Leads.

The 55 precincts of St. Louis County have been divided into three divisions, each of which comes under the jurisdiction of its own exemption board. In the First Division, comprising the precincts in the central and eastern parts of the county, 2490 men are registered; in the Second Division, made up of precincts in the northern part of the county, 2718 are registered, and in the Third Division, including the southern and western sections of the county, 2610 are registered.

The county exemption boards have forwarded duplicate registration cards to the State Adjutant-General at Jefferson City and a copy of the registration list to the Provost Marshal at Washington. One copy of the registration list of each division has been publicly posted at the exemption board headquarters, so that the registrants may ascertain their new serial numbers; a third copy has been placed in the private files of each exemption board and the fourth, or press, copy, at the request of the Post-Dispatch, has been loaned to the Post-Dispatch for publication.

Members of the county boards pointed out that it is the duty of every registrant in the county—as it is in the city—to acquaint himself with his new serial number, which will be placed in the draft lottery in Washington for the drawing.

They also pointed out that by purchasing a copy of the Post-Dispatch Draft Registration Supplement, containing the names, addresses and new serial numbers of every registrant in the county, the registrants could save themselves hours of delay and inconvenience in making trips to the Exemption Board headquarters at Clayton, Kirkwood or Ferguson.

When the Post-Dispatch Draft Registration Supplements for the city wards were placed on sale throughout the city yesterday, there was a large demand for them.

The Eighth Ward completed its lists today, having been delayed several days. The Post-Dispatch Draft Registration Supplement for this ward will be upon sale in the Eighth Ward tomorrow.

BRITISH FLYERS BOMB TURK FLEET AND WAR OFFICE

Projectiles Dropped on Goeben and Other Vessels From Height of 800 Feet.

LONDON, July 11.—An air raid on the enemy fleet off Constantinople was announced in a statement of the British War Office today. Bombs were dropped on the Turkish cruiser Ywuz Sultan Selim, formerly the German cruiser Goeben. The extent of the damage to the vessel is not known.

The War Office at Constantinople also was attacked and a direct hit was attained by the British, who returned without casualties.

The announcement follows:

"A report has been received from the Vice Admiral in the Eastern Mediterranean that on the night of Monday a successful attack was carried out by the Royal Naval Air Service against the Turkish-German fleet lying off Constantinople in the Golden Horn. When the Goeben, surrounded by warships, including submarines, had been located, an attack was made from a height of 800 feet. Direct hits were obtained on the Goeben and on other enemy ships near her. Big explosions took place on board them and several fires were observed.

"The War Office also was attacked and a direct hit was obtained. The enemy appeared to have been completely surprised, as until the bombs had been dropped no anti-aircraft batteries opened fire. Our force returned safely without any casualties."

AMERICAN BARKENTINE SUNK BY U-BOAT; CREW OF 10 SAFE

622-Ton Ship Which Sailed From Havre, Destroyed With Bombs After Six Shots Miss It.

LONDON, July 11.—The American barkentine Hildegard, 622 tons, has been sunk. The crew has landed uninjured. The Hildegard was bound from Havre for St. Thomas, West Indies, and was attacked yesterday morning while becalmed.

The submarine fired six shots without hitting the vessel. The crew of 10 Americans then took to the boats. The submarine approached and towed the boats back to the Hildegard, which she sunk with bombs. The Germans told the Americans to row for their lives, as they were about to attack another American vessel, which was expected along shortly.

U. R. COMPROMISE BEFORE COMMITTEE OF CIVIC LEAGUE

Meeting Will Be Held Tonight to Consider Proposed Settlement With City.

A special committee of the Civic League, of which former City Counselor Charles W. Bates is chairman, will meet at the Washington Hotel tonight, to consider the proposed compromise between the city and the United Railways Co. under which the city would enter into a partnership arrangement with the company and share in its earnings.

The other members of the committee are: Joseph L. Hornsby, former chairman of the St. Louis Public Service Commission; Lambert E. Walther, former City Counselor; William F. Woerner, former member of the Missouri Public Service Commission, and Frank P. Crunden, former member of the City Council.

It is not improbable that this committee will recommend the defeat of the proposed agreement on the ground that the capitalization of $60,000,000 is far in excess of the actual value of the street railway properties, and that the entire proposed partnership arrangement would be detrimental to the best interests of the city.

Aloe Studying Agreement.

Louis P. Aloe, President of the Board of Aldermen, is also making a thorough study of the proposed agreement. He and the Civic League committee both have been in communication with Delos F. Wilcox of New York, a franchise expert. Wilcox, in several communications to President Aloe, has analyzed the proposed agreement and advised that the city be very sure of its ground in respect to capitalization, increase of capital value, representation on the board of directors, sharing of profits, etc., before it commits itself to an agreement.

In preliminary meetings of the Civic League Committee decided objection to the compromise has developed. Every member of the committee is said to be of the opinion that the proposed capitalization of $60,000,000 is excessive.

The committee is also going very carefully into the contract between the Railways company and the subsidiary corporation of the North American Co. with respect to the contract for Keokuk power. Under this contract the Railways company pays out a very large sum of money every year for power. The expensive legal department is another feature of the company's business the committee would like to have investigated before the city goes into partnership with the company.

Another point that will come up for consideration will be whether the city would not be granting the company an entirely new franchise in extending its franchises 50 years. It is recognized by all franchise authorities that the fixed 50-year franchise is out of date. It is also considered doubtful under the proposed plan whether the city could ever buy the property, as provision is made that it should be paid for in 4 per cent municipal bonds.

The city has now almost reached the limit of its possible bonded indebtedness, and would not be in position, without additional legislation, to issue bonds for $60,000,000 to pay for street railway property.

President Aloe told a Post-Dispatch reporter today that the city should insist upon its right to issue the bonds against the property itself. Provision of this kind is made in the city charter.

The Civic League Committee tonight will consider the employment of Wilcox to represent the interests of the city and the general public in the compromise negotiations.

There is a feeling on the part of the committee that the city's representatives did not fully protect the rights of the public in the proposed compromise agreement, and that a strong fight will be necessary to prevent these rights being surrendered.

CHANGES RECOMMENDED FOR SECOND OFFICERS' CAMP

Fort Riley Instructors Would Cut Time Allotted to Target Practice and Sketching.

FORT RILEY, Kas., July 11.—Maj. Martin Craig, a member of the army general staff, has been sent out to visit six of the officers' training camps to get recommendations from instructors and officers in charge of the work to guide the authorities in establishing regulations for the second camps.

The instructors here recommended that the time allotted for target practice be cut down and less time be given to sketching, while more time be given to several other branches of the work. Recommendations have also been made to correct what many officers believe is a mistake in administration. It has been suggested that the students be entered at first into the branches they choose and then, if they are found not to fit, to be transferred.

Many of the wealthy students attending the training camp have their motor cars with them. They use them almost daily in driving to and from the target range, going to town and running errands. In the evening after study hours some of them have been taking their commanding officers and their friends among the regular army officers for pleasure rides. The students will be allowed to use their cars in their work, but they are forbidden to take the officers out for social rides.

Poems Which Won Prize of $125 for Sara Teasdale

"Songs Out of Stress," by St. Louis Woman, Now Residing in New York, Voted to Be Best of Year by Poetry Society of America.

SARA TEASDALE'S group of poems, "Songs Out of Stress," which won the Poetry Society of America's annual prize of $125, the award being made by vote of the members, scattered all over the country, is to be included in her new volume, which is to be published this fall. Sara Teasdale (Mrs. Ernst B. Filsinger), is a St. Louis woman, now living in New York. The poems follow:

BARTER.

Life has loveliness to sell—
All beautiful and splendid things.
Blue waves whitened on a cliff,
Climbing fire that sways and sings,
And children's faces looking up
Holding wonder like a cup.

R

Life has loveliness to sell—
Music like a curve of gold,
Scent of pine trees in the rain,
Eyes that love you, arms that hold,
And for your spirit's still delight,
Holy thoughts that star the night.

Spend all you have for loveliness,
Buy it and never count the cost;
For one while singing hour of peace
Count many a year of strife well lost,
And for a breath of ecstasy
Give all you have been or could be.

SPIRIT'S HOUSE.

From naked stones of agony
I will build a house for me;
As a mason all alone
I will raise it, stone by stone.
And every stone where I have bled,
Will show a sign of dusky red.
I have not gone the way in vain,
For I have good of all my pain;
My spirit's quiet house will be
Build of naked stones I trod
On roads where I lost sight of God.

LESSONS.

Unless I learn to ask no help
From any other soul but mine,
To seek no strength in waving reeds,
Nor shade beneath a straggling pine;
Unless I learn to look at Grief
Unshrinking from her tear-blind eyes,
And take from Pleasure fearlessly
Whatever gifts will make me wise—
Unless I learn these things on earth
Why was I ever given birth?

REFUGE.

From my spirit's gray defeat,
From my pulse's flagging beat,
From my hopes that turned to sand
Sifting through my close-clenched hand,
From my own fault's slavery,
If I can sing, I still am free.

For with my singing I can make
A refuge for my spirit's sake,
A house of shining words, to be
My fragile immortality.

WOOD SONG.

I heard a wood thrush in the dusk
Twirl three notes and make a star—
My heart that walked with bitterness
Came back from very far.

Three shining notes were all he had,
And yet they made a starry call—
I caught life back against my breast
And kissed it, scars and all.

Sara Teasdale has won an undisputed place as one of the foremost contemporary American poets. Her poems have appeared for years in magazines of the first rank and three volumes of them have already been published. The last one, "Rivers to the Sea," published in 1915, evoked enthusiastic comment.

W. Stanley Braithwaite, in reviewing a year's poetry for the Boston Transcript, named one of her poems as among the twenty-one best specimens of verse published in 1911 in American magazines. The poem was "Helen of Troy." She is a member of the advisory board of the Poetry Society of America.

At the monthly meetings of the Poetry Society unpublished poems are read. At the end of the 1916-17 season the contest for the annual award sifted down to sixteen, two of which were by Sara Teasdale. These were printed and sent to the members for their vote. It was by this vote that the prize was given to her.

PARIS, July 11.—Mrs. Vincent Astor, who arrived in Paris last Thursday with Miss Ethel B. M. Harriman to engage in war relief work, left her hotel immediately to visit her husband at a French port.

This cable from the Post-Dispatch correspondent gives the first news of the arrival of Ensign Vincent Astor in France. He received a commission as ensign in the New York Naval Militia some time ago. HEAD OF DRAYAGE COMPANY GRAVELY HURT IN A FIGHT

Teamster He Had Beaten Said to Have Hit C. C. Kohlby on Head With Wagon Stake.

Charles C. Kohlbry, 37 years old, of 2222A South Compton avenue, president of the Lumbermen's Drayage Co., is in the city hospital in a serious condition from injuries said by two witnesses to have been suffered when he was struck on the head with a wagon stake by one of his teamsters in the company's yard, at 2721 South Jefferson avenue, at 11 o'clock last night. His skull is fractured.

The police have the name of the teamster alleged to have attacked Kohlbry, and are searching for him.

William Hartman of 2706 Lemp avenue and Edgar Grubb of 2706 Lynch street were arrested after they had taken Kohlbry to a doctor's office. They at first said they found him unconscious in the wagon yard and did not know how he was injured.

Today, after being held prisoners for more than ten hours, they told of seeing Kohlbry in a fight with the teamster. They said they were standing in the door of a saloon opposite the wagon yard when they saw Kohlbry and the teamster fighting.

Kohlbry, they said, knocked the teamster down an odwas beating him when they ran across the street and pulled Kohlbry off. The teamster, according to their account, then ran to a shed and returned with a wagon stake, with which he struck Kohlbry, knocking him unconscious. The teamster then fled.

Hartman and Grubb said they concealed the facts at first because, knowing the teamster was at large, they feared he would harm them if they told what they knew. They said they preferred to remain locked up until he was arrested.

CHAMP HOME, SHOW PLACE IN COUNTY, DESTROYED BY FIRE

House Originally Owned by Joseph Lucas, West of Normandy, Burns; Loss $25,000.

The home originally owned by Joseph Lucas, a short distance west of Normandy, St. Louis County, was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. The present owner of the property is C. E. M. Champ, president of the Champ Spring Co. of St. Louis. It was of colonial design and was considered one of the show places of the county.

The fire was discovered by Miss Lulu Champ when she saw flames coming through the ceiling of a room on the second floor near a chimney. She and her mother ran from the building.

Farmhands who had been working nearby carried out some of the furniture but could not fight the flames, as a cistern was so near the fire it could not be approached.

At Champ's office, 2107 Chouteau avenue, it was said the loss was estimated to be more than $25,000.

QUICK ACTION ON FOOD CONTROL IS URGED BY HOOVER

Tells President He Is Powerless Until Congresss Passes Necessary Legislation.

SITUATION AS TO WHEAT

Speculators Must Carry Surplusage Resulting From a Delay in Export Shipments.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—A report on the food situation prepared for President Wilson by Herbert Hoover, holding that both the farmer and the consuming public are suffering while food speculators make unearned profits from the delay in enactment of food control legislation, was given out last night at the White House.

Unless strong and efficient Government action is immediately taken the food administrator reported, the farmers will face a slump in wheat prices and consumers will be caught in a situation even more serious than that which already is resulting in "actual undernourishment" in the great consuming centers. The speculator, it is declared, is taking a large part of the prices now paid by consumers.

"We are practically helpless to safeguard either the farmer or the consumer," concludes Hoover, "until the pending legislation is passed."

The report, in the form of a letter to the President, was issued through the Public Information Committee with the statement that publicity was given to it "in order that the country may know how serious and far-reaching the consequences may be, both to the farmers of the country and to the consumers, of the present delays in passing the pending food legislation."

No comment by the President accompanied the report, although he has more than once demonstrated his impatience over the repeated delays in Congress which have kept the entire food control program in a state of uncertainty for weeks.

Text of the Letter.

Hoover's letter follows:

"Dear Mr. President: In response to your request I send you herewith the following notes, compiled by myself and my associates:

"The 1917 wheat harvest promises to yield 678,000,000 bushels. The normal internal consumption and seed requirements (assuming a carry-over of same volume in 1918 as in 1917, amounts to about 600,000,000 bushels, thus leaving a theoretical export balance of 78,000,000 bushels. The conservation measures are already having a marked effect and it its not too much to hope that the national saving may be 80,000,000 to 100,000,000 bushels and, therefore, the export balance increased to, say 158,000,000 to 180,000,000 bushels.

"The experienced this year in the rampant speculation, extortionate profits and the prospect of even narrower supplies than the 1916 harvest and carry-over, must cause the deepest anxiety. No better proof of the hardship worked upon our people during the past year needs be adduced than the recitation of the fact that the producer received an average of $1.54 per bushel for the 1916 wheat harvest; yet wheat has been as high as $3.25 at Chicago and the price of flour has been from time to time based upon this speculative price of wheat, so that through one evil cause or another, the consumer has suffered from 50 to 100 per cent, and the producer gained nothing.

Result of "Rank Speculation."

"After much study and investigation it is evident this unbearable increase in the margin between producer and consumer is due not only to rank speculation, but more largely to the wide margin of profit demanded by every link in the chain to insure them from the great hazards of trade in the widely fluctuating and dangerous price situation during a year when all normal stabilization has been lost through the interruption of world trade and war.

"All these factors render it vitally necessary to initiate systematic measures which will absolutely eliminate all possibility of speculation, cure extortionate profits and effect proper distribution and restriction on exports to a point within our own protection. These measures cannot be accomplished by punitive prosecutions of evil-doers, but only by proper and anticipatory organization and regulation all along the distribution chain.

"During recent months the allied Governments have consolidated their buying into one hand in order that they might relieve the burden of speculation from their own consumers, and as the restricted exports to neutrals are but a minor item, the export price, if not controlled, is subject to the will of the allied buyer, so that in a great measure the American producer is left to that buyer's judgment and is without voice.

"Furthermore, in normal circumstances, United States and Canadian wheat is moved to Europe largely in the fall months, such shipments averaging about 40,000,000 bushels per month and relieving a corresponding flow from the farms into the interior terminals. This year, owing to the shortage of shipping, the allied supplies must proceed over a large period of the year and will not, during the fall months, apparently average over 20,000,000 to 25,000,000 bushels per month.

"We must, therefore expect a glut in our interior terminals during a considerable period. The financial resources of the grain trade are probably insufficient to carry this extra load without the help of speculators and moreover, the consolidation of practically all foreign buying in the hands of the allied buyer has further tended to diminish the resources of capital available by putting a number of firms out of business, and limits the financial capital available in export trade.

"The net result of this situation is that unless some strong and efficient Government action is immediately settled and brought into play, the American producer will face a slump in wheat, and in any event, the price of export wheat will be dictated by a single agency and the American consumer will be faced with the situation that a large part of the essential breadstuff has passed into the hands of speculators; for some one must buy and hold, not only the normal flow from the farmer, but this probable glut.

Must Sell Flour Instead of Wheat.

"With great reduction in the consumption of wheat bread now fortunately in progress the employment of our mills must be greatly diminished and with the reduction of domestic flour production, and our daily feed from wheat residues will be greatly curtailed. Therefore we must induce foreign buyers to accept flour instead of wheat.

"In order to do justice to the producers who have shown great patriotism in a special effort to increase production in 1917 and to further stimulate the efforts of 1918, it is absolutely vital that we shall protect the farmer from slump in price this year due to a glut as above, or from the uncontrolled decisions of any one buyer. I am informed that most of the allied countries have fixed the price of wheat to the farmer at $1.80 per bushel, and many of their producers believe that as allies it is our duty to furnish wheat at a price which, delivered to them, will not exceed their domestic price, in other words, about $1.60 per bushel, Chicago.

"Neither their responsible officials nor I hold this view, because I consider that the stimulation to production, is for no other reason, is, in the long run, in the interest of the allies. There is, however, a limit to price which so trespasses upon the rights of the consumer as to defeat its own object through strikes, raises in wages and social disturbances in the country. It is with the view to finding a solution to these problems, filled with the greatest dangers to both our producers and consumers, that legislation has been proposed and pressed for speedy enactment.

All Waits on Legislation.

"The proposed food administration has conferred with many hundred patriotic men engaged in production and distribution and has investigated the condition of the consumers in many centers as well. Many plans have been tentatively put forward and abandoned and others have developed, but, in any case, none has or can be settled until legislation has been completed.

"Three facts stand out plainly from our investigations.

"1. That in this situation the farmer will need protection as to the price of wheat.

"2. That large masses of people in the consuming centers are being actually undernourished today due to the exorbitant cost of living; and that these conditions, unless some remedy be found, are likely to repeat themselves in even more vicious form at this time next year

"3. The speculator, legitimate or vicious, has taken a large part of the money now being paid by the consumer.

"It seems to be overlooked in some quarters that the marketing of this year's wheat is surrounded with circumstances new to history and that the old distributing safeguards are torn away by isolation from the reciprocal markets abroad and the extinction of a free export market and free export transportation.

"The harvest has begun to move and from these very causes the price of wheat has begun to drop and if the farmer is to sell his wheat, either the speculator must return to the market to buy and carry on not only the normal flow from the farmer in excess of domestic and foreign requirements, but also the glut due to the restriction upon the outlet to the latter. He must necessarily charge his toll to the producer and the consumer and this latter probably upon a more extensive scale than last year, as his risks will be greater.

"Practically the export buyer must fix his own price for export wheat from the sole outlook of his own clients and in execution of his duty he will in all normal circumstances follow the market down by buying only his time-to-time requirements as he cannot be expected to carry the load of our domestic accumulation.

Government Must Buy.

"Or on the other hand the Government must buy the surplus wheat at some reasonable minimum price, allowing the normal domestic trade of the country proceed with proper safeguards against speculation. Nor would the services of the speculator be necessary for the Government should be able to stabilize the price of wheat without his assistance and can control the price and quantity of export wheat.

"We are practically helpless to safeguard either the farmer or the consumer until the pending legislation is passed."

France Decorates American.

LONDON, July 11.—Announcement is made here that President Poincare of France has conferred the Cross of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor on W. B. Poland, who was the director in Holland of the American Commission for Relief in Belgium. The cross is bestowed "in consideration of the courage with which you denounced before the German authorities and the American Government the deportations made in Northern France."

SUBSTITUTE FOOD BILL IS BROUGHT UP IN COMMITTEE

Senate Debates Main Provisions While New Measure Is Being Shaped.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Administrative leaders in the Senate, spurred on by Herbert C. Hoover's letter to President Wilson, declaring that further delay in enacting food legislation threatens serious losses to both farmers and consumers today sought to hasten action by the Agricultural Committee in perfecting the substitute for the food control bill, under consideration in the Senate. The committee again today worked on the substitute bill while the Senate continued to debate on general features of the measure.

The Senate will vote on the bill July 21. The substitute is generally similar to the original administration bill except that power to control other industries besides food and fuel, has been stricken out. It prohibits the manufacture of distilled liquors without providing for Government purchase of stocks now held in bond and gives the President power to decide, in his discretion, whether prohibition shall extend to beer and wine.

After accepting tentatively the committee amendment authorizing the President to commandeer whisky held in bond, consideration of the administrative sections of the food bill was taken up by the Senate. Senators Overman and Smoot objected to appropriating $150,000,000 for carrying out the provisions of the act without some provision for a detailed statement of expenditures. Senator Chamberlain then introduced an amendment to require the President to file an itemized account annually.

Senator Reed said he understood the Agriculture Committee was to bring in a substitute food bill and he protested against further consideration of the present bill as a waste of time. Senator Knox also voiced disapproval of this method.

No conclusion upon the Gore substitute bill was reached today by the Agriculture Committee. In view of the agreement under which the Senate recently voted on prohibition, the committee takes the position that it could not report a new prohibition clause unless it should decide to report out an entire new substitute bill. Steps were taken, however, toward removing constitutional objections to the Smoot amendment by providing that, should distilled spirits be commandeered by the Government, a "just and fair" price shall be paid instead of a price fixed by Congress.

The Gore substitute provides that the Government control proposed shall be limited to foodstuffs, feed and fuel, the original purposes of the legislatain and not include steel, iron, cotton and many other products, added during congressional consideration. It would authorize Federal requisitioning and operation of coal mines, limit Federal licensing to concerns engaged in handling or producing foodstuffs or fuel, authorize Federal purchase and sale at "reasonable" prices of foodstuffs and fuel, fix a guaranteed minimum price of $1.50 a bushel for wheat, and create a salaried board of food administration, subject to Senate confirmation.

The prohibition section of the substitute would forbid manufacture importation or exportation of distillers' beverages during the war, and would authorize their commandeering by the Government "if necessary" to secure industrial alcohol. The President would be authorized to limit or prohibit manufacture of malt, fermented and vinous beverages.

Senator Lodge, acting Republican leader, and Senator Simmons, a Democrat and chairman of the Finance Committee, made vigorous speeches yesterday attacking the general scope of the measures and its effect upon business.

Many amendments were offered before the unanimous agreement was reached including one by Senator Norris proposing the liquor legislation should be permanent instead of operative during the war.

During the debate Herbert C. Hoover was criticised by Senator Reed as a "calamity howler" in making public statements regarding the food situation.

The substitute bill would make the Secretary of Agriculture and two others appointed by the President with the Senate's approval members of the Food Board, with power to co-operate with representatives of Governments at war with Germany to sell, buy, store and distribute foods, fuels and "similar necessaries essential to the support and maintenance of the armies thereof."

WHY BLOOD SHOULD BE RED

The bright red color of the blood is caused by the presence in it of red corpuscles. It is these little bodies that carry nourishment to the tissues. They also cause the glow of health in cheeks and lips.

When the blood is deficient in these red corpuscles the person not only becomes pale but the body is undernourished, the weight is usually reduced and as the nerves share in the general starvation some form of nervousness follows. When the blood is improved in quanity the tissues are better nourished and all the functions of the body are better performed.

When the blood lacks red corpuscles it is a scientific fact that a course of treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will cause them to increase. This can be demonstrated by a microscopic examination and anyone can prove it by looking in a mirror, for an increase in red blood shows quickly in the cheeks and especially in the lining membranes of the eyelids.

"Building Up the Blood" is a booklet, full of useful information. Every mother and every growing girl should have one. It is sent free on request by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.—ADV.

COCCHI DESCRIBES HOW RUTH CRUGER FOUGHT FOR LIFE

Confession, Giving Details of Killing, Reaches New York From Italy.

POLICE EASILY FOOLED

Says Body Was Under Box in Basement at the Time They Made Search.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 11.—"The reputation I had with the police was so good that the police detectives told me they were making this inspection merely to be able to say they had done it," is one of the statements in Alfredo Cocchi's confession of the murder of Ruth Cruger in his machine shop, in New York Feb. 13.

It was made and signed by Cocchi in prison in Bologna, Italy, and was received yesterday by District Attorney Swann, who made public such parts as he thought might be published without injury to the State's case against Cocchi, should the murderer be brought back to New York for trial. Other portions of the confession he summarized. Cocchi said that "only a box" covered the hole where in Ruth Cruger's body lay when the detectives first came to his place Feb. 14.

Chancellor Refuses to Divulge Pro-

Cocchi said he had never seen Ruth Cruger before she brought her skates to his place on the morning of Feb. 13. He says that when she returned for the skates in the afternoon he made advances. She repulsed him, stepping back toward the door of the store.

Cocchi says he grasped the girl by the shoulders, drew her to him and began to kiss her. She screamed for the police so loudly that Cocchi choked her and thrust his fist against her mouth. The murderer then says that he tried to rip her clothes off.

"She was so strong and resisted so that I was not even able to tear her dress," the confession reads.

Cocchi says he threw her down heavily, her head striking the floor. She was stunned, but not unconscious. She continued fighting him off, dazed as she was. In his fury he dragged her to the "trap door" (the heat register hole) and dropped the half conscious girl through. She landed head first, on the concrete floor, 10 feet below. Then Cocchi dropped through the "trap door." He says she was still struggling.

She struggled to her knees, her hands raised in an effort to protect herself. Three times, Cocchi confesses, he struck the girl. Very slowly her body crumpled. Then, ever decreasing moans issuing from her lips, she became still.

Easy to Satisfy Police.

"I then buried her. There was no difficulty," continues the confession. "I took it (the body) still warm and threw it into the cavity in the left-hand corner of the cellar. I shoved it in head first and pushed by the legs and only put a box over the cavity, no dirt."

Cocchi says that when the police arrived Feb. 14, he took them into the cellar, "but they did not notice anything," he added.

Cocchi devotes some space to his difficulties with his wife. He does not tell the name of the ship on which he escaped from America. Nor does he say who helped him financially and otherwise. He declares he visited various shipping agencies in an effort to find passage to Italy.

"I took a false name," he says, "because I was afraid they would discover I committed a crime in New York and I would be taken back to America."

REPORT ON BARRACKS CONDITIONS

Gov. Gardner to Ask for Establishment of 500-Yard Dry Zone.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 11.—Attorney-General McAllister filed a report with Gov. Gardner yesterday relative to conditions at Jefferson Barracks, near St. Louis, and suggested that the Governor ask the War Department to establish a dry zone of 500 yards about the Barracks. The Governor announced that he would make the request.

Conditions are not bad now, but some time ago immorality was said to exist, and complaint was made that saloons were selling liquor to soldiers. Five saloons will be closed if the zone is established.

GRAND JURY REFUSES TO INDICT MRS. COLE

Reports No Bill in Death of Former St. Louisan Killed by Acid Burns in Boston.

BOSTON, July 11.—The grand jury yesterday brought in a report of no bill against Mrs. Cleopatra Cole, whose husband, William Cole, an automobile dealer, formerly of St. Louis, died recently from acid burns alleged to have been received while the couple was struggling for possession of a bottle containing the liquid at their home in Brookline.

The police had accepted without question Mrs. Cole's statement that in attempting to knock the bottle from her husband's hand both were seriously burned, until a medical examiner filed a report stating that homicide was alleged by relatives, who came here from St. Louis.

Mrs. William Cole, a widow, mother of William ("Candy") Cole, went to Brookline, Mass., early in May when she received a message that her son and his wife had been mysteriously burned with acid in their home at Brookline, Mass.

After Cole's death, June 19, Mrs. Cole told the authorities that on his deathbed he made the statement to her and others that his wife had thrown the acid on him after a jealous quarrel. This information led to a grand jury investigation.

Cole's wife, when recovering in a hospital about a week ago, denied she was responsible for her husband's injury and said he had attempted to throw acid on her from a cup. She threw up her arm to defend herself, she said, and in doing so she struck his hand and the acid was accidentally spilled on him. Cole formerly was an automobile salesman in St. Louis.

AGREEMENT ENDS RAID CASE

Gymnastic Society Will Abolish Bar for Locker System.

The injunction suit of the St. Louis Gymnastic Society to enjoin the police from raiding and interfering with business at the club building, 1508 Chouteau avenue, was discharged today by Circuit Judge Garesche when stipulations of agreement were signed by City Counselor Charles Daues and Attorney Ben Philipson, representing the club.

The matter was brought into court June 22, when the club obtained a temporary restraining order against the police from Judge Garesche, after several raids had been made. The raids were due to the bar in the club building, from which members obtained drinks for tickets which had been sold to them. The stipulation was signed after a club committee agreed to install the "locker" system in place of the bar.

How She Saved

The Plan of a Salaried Woman.

I AM a salaried woman. My plan is each month after deducting my actual living expenses from my salary to set aside a certain portion for my Savings Account, also a certain portion for my clothes and incidentals (allowing about the market price for clothes, etc.) then watch the advertisements of the best stores closely and buy most of my things at reduced prices. The difference between the reduced price and the regular price, even if but a few cents, I place in my Mercantile Savings Account. I think careful buying, not stinginess, is the secret of saving.

LONGER HOURS 'TO DO THEIR BIT'

Government Engravers Ask McAdoo to Rescind 8-Hour Day Order.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Secretary McAdoo is asked in resolutions adopted at a mass meeting attended by 900 employes of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing last night to rescind his order putting into effect an eight-hour day and six-day week at the bureau. Speakers declared that only a small percentage of the workers were in favor of shorter working day.

"We want to do our bit," said one of the women speakers. "The overtime pay that is to be taken away from us if the order goes into effect would help us pay for thousands of dollars worth of liberty bonds for which we obligated ourselves to pay."

Much for Army Recruit to Learn in Short Time

Sixth Chapter of "Soldier's Guide"

By JAMES M. HUTCHINSON
Lieutenant-Colonel of the 71st New York Infantry.

CHAPTER VI.

EVERY man upon his entry into the military service is a recruit, which means that he has all to learn. And he is a recruit whether his branch of the service is the regular army, the national guard or the new national army. He has the same amount to learn in any one of the three branches, and he must learn his duties equally well.

In the business of fighting there are no rules which divide the amateur from the professional soldier. The recruit should understand at the start what he is going to be up against. He will have all the time for his professional training which the enemy will allow.

But when he is passed into the company, and his unit is pronounced fit for the firing line, he will find himself opposed to the best troops which the enemy can send out—troops seasoned and tested by three years of the hardest fighting which the world has ever known.

What New Soldier Must Know.

Then will come the trial of how well he has spent his period of training. He must be physically fit, for he will be called upon for every last ounce of his endurance. He must know his rifle and his bayonet and he must know that they are in as good condition as he is. He must know his officers and noncommissioned officers, and the comrades of his squad and company, so that he can play his part in the team work of the combat.

It seems a long look ahead from the assignment of a recruit to a company to the time when he shall go over the top" with the same company. But the time will be short when the amount of necessity schooling is considered.

When a man has been sworn into the military service he is assigned to some company. This company is part of some regiment. This localizes the recruit and tells him where his home for future service will be. He will probably be supplied with a uniform. Most of the rest of his outfit will be issued to him after he joins his company.

The ordinary home of the infantry soldier, in field service conditions, is a tent. For the training of our new armies barracks, tents and cantonments will be used. Barracks are permanent buildings for quartering troops, while cantonments are mere or less temporary buildings. They may run from substantial frame buildings down to shanties or shacks.

First Days of the Recruit.

When in camp, living under canvas, conditions may allow a supplement to ordinary tent shelter. Board floors may be provided, as was the case with the troops on the Mexican boarder last season. The canvas may be stretched over frames instead of being supported by the customary poles and ropes. This allows a greater height in each tent, and consequently more comfort.

Whether living in tents or in buildings, the grouping of the men will be by "squads." The squad, as has been explained, consists of seven men, under the leadership of a corporal. In the assignment or recruits to squads in a new company, they are grouped according to height. The tallest eight men in the company form the first squad, and so down the line with the "ponies" in the last squad.

The recruit will be more interested in seeing who the men in his own squad are, for they are the men with whom he will live and work and fight. As he looks around for the first time to size up his comrades, he will do well to suspend judgment until he gets to know his men. The army is a democratic institution, and the new national army will be democratic to the highest degree.

What a man was before he put on a private's uniform counts for nothing except in so far as it affects his work for good or evil. There are none to make introductions in a company of infanry, nor are visiting cards necessary. Names are merely means of identification. A name based on a physical peculiarity is just as good as the one given at baptism. Very often the name will be given to the recruit on his first look around.

Purposes of Company Street.

If he values his comfort he will see that he is careful in his expressions of disapproval, or he will get some name fastened to him which will stick to him. "Go easy 'round the corner" is a good motto for the recruit to paste in his campaign hat while he is orienting himself in his new company.

In his tent he will be assigned a cot and a place to put it. The spot on which his cot stands is his room. He cannot change it without the consent of his squad leader, who will be quartered in the tent with him. In cantonments or barracks the recruit may be assigned to a bunk instead of a cot. The same rule of permanency will hold.

There is one rule of the penal code which must be remembered from the first minute of joining. Private property in tent or camp is inviolable. The soldier has no way of putting his valuables under lock and key. Therefore all he can do is to put his property in its appointed place in his part of the tent. The rule is "Hands off," for everyone else. Not only do the articles of war deal severely with a thief, but the "custom of the service" is even more severe. Theft from a comrade is the unforgivable sin.

In order to impart this odor of sanctity to his property, the recruit must learn to place each article precisely where it belongs. There is no sympathy for the man who leaves any of his property "just somewhere." There will be punishment meted out to the man who leaves any of his issue property around loose, to be discovered and identified by some noncommissioned officer.

"Go Easy 'Round the Corner."

There is always a noncommissioned officer detailed for the day, who has general care and oversight of the camp while the men are absent at drill or other duty. He is called the "noncommissioned officer in charge of quarters."

The open space in front of the line of tents is called the "company street." It is in the company street where the company assembles for all formations. It is to the company street that all men hasten at any alarm, for "fire" or "to arms."

The "head" of the company street is the end toward the officers' tents. The company officers' tents are placed so that they look down the company street, but separated from it by enough distance to give the men freedom from unjustifiable interference. It is the etiquette of the service that an officer shall not appear in the company street except on duty. No officer will use the company street as a convenience or as a short cut to the point he wants to go to.

At the head of the street is placed in order the kitchen, the mess shack, the store tent, the First Sergeant's tent—which is his office; then ordinarily, the Sergeants and finally the squad tents for the men. At the far end, and some distance away, are the toilets, called "latrines" or "rears."

The company streets are grouped by battalions, and the battalions are arranged numerically. There is no company to use the letter "J." The companies with the first four letters of the alphabet compose the first battalion, the next four the second and the third four (less "J") the third battalion. The special companies, often called "The Fancy Units," the headquarters, the machine gun and the supply companies are usually on the flank.

The hospital tents of the regiment, called "the regimental infirmary," are placed at some convenient place.

The company officers' street, usually quite wide, runs at right angles to the company streets, to give the men the privacy to which they are entitled. Behind the company officers street runs the field officers' street. The field officers are the Colonel, the Lieutenant-Colonel and the Majors. The surgeons, the staff officers and the chaplains' tents are usually on this street.

While the officers are expected to keep out of the company street—which really belong to the men—except on duty—a similar rule applies to the enlisted men. Except on duty, they are expected to keep out of the officers' street.

A "shelter tent camp" may sometimes be necessary. This is a camp where the men and usually the officers as well, are living under their shelter tens. Each man has one-half of a tent. When this is buttoned to that of his "bunkie," his rear rank man, it makes a surprisingly comfortable shelter for a short time.

American Red Cross in Italy.

ROME, July 11.—About $10,000,000 will be used to organize American Red Cross hospitals and ambulances on the Italian front. This sum will be taken from a fund of $100,000,000 at the disposal of American headquarters in Paris for use in Europe. The splendid seat of the academy on the top of Janiculum Hill is to be transformed into a home for convalescent American officers. It is an ideal spot for recuperation.

VETERAN QUITS LOG DRIVING

Says Business Is Different Now, and He's Faced Enough Danger.

HANCOCK, Mich., July 11.—Sam Courmier of Hancock says he has made his last log drive. He is a veteran lumberjack, has turned 60, and 40 of these years have been spent in the woods. He has driven every stream of any importance in the Upper Peninsula. There are very few lumber concerns whose payrolls do not include his name.

"I'm getting along in years," he said, "and there's no use in my going to the well with the pitcher once too often. I've had any number of close calls breaking jams, but luck was with me and I escaped. The drives now are far different from those of the early days, when we would be on the river three months at a stretch, maybe longer. Big wages were paid then and boys were not afraid to spend."

VISITOR ARRESTED AT TRAIN ON A CHARGE OF SWINDLING

Civil Engineer Said to Be Wanted in Paris, Ill., for "Defrauding a Rich Maid;" Denies Accusation.

Detectives arrested Charles M. Brooks, 50 years old, a civil engineer, who reached Union Station last evening. Information that Brooks was wanted at Paris, Ill., for "swindling a rich maid," was contained in a telegram from the Sheriff. A second telegram asked the detectives to ascertain if Brooks was accompanied by Mary Garvin.

Brooks informed the police that he knew Mrs. Mary Garvin at Paris, having known her husband, John Garvin, before his death three years ago. He explained that he went to Paris a few weeks ago to see Garvin and met his widow who, Brooks told the police, is not rich, but owns her cottage home and washes linens for a church. He says Mrs. Garvin and her sister accompanied him to the train and village gossips probably concluded he ran off with her Mrs. Garvin, he added, might have gone to Mount Carmel, Ill., on a visit.

The police files contain a letter from Baton Rouge, La., of April 27, requesting the police to look out for Brooks. This letter described him as a "lady killer" and stated that a widow in Baton Rouge had made complaint about a financial transaction with him.

Brooks admitted he had courted a Baton Rouge "50-year-old widow with a long French name" he cannot recall.

Brooks is six feet tall, erect and of white hair, blue eyes and a youthful striking appearance. He has snow white hair, blue eyes and a youthful countenance. He is being held for further investigation.

Guest in Auto Ride Robbed.

FORTY-NINE Hundred Miles on High Gear—from San Diego on the Pacific to New York City with sealed transmission (minus intermediate as well as low gear) is the record set by a stock High Gear Pathfinder twelve-cylinder car. At the conclusion of this world's record tour the car spun around Sheepshead Bay Speedway at better than sixty miles an hour, putting a fitting climax to the supreme achievement for a twelve-cylinder motor car. To those who know Pathfinder history they are in no manner surprising, for the car and the factory behind it have long been known for record-making achievements.

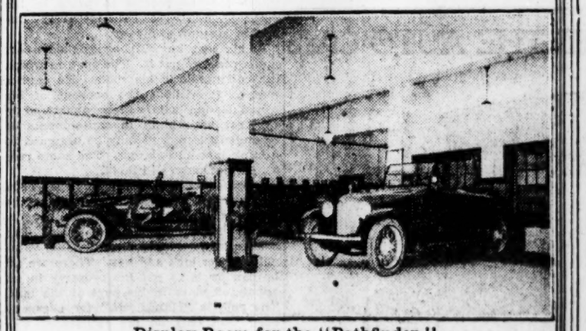
FROM every point of view the new Pathfinder is the one genuine surprise of the season. It is the most talked-of car in America.

Nothing so daring in originality has ever before been offered—yet it instantly commands your admiration.

Here is a car that visualizes your ideal. The moment you see it there arises within you the desire to possess it.

If you could put your feeling into words you would say that the new Pathfinder has distinction which sets it apart from all other cars.

The disappearing top, the concealed spare wheel and tires, the new body lines are but the outward evidence of masterly designing. Underneath there is the most beautiful chassis ever built and the wonderful Pathfinder twelve cylinder valve in head engine, unrivaled for power, flexibility and economy.



Display Room for the "Pathfinder."

From every point of view, in power, speed and comfort, in beauty of finish and completeness of equipment, the new Pathfinder satisfies the most critical car buyer. Everything you can ask for has been anticipated and included.

The schedule of events for tomorrow evening in behalf of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund, include an entertainment by seven little girls and one boy at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Linder, 1323 Walton avenue. The program for this affair is made up of songs, recitations and dances, which the capable young people have long been rehearsing. The children, who range in age from 4 to 10 years, have every assurance of the active and cordial co-operation from residents in the neighborhood.

A second event for tomorrow is a bazar, organized by the Wesley Hough Mothers' Club, to be held at Bell and Tarno avenues, beginning at 7:30 p. m. For this the women friends of the needy infants have accumulated a large and varied assortment of handsome and serviceable commodities, contributed mainly by themselves, which they will dispose of. There will be no charge for admission and music will be a feature of the bazar.

Friday the fund is to receive the practical support of Webster Groves residents, through the medium of a most attractive entertainment by the advanced younger pupils of the Suburban School of Music, of which Miss Catherine M. Mulroy is principal. This will have its start at 9 o'clock in the morning. The program is made up of vocal and instrumental music, recitations and fancy dances, in all of which the talented children have made extended progress through capable schooling. Following the entertainment the children and their adult helpers will sell refreshments.

Two small girls and six boys have achieved a notable success in their conduct of a lemonade stand for the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund. It was operated at Grand avenue and Humphrey street, with such energy and winning methods, coupled with wide individual popularity of the children, that they accumulated $10.80. The children who thus distinguished themselves are: Mignon and Marguerite Stark, Lawrence and Lee Stark, Fred Moore, Ralph Mueller and Hebert and Walter Kessler.

Mary Ruth Rives, only 3 years old, of 6011 Suburban avenue, was impressed by neighbor children engaged in selling lemonade for the relief of the poor babies, and decided that she would lend her aid to the same cause. By the sale of the beverage she added 25 cents to the Fund.

Rosalee and Virginia Malin, Margaret, Harry J. and Charles Gates McNamara, a group of neighbor children, impelled by benevolent impulse, conducted a lemonade stand and realized $2 for the Milk and Ice Fund.

Four little girls lving on Connecticut street, with an earnest desire to have a part in the cause of saving the poor babies, operated a lemonade stand and added $1 to the Fund. These youthful philanthropists are Miriam and Bernice Franklin of 3814, Adele Sloan of 3815 and Marcella Mette, 3809 Connecticut.

Paul Rock of 4741 Cook avenue, and Virginia Lewis of 4747 Cook avenue, who are regular annual helpers in the cause of saving the babies, earned $1 for the cause.

Jessie Frances Lovell, 9 years old, Mary Crockett, 10, her sister, Evelyn, 6, and Goldie Schultz, 9, organized and produced a delightful show, the proceeds, 50 cents, being forwarded to the Milk and Ice Fund.

Penny Show Yields $1.09.

A vaudeville show given at the home of Evelyn Farr, 4916 Labadie avenue, consisting of several comedy and other sketches, dances and songs, was productive of $1.09 for the Fund. The children who assisted in this affair were handsomely and appropriately costumed. "Poor Jack," "Cheated," "Don't Be Too Inquisitive," and "The Baby Is a Nuisance" were the principal sketches interpreted. Those who had a part in the undertaking were Helen and Myrtle Heideman, 4908 Labadie avenue, and Evelyn Farr of 4916. Lemonade was also sold. The admission to the show was a penny, and the lemonade sold for a like sum per glass.

The Liberty and Bond Club, so named by the children in the entertainment, gave a charming carnival and vaudeville program at the home of Genevieve Spriesterbach, 3904 Lincoln avenue, from which the Fund benefited to the extent of $9.25. The yard in which the affair took place was beautifully decorated. Ice cream, popcorn, soda, lemonade, canned goods, jewelry and cakes were sold. There was also a fish pond which attracted considerable attention.

The program consisted mainly of novelty numbers. Genevieve Hickey and Genevieve Spricsterbach gave several Japanese dances with grace and charm. Patricia O'Toole and Julia Smith fascinatingly interpreted Hawaiian dances. Genevieve Hickey sang "America, Here Is a Boy for You;" Regina O'Toole, costumed as a boy, appearing in the enjoyable number. Veronica Hickey and Regina O'Toole sang "Little We We;" Emily Trebilcock and Margaret O'Toole sang "7-17-70," and also gave a charming dance.

In the play Margaret O'Toole was "Poor Little Match Girl," Genevieve Hickey was "Little Bo Peep," and Marie Ikemeyer the "Little Goose Girl," each of them acting with distinctive charm.

Helen Shaw introduced a song, "You're a Long, Long Way From Home," and danced the interpolated number, being enthusiastically received. Emily Trebilcock was "Little Miss Muffet," and Genevieve Spricsterbach a Japanese Queen.

The children desire to thank Mr. Gregory of 3922 Kennerly avenue for the use of his talking machine. They also wish to thank all those who co-operated so cordially in making the affair a pronounced success.

The children in the entertainment were Veronica and Genevieve Hickey, 3908 Lincoln avenue; Genevieve Spricsterbach, 3905 Lincoln; Margaret, Patricia and Regina O'Toole, 3913 Lincoln; Helen Shaw, 3915 Lincoln; Julia Smith, 3936 Lincoln; Emily Trebilcock, 4052 Lincoln, and Marie Ikemeyer, 3900 Lincoln.

Fairy Theater to Show Milk and Ice Fund Film

THE Fairy Theater, 5640 Easton avenue, will give the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice film, on which appears in illuminative detail the essential elements in the work of saving the needy babies of the congested districts, the run of its screen.

The film, which was shown last night at the Cinderella Theater, Cherokee street and Iowa avenue, before a large and interested audience, is proving a real help, in inspiration and otherwise, to the army of girls and boys enlisted in the cause of saving the babies. They, with their parents and friends, are learning much of the operation and benefits obtained from their industrious and intelligent endeavors from year to year.

Moving picture theaters and airdomes which may desire to thus enlighten the public and render service to the conservation of the infant life of the community, can obtain the film, free of charge, by addressing the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund, by mail or telephone. It is 1000 feet long.

Ted Drewes May Not Be the "Big Noise", but He Raises a Terrible Racquet

Drewes' Victory Over Hoerr Completely Routs Net Trust

Municipal Courts Graduate Defeats Country Club Star, Two-Time Winner of Championship, in Final Round of Central States Patriotic Event.

THEODORE DREWES, who has of late evinced a marked tendency to wipe out every member of the "Tennis Trust," continued his eliminating tactics, yesterday afternoon, at Triple A, beating Roland M. Hoerr, the two-time Central States champion in three consecutive sets, 6—2, 6—2, 6—4.

The victory gives Drewes the singles championship of the Central States Patriotic Tournament. He, with his teammate Fred Josties, also won the doubles title, defeating Jones and Hoerr in a four-set match, indicating that Drewes is bent on constructing a monopoly of his own.

Drewes will receive a medal instead of the usual cup, as the latter is being held by the winner of last year's tourney, Kumagae, for the duration of the war, after which he will be called upon to defend it.

Hoerr played the best game of which he is capable on six distinct occasions, these being the opening games of the first two sets and the first four games of the final set. In these six games Drewes was fortunate when he scored a point as Rollie was playing a perfect game. In the other 20 games, however, the victor's steadiness was too much for Hoerr.

The opening game was interesting because of the accuracy of Hoerr's service. He got the first ball over the net in every one of his six attempts, and Drewes returned it only twice. Hoerr then lost his effectiveness until the fifth game which he won. Drewes won the next three, however, which gave him the set.

Drewes Wins Five Straight.

Hoerr opened the second set with a victory but could not follow it up as the place shot of Drewes had him guessing and worried thereafter. Drewes then won five successive games before Hoerr won again. He won the seventh game on his service coupled with the wildness of Drewes. It was only a temporary respite as the municipal boy won the next and set game.

In the third set Drewes faltered. Hoerr won the first four games easily and quickly. Drewes' service was defeated for the first time in six sets as Hoerr won the second game. In the fourth game his service again failed him and the spectators thought that "Hoerr had him now." But Drewes soon convinced them that they had erred by winning six games without a let-up, which gave him the set and the match. Following are some of the tasks that he performed in "Busting the Trust:"

Allowed his opponent to secure an advantage in all three sets, and then overcame the lead.

Won most of his games consecutively, turning in strings of 3, 3, 5 and 6.

Won 15 games on his service as against 6 won in the same manner by his opponent.

Scored 9 successive points in the final set, beginning with the third point in the fourth game and continuing until he lost the fourth point in the seventh game.

Won six out of seven sets and 38 out of 40 games in eliminating both Jones and Hoerr from the singles.

This performance correctly indicates that Drewes won his title legitimately; that it was not always favored by the "breaks."

Drewes Beaten at Kansas City.

Drewes and Josties recently journeyed to Kansas City to compete in the Missouri Valley tournament being held there. He reached the fifth round in the singles and the final in the doubles. He was with Josties, defeated in this event by Lockhorn and Newell, the former considered one of the ranking players of the country.

In defeating Hoerr, Drewes won from one who had proven his right to be recognized as of championship caliber. Hoerr began his career representing Manual Training School on the courts. He then went to Washington, to which institution he brought the only tennis conference title it has ever owned. Leaving Washington he immediately became prominent in local tennis circles. He has won the club championship at Triple A times almost without number. With Drummond Jones he formed the "Trust" that proved to be so formidable that it endured with only an occasional creak until Drewes came along and entirely dismantled it. Hoerr has won the Central States singles championship twice and needed to win it only once to make the cup emblematic of his permanent property. However, a victory yesterday would have netted him nothing, as the cup is not in competition, being held by Kumagae, who won it last year, for the duration of the war. He, with Jones won the doubles championship twice also.

He, at different times has won the Southwestern championship, the Iowa title, the Oklahoma and Arkansas state championship and the Missouri Valley.

Satterfield Wins Again.

Five matches were played in the Junior tourney now in progress at Triple A. None were decided in the boys' division. V. Satterfield, who reached the fourth round in the Central States tournament, defeated W. S. Haase in his third round match. The scores were 6—3, 6—4. A Baron surprised when he won from C. Wiedlich 6—2, 5—7, 8—6. Arthur Schneft defeated J. Gregory rather easily in their match, 6—2, 6—0.

There are two matches scheduled for today in the Junior, while one is scheduled in the Boys' Division. W. Brown, the present champion will meet A. Baron, while A Schneft will meet H. Grimm. H. Fox and S. Sommers will play the match in the Boys' Tourney.

New Central Champion, Only 19 Years Old, Has Won Four Title Events

THEODORE DREWES' victory yesterday gave him his first singles victory in the Central States tourney. He also holds the doubles championship, with Fred Josties as a partner, having gained this honor by defeating Jones and Hoerr in a four set match last Sunday. He is no novice, however, as was proved by his brilliant victory over the "Trust" members.

Drewes is 19 years of age and has been playing tennis since 1911. It was then that he gained his first experience on the municipal courts. He played for two years on the champion tennis team of Yeatman High School, being first singles man each time.

He won the municipal singles title last year and with Josties won the doubles.

He was leading man on the team which last year won the national municipal federation title from New York men.

In the city championships held last fall Drewes eliminated Hoerr in one of the early rounds by the scores of 6—1, 6—2.

Wray's Column

Civil War Begins.

FRANCIS OUIMET T. R.'d the golf situation this week, when he shied his castor into the ring by participating in the Western Gold Association championship at Midlothian Country Club, Chicago district. No "Ananiases" have been bandied back and forth, but a state of war may be presumed to exist automatically, without the customary word-slinging preliminaries.

Ouimet, who has been ostracised as an amateur title candidate by the U. S. G. A. for embarking in the sporting goods business, thereby capitalizing a perfectly odorless championship reputation, is still recognized as an amateur by the Western Golf Association.

That establishes a casus belli. To make matters worse, following the announcement that Ouimet had entered the Western tourney, the U. S. G. A. denied Ouimet's petition for reinstatement and reaffirmed its previous ruling that the former conqueror of Ray and Vardon was a hated "ineligible." This closes and locks the door on all hope of bringing together the United States governing body and the Western Golf Association.

• • •

It is only a question of time until the "We never speak as we pass by" stage develops into one of complete severence of diplomatic relations. After which it will be a battle to the death between the organizations.

The National championship, when resumed, will be the sufferer, unless the National body wishes to put itself in the position of recognizing individual members of the Western Golf Association, which refuses to abide the U. S. G. A. rules.

• • •

About Mr. Ouimet.

OUIMET'S amateurism is a matter that has broken up more friendships than hyphenating our Americanism. The fact remains that he has violated a U. S. G. A. rule and has refused to eliminate the cause of his own removal, when informed of his offense. He has treated with the enemy or rival organization and therefore he is fully as popular with the parent golf body as a dachshund Frankfurter in Paris.

Whether the U. S. G. A. rule is an injustice or wrong is the point on which golfers are falling out, many contending that a man has a right to pursue the business he likes best, regardless of the circumstances attending it.

This is perfectly all right, the United States association declares; but let him pursue it AS A PROFESSIONAL [illegible] as an amateur.

IN this connection it may be said that golf has been a vocation, not an avocation with Ouimet. He was a caddy as a boy and fairly lived on the Brookline links. He very naturally graduated into the trades feature of the game. With all due respect to Ouimet's high class, the bulk of the evidence appears to be in favor of the view that he has capitalized his reputation for cash.

As long as this rule is on the books of the U. S. G. A. that body cannot consistently change its view toward Ouimet.

It's a Queer World.

HARRY KABAKOFF, his good name stained by "scurrilous" reports sent out from Memphis to the effect that the "quit," in his bout with Pal Moore, blew into the office with his grievance, a newspaper clipping and a rock-bound belief that a fight promoter's word is just as valuable as confederate scrip.

"I went down to Memphis," said the shifty little scrapper, "and consented to go on for 17 per cent of the receipts because I was told it would be a Red Cross benefit. The only benefits they give down there seem to be for the promoters and home talent.

"I found the Red Cross side of the show was nothing; and then I figured up that my percent of the house would amount to about $85, and I balked. They had held out a lot of inducements which they did not fulfill. I refused to go eight rounds, but agreed to go six rounds.

The House Joins the Fight.

"Moore and I did. At the end of the six rounds I started to leave the ring but I couldn't. The entire $389 worth of paid admissions rose up against me and my cousin, Abe Kabakoff.

"We took $85 and beat it, but not until my cousin had left a $10 silk shirt in the enemy's hands. They toog all of it off of him but the cuffs, which was lucky. There were sleeve links in them.

"But what I want to say is I did not 'quit.' I have here an article which shows that I fought a good fight, but Moore outpointed me. The article is all right except that I outpointed Moore. It was the first time I ever fought away from home, and if I ever do it again it will be for Uncle Sam. These foreigners haven't no sense of rights."

Report Memphis for being an alien enemy, Harry.

Caldwell, Offered to Fielder Jones, Shows Great Form

Erratic Twirler Outpitches Sothoron in the Season's Longest Contest.

Ray Caldwell, one of the greatest pitchers in the American League, when on his good behavior showed just how well he can pitch, when he worked the last 9 2-3 innings of yesterday's 17 inning clash between the Yankees and Browns and won, 7—5, beating Allan Sothoron. The contest was the longest played in the major leagues this season.

The previous high mark was 15 rounds. Three battles of that length have been played, one in the American and two in the National. In the A. L. game, these same Yanks beat the Athletics, 2—0, while the Cardinals participated in both in the N. L., beating the Phils on June 11 and the Pirates, June 26.

But to get back to Caldwell. He had just rejoined his mates after a two weeks' leave and was reported out of condition. Only eight Browns saw first while he was on duty, five on hits, two on passes, while Sloan was hit by pitched ball.

Sothoron was almost as good, yielding six bingles in nine rounds, but he weakened in the final frame, when he passed Peck and Pipp, Baker singled and Miller put over a perfect squeeze, Peck and Pipp tallying as a result.

Extra Inning Champions.

The clash yesterday brings to mind the fact that it is next to impossible to beat Donovan's club in extra innings. The New Yorkers have participated in 11 contests which went over the regulation number of rounds and have been defeated only once, by the Red Sox on June 29. They have won eight of the battles and tied two. This record is unequaled by any team in either league.

During the 17 frames the two teams put 44 men on first base, 23 for the Yankees and 21 for the Browns. Twelve scored, 21 were left and the others were put down in double plays and attempted steals. Only three two-ply killings were executed, two by the Yankees and the other by the Browns. Austin pulling it unassisted.

George Sisler, the Brown first-sacker, continued his great hitting. He had a triple off Fisher, double against Love and two singles while Caldwell was on duty. He went to the plate eight times. Frank Baker grabbed five out of six, one a double, while Miller of the Yanks had four out of five, one of them going for a home run. These three were the batting stars of the long battle.

After being four runs to the bad, the Browns put on a three-run rally in the seventh, aided by errors by Bauman and Aragon and three hits, and tied it in the eighth on a double by Sisler and Pratt's triple. These hits came with no one out, but Jacobson, Lavan and Johnson, who batted for Wright, failed. The Yanks scored two in the fifth, mainly through errors by Pratt, and landed three more in the sixth.

Fielder Jones used up 19 players in an effort to win the game. He had four pitchers, two third-basemen, three shortstops and three pinch-hitters, besides the men covering the other positions. Donovan, who was reinstated yesterday, used 12, the extra men being pitchers and catchers.

The Yankees had 28 assists and the Browns 26, a total of 54, each had 15 putouts, while there were five errors, which made a total of 101 chances for the afternoon.

CARDINAL TWIN BILL WITH BRAVES IS OFF

BOSTON, July 11.—The double-header, scheduled today between the Cardinals and Braves, was called off shortly after noon on account of rain. With five games to be played in three days between the two clubs, it means that two-for-one shows will have to be put on both tomorrow and Friday.

VETERAN BOB WALLACE IS SIGNED BY RICKEY

Bobby Wallace, the veteran shortstop, who has seen many years of service in the popeyed pastime, and who recently quit the Western League to retire, yesterday was signed by President Branch Rickey of the Cardinals. Huggins is short on infielders and Wallace will be used as utility infielder.

Wallace departed with Johnny Brock, the St. Louis boy obtained from the Western Association, to join the club in the East.

The following events will be staged for men and women: 50, 100, 220, 440 yard races and fancy diving from a 10-foot board.

Four-Oared Crews to Row Here for National Title

Event Will Be Held on Mississippi River Last Sunday in July for Trophy to Be Won Three Times—Century Boat Club Captain to Be "Benched" in Big Race.

An open four-oared crew race for the national championship will be held on the Mississippi River under the auspices of the Century Boat Club, Sunday, July 29. Invitations will be sent to all recognized rowing clubs in the country.

Inasmuch as no regattas of championship class have been held this year, it is expected that a large number of crews will be entered.

A handsome silver trophy has been placed in competition and will become the permanent property of any club which wins it three times. The event will be one and one-fourth miles upstream and this year its termination will be at the Bellerive Park, adjacent to the Century Boat Club. According to the conditions of the event, the race will be held under the auspices of the club which last won the race. It is to be held the last Sunday of every July. The trophy was donated by Eberhard Anheuser.

With the announcement of this race the Century Boat Club four, which won the Central States championship, will not have to remain idle for the remainder of the season. Following the Century's victories in the Central States, it was announced that the winning eight, four and pair oared crews would be sent to Duluth to compete in the Northwestern Rowing Regatta. This event, however, was recently called off.

The Green and White quartet will line up as follows in the championship event: H. A. Bechestobli, Arthur Heyne, Oliver Belzer and Rodowe Abeken. Clarence P. Aid, acting captain, who was the cause of dissension between the oarsmen and the board of directors immediately before the recent Creve Coeur Lake races, has not rowed in his position in the boat since the Central States regatta.

It has been learned that Aid has been to the boathouse on several occasions since the race, but has never been asked to return to his place. It is claimed by the members of the crew that Hevne is a better man in the boat than Aid and that they simply desire to put their best team in the field. Harry Allen is the Century Boat Club rowing coach.

Shortly before the Central States races Aid left the four-oared boat, and did not row for a week. During that time Hevne took his place. When he returned he desired to resume his position. The oarsmen objected and threatened to abandon their racing plans if he returned. The board of directors claimed that any oarsman who refused to race would be suspended from the club.

The oarsmen under this threat rowed in the races, but stated that they would ask for Aid's resignation later. This they have failed to do.

Ouimet Leads His Chicago Opponent in Morning Round

Favorites All Hold Their Own, With Guilford Covering Midlothian Course in 73.

CHICAGO, July 11.—Rain fell on the 16 contestants in the 36-hole second match round at Midlothian today, but the scores were good.

At the end of the first 18 holes Francis Ouimet of Boston was 3 up on J. T. Henry of Chicago, while John G. Anderson of New York was even with Robert Bowker, a Chicago public links golfer.

Jesse Guilford, Massachusetts champion, found his stride and with 73, one over par, had a lead of 10 holes on G. Decker French of Rock Island Arsenal.

Donald Edwards, medalist in the qualifying rounds, led J. S. Worthington of England by four holes at the half-way mark, but Jack May of Buenos Aires, the other international player, with 76 strokes, was 4 up to E. H. Bankard of Midlothian.

Kenneth Edwards, after gaining a lead of five holes on Reuben Bush of New Orleans, former Southern champion, lost the last three holes and rested for luncheon 2 up.

At the end of the first nine holes in the second round today the matches stood: Donald Edwards, Chicago, 3 up and to J. S. Worthington, England. Jack May, Buenos Aires, 4 up to E. H. Bankhead, Chicago. Francis Ouimet, Boston, all square with J. T. Henry, Chicago. Kenneth Erwards, Chicago, 2 up to Reuben Bush, New Orleans. Jesse Guilford, Boston, 5 up to G. D. French, Rock Island. Robert Bowker, Chicago, 1 up to John Anderson, New York. Robert Markwell, Chicago, 2 up to Ned Sawyer, Chicago.

SPORT BRIEFS

Champion Benny will take in a little easy money tomorrow evening when he knocks out Frankie Burns II of California.

Oh, well, he's entitled to some of the soft coin. He doesn't dodge the kind that comes hard. It won't be so easy with Kilbane in a couple of weeks.

Leonard is going to train at Atlantic City for the Kilbane fight. Thinks he would lose his speed if he trained in Philadelphia.

Phillie, however, would be one grand place to train for Frank Kramer. Frank says that his one invariable training rule is to get at least 10 hours a night of sleep. He could get more in Quakertown. Nobody'd wake up to wake him up.

Jim Flynn, 38, threatens to retire. He's been retiring for several years. No prima donna ever had as many farewell engagements and as many "returns."

$3500 Is Raised by A. A. U. Heads for Title Event

Officials Meet Tonight to Discuss Plans for Gettting Remaining $1500 Needed.

Whether the National A. A. U. outdoor track and field championships will be held at Francis Field in September will cease to be a matter of conjecture before the end of this week, according to Thomas G. Watts, Jr., president of the Western division of the Amateur Athletic Association.

St. Louis was last year awarded the games with the provision that $5000 be raised with which to guarantee the financial support. Watts still has $1500 of this amount to raise and it is this matter which has given rise to nation-wide reports that the meet would be taken away from St. Louis and held elsewhere.

At noon today the W. A. A. U. leader announced that the Associated Retailers' Association had guaranteed $500. Watts has also asked the United Railways Co. for the same amount and expects to receive a reply within the next few days. The Convention Bureau, Chamber of Commerce and Missouri Athletic Association have already responded to his call and each contributed a third of the amount already raised.

The Western A. A. U. will tonight hold a meeting at which will be discussed the advisability of resorting to a private subscription campaign in which sport lovers will be asked to underwrite the meet to the extent of $100. In the event that the amount now applied for is not given.

It is planned to hold the meet in the name of the American Red Cross, and to donate to that cause all profits. The meet is the largest athletic attraction of the country and would bring the pick of the track and field stars of the country to this city for competition.

Watts is in communication with Secretary Rubien of the A. A. U. and intends to let him know by the week end if St. Louis can hold the meet which it strived to get.

SOCCER STAR JOINS NAVY

Dick Fitzgibbons, a member of the Ben Miller soccer eleven, champions of the St. Louis Soccer League, has joined the navy, and yesterday departed for the Great Lakes Training Station. Fitzgibbons was a halfback, but was often called up to fill a vacancy in the forward line.

Special Class for Tourney.

A special class of 16 pairings ha sbeen added to the three flights of match play in the Municipal Golf League championship tournament, because of the unusually large number of qualifiers in that event last Saturday and Sunday. This makes a total of 128 golfers who will compete in the match play. The pairings are posted at the clubhouse of the Forest Park Golf Club.

SPORT SALAD BY J. C. Davis

Fond Recollections.

I REMEMBER, I remember,
About a year ago;
The Brownie boys were in a slump
Their average was low.
They then put on a winning streak
And captured fourteen straight;
I wish they'd make another spurt
Before it is too late.

I remember, I remember,
The way the park was crammed;
You couldn't find a vacant seat
And e'en the aisles were jammed.
Our pennant hopes were running high
Our hearts were filled with cheer;
But now, alas! we sadly miss
The throngs of yesteryear.

I remember, I remember,
The plaudits of the crowd;
For every member of the team
Their cheers were long and loud.
Our boys put up a gallant fight
Before the fatal slump;
We cheered for everything in sight;
We even cheered the ump.

I remember, I remember,
About three months ago
We thought that for the championship
The Browns would have a show;
We figured they would take a brace
And maybe top the heap;
But now they're seventh in the race,
Alas! it is to weep.

• • •

Thank You, Del.

THE Browns, after a terrific 17-inning struggle, nosed the Yankees into a victory and gained a notch on the Athletics when the tribe of Connie Mack galloped rough-shod over the White Sox.

• • •

The Mackmen are having a slump and if the Brownies don't crack under the strain and start a winning streak, they should overhaul the Elephants and rout them out of the lower berth of which they have held adverse possession for the last two years.

• • •

No, Not Diamond Rings.

Ray Caldwell worked the last 10 innings for the Yanks and pitched rings around the Brownies.

• • •

Derrill Pratt tied the score in the eighth inning but tied it with a slip knot which held until the seventeenth inning when the knot became untied and spilled the beans all over the place.

• • •

The tribe of Connie Mack and the forces of Field Marshall Jones will meet at Sportsman's Park this afternoon, when the battle cry of "Strangulo" will be on in earnest. The Mackites are strongly entrenched but the Browns are determined to capture the position if they have to gas 'em out.

• • •

Thank You, J. P.

THE Cards' losing streak was halted yesterday by J. Pluvius. It was well for the Knotholers that J. P. intervened, as Huggins was sorely put to it to find a gunner capable of repudiating the Giants.

• • •

The Cards and Reds change places today, the Cards moving over to Boston to sample the beans (if the Reds left any), while the Reds will pitch their camp at the foot of Coogan's Bluff and try to undermine the Polo Grounds and put the Giants up in the air.

• • •

The Cards' sojourn in New York while in no sense an artistic triumph, served to prove the gameness of the Knothole contingent. The way they assimilated punishment aroused the admiration of the Giants' staunchest supporters who are never unstinted in their praises of a losing team.

• • •

Branch Rickey is said to be after Casey Stengel. Branch thinks the steamfitter would fit into his infield nicely.

• • •

Jim Flynn, the "Fighting Fireman," says this is his last year in the roped arena. Jim, during his 17 years as a fighter, probably won more seconds than firsts, but he always was a good second. Warm up another trial horse.

• • •

The Last Laugh.

When young King, the Pirate outfielder, came to the bat the other day the Quakers yelled: "Here he comes, the $1000 a year guy." After Lee had punched out a single scoring a flock of runs and stolen second base, he looked like a million dollars. Again demonstrating that the last cackle is still the best in the whole category of cachinnations.

TONEY HAS BEEN WINNER IN 9 OF HIS 12 STARTS FOR REDS SINCE JUNE 1

Fred Toney, the big right-hander, is one of the main causes for the recent success of the Cincinnati Reds. Toney, since June 1, has started 12 games for Matt's men, and has won nine of them, losing three, for a winning percentage of .750. He has pitched 102 innings and has yielded 33 earned runs, an average of 2.88 per game.

Toney might have been able to better his efficiency record, but for the fact that in several of the contests his team had such a big lead that he slowed down at the finish.

He has been worked an average of once every four days, while on July 1, he pitched both ends of a double-header against the Pirates, holding the Corsairs to six hits in the 18 innings. He permitted one run in each contest.

His record since June 1.

LAST PLACE YAWNS FOR BROWNIES AS MACKMEN IMPROVE

Philadelphians, Here for Four-Game Series, Won Three Battles From White Sox.

By John E. Wray.

'Tis well that Pennant Highway is a broad road. Otherwise indications are not wanting that Fielder Jones and his luckless Browns would be victims of a rear-end collision this afternoon, on the Sportsman's Park front.

Rumbling up behind them we find Connie Mack's erstwhile despised Athletics. This morning the front of the Mack Machine is on the flank of Fielder Jones' jitney, which is moving forward with fewer cylinders missing than formerly.

Today inaugurated a four-game series with the Philadelphians and if the Elephants win three of the contests, they will come out of the last place trench. The Browns are but the fraction of a game in front.

How serious is the Eastern menace may be judged by the fact that the Mackites have just finished beating the league leaders, the White Sox, three games. Mack's pitchers have been going splendidly, Myers, Noyes and Bush shouldering most of the pitching work.

Mack's leviathans slugged their way to victory yesterday beating Russell, Danforth and Cicotte of the White Sox, with a batting order that included names little known to fame, as for example Jamieson, Dugan, Grover and Bates. Ping Bodie is wielding a big and helpful stick for the revived Philadelphians. The club has more punch in the pinch than the Browns, thanks to Strunk, Bodie and McInnis.

Pratt Off His Stride.

It was this same lack of punch that caused the Browns to lose a 17-inning setto with the Yanks, yesterday, 7—5. At that we will have to lay the defeat more specifically to Del Pratt's off-day with the throwing wing, the eccentricities of which cost his club a victory in the regulation period.

Pratt first threw the ball away on Baker's easy roller and then over the catcher's head on the easiest kind of a chance, later in the same round. The two misplays cost the Browns a victory.

The Browns show every need of another Sisler or of a Home-Run Baker. Baker was handled by the defending Brownies as if he were a test tube full of cholera germs. The team could not be more in mortal perturbation while Cobb at bat than when Franklin Home-Run Baker steps to the plate.

Throughout the present series, and particularly in the last two games, the Browns have shown respect for Baker by passing him intentionally on the slightest provocation. When they did not do this they generally regretted it, as his clouts were the most important feature of yesterday's struggle.

The Browns will never be a satisfying club until they reach that stage of public confidence where the crowd will say, "Now for a hit," instead of "Here goes a strike-out," whenever the heavy artillery is up in the pinch.

In this connection the announcement was made, yesterday, that the Browns were trying to trade Marsans for Lee Maree, a salary difference of $4000 or more to be added to the trade. Maree's contract calls for $3333 a year, which is far more than he has recently been worth.

Maree for Marsans, as we view it, is just a change. Whether for the better time only can tell. Maree was an aggressive ball-player, a good hitter and an infielder, as well as an outer garden star. His acquisition might mean the readjustment of the second base problem, unless Pratt should get back to the stride that made him the second best keystone man in the country.

Willard Too Rich to Re-Enter Ring, Critics Believe

Champion's Talk of Fighting Morris and Fulton Believed to Be Mere Advertising.

By Robert Edgren.

(Copyright, 1917, by Press Pub. Co.)

NEW YORK, July 11.—Jess Willard is said to have stated (we won't vouch for it, not having seen Jess), that he is perfectly willing to fight anybody as soon as the circus season is over. Jess doesn't bar even Carl Morris, who once told him he was a "poor boob" and to "go get a reputation," and who is six and a half feet tall and weighs 234 pounds when trained down to skin and bones.

Neither does Jess bar Fred Fulton, who was hand-picked by Tom Jones for a match a year ago, when he wasn't much of a fighter.

We will expect to see Jess fight again when we see him in a ring, stripped for action and with the gloves tied on. Until that happens we'll discount the champion's fight talk and take it for granted that his circus needs a little fresh advertising. With half a million dollars (authority, Tom Jones), Jess isn't likely to feel much like training hard for a month and being hit on the nose.

It's all right to expect a fellow to stand for having his manly features mauled when he needs the money to pay rent for the bungalow and buy shoes for a lot of little Willards. But a semi-millionaire is quite likely to think it undignified.

MARKETS AND FINANCE---SALES AND LATEST QUOTATIONS

METAL STOCKS FEATURE TRADE IN WALL STREET

Steels and Coppers Score Good Gains; Rails Also Show Firmness.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 11.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"Causes for the advance in prices, which continued on the Stock Exchange today, lay rather in the influences which have been apparent for some time, than in any fresh news of the moment. The Russian advance, resulting in the capture of Halicz, was further evidence of the strength of the Russian offensive, and was followed by a new movement of exchange rates here in favor of Petrograd, rubles advancing to 23.90 cents, compared with 23.30 yesterday, and 21.85 a week ago.

"The confusion and discontent in Germany were, of course, also a factor in financial sentiment, in which the many uncertainties still surrounding Washington's attitude toward industry, were for the moment lost sight of.

Liberty Bonds Lower.

"For the first time since subscriptions closed on June 15, the Government's war bonds went to a price somewhat below par, the price touching 99 49-50. The great over-subscription of the last loan gave force to the impression that the Treasury might offer another installment at the same interest rate, but whether it will be possible to do so will apparently depend in considerable measure on the course of prices for the bonds already issued up to the time the new offering is made.

"One of the influences which operated to advance the price of the present bonds, was the well-known fact that many institutions, because of mistakes in the method of filing their subscriptions, were forced to go into the market and buy bonds to fill their clients' orders. With this demand satisfied it will be interesting to watch the behavior of the bonds on the market.

"That our Treasury officials would soon turn their attention to the depreciation of our currency on the neutral markets of Europe, was expected in financial circles. Already, the matter had caused comment in Washington. The cause for the movement in favor of neutral centers lie pretty distinctly in the disarrangement of the world's export and import trade; in the glut of gold which has caused some neutral markets to place restrictions on its import; and in the fall in the value of the currencies of all the European belligerents.

"The methods by which Great Britain 'pegged' the sterling rate in New York, through loans, bank credits, gold shipments, and sales of securities, are not wholly available in our case, so that the problem with which the Treasury is confronted is unquestionably difficult."

Weather Good for Crops.

"From this time until the country's crops are harvested, weather conditions will be keenly watched for their effect on the prospective yield. The Government's weekly weather report today, stated that conditions were generally favorable for the corn crop, which this year promises to equal the great harvest of 1912. Though still backward in some sections, the grain has made good progress in the past week.

"Winter wheat is ripening rapidly, and harvesting has begun as far North as Central Ohio and Illinois. As to the spring wheat, developments of the past week have not been favorable. Rain was badly needed in the regions west from Montana and North Dakota to the coast, and the Government experts assert that 'serious loss is threatened unless rain and cooler weather are experienced soon.'

"Weather changes since the report was made may have done much to remedy this condition.

DETAILED REPORT OF DAY'S TRADING IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK July 11.—Advances of the previous day were materially augmented at the outset of today's trading, all the better-known issues rising from fractions to more than a point. The movement was assisted by a moderate demand from interior points, commission houses sharing in the early purchases. Steels, equipments, tobaccos, American Sugar and motors were the principal features. Coppers, shippings and oils also hardened, but rails were dull. A sale of liberty bonds was reported at 99 49-50. This is the first break in the subscription price since the day the bonds were first traded in on the exchange.

In every important instance initial gains were extended on an increase of operations which embraced many inactive specialties. Rails also responded to a broader inquiry. Reading, New York Central, Canadian Pacific and Great Northern leading at advances of 1 to 1¼ points.

United States Steel changed hands in many large lots at a gain of 1 and 1¾ points, Bethlehem, Crucible, and Lackawanna Steels meanwhile rising 1 to 1¾ points and Cast Iron Pipe 2 points. Equipments, including motors, metals, oils and tobaccos, also added to their advantage. Bonds were steady, with further sales of the Liberty issue at 99 and 99-50ths.

Unusual activity was manifested at appreciably higher levels. Steels, shippings and secondary equipments and utilities were the outstanding features at gains of 1 to 3 points. Sinclair Oil was the only marked exception, declining 2½ points.

Lack of rain in Kansas, and the Southwest, backed by crop damage reports, sent corn futures to new high-record prices in the early market today. Gains averaged 1½c to 3, on the active options, compared with yesterday's close. In the late trade, however, prices dropped 5c from the top level, on reports that no Government permits for shipment to neutrals will be issued at present. The market closed with a rally and about steady with yesterday's finish.

Aside from the crop news traders favored the buying side on reports of export business, continued strength in the cash market and small primary receipts. Foreign crop news generally was favorable.

What was neglected, but market sentiment was mixed as prices were irregular in Chicago, and crop reports were as a whole favorable. Receipts were very light for this season of the year.

Oats were firm in sympathy with corn.

The Liverpool wheat market was easy and influenced by increasing arrivals and larger export clearances. Provisioning is assured and crop prospects everywhere improving for wheat. India and Australia are shipping freely and holding liberal reserves. Canada is offering freely, with stocks liberal. In corn the general situation is unchanged, but the supply and demand position remains acute. Cash holders are strong.

In Austria and further good rains have fallen in Victoria and the river districts and it is still raining.

In Scandinavia crop prospects are gloomy and supplies everywhere light; the blockade has prevented all but meager arrivals, and scarcity is pronounced. Harvest will be a poor one.

In Italy serious damage is reported from northern districts owing to floods. Harvesting has stopped in the south and elsewhere crop is fully two weeks late.

In India interior holdings of wheat are liberal and port stocks increasing with shipments liberal.

FIRST REGIMENT BEGINS CAMPAIGN FOR 163 RECRUITS

Plans to Fill Gaps in Ranks of Five Companies Within Four Days.

DRAFT MEN NOT SOUGHT

Facilities for Enlistment Established at the Armory and at Maxwelton.

A four-days recruiting campaign to enlist 163 men to increase to war strength the First Regiment of the Missouri National Guard, which has been in Federal service since March 26, has been authorized by the officers of the regiment. Recruits are being received at the Armory, Grand avenue and Market street, and at Maxwellton Park, on the St. Charles rock road, where all but three or four companies are encamped.

Officers of the regiment said today that they expect it will be ordered to France on or before Nov. 1. It will be called into Federal service Aug. 5, when its status as a militia regiment will cease.

There are five companies short of their allotment of 150 men each. They are Co. E, which needs 24 men; Co. F, 35 men; Co. G, 50 men; Co. K, 33 men and Co. L, 41 men. Col. A. B. Donnelley, commanding the regiment has not been recruiting for several weeks, in order to give the new Fifth Regiment an opportunity to recruit to peace strength to be mustered into Federal service.

One of Best Guard Regiments.

The First Regiment, comprised almost wholly of St. Louis men, is regarded as one of the finest National Guard bodies in the United States, and was the first regiment of Guardsmen to reach the border last year. The regiment served with distinction on the border. It was one of the first regiments to be mobilized in response to the President's call for troops for border service.

Every officer in the regiment served on the border and nearly all of the commissioned officers have served several years with the regiment. Capt. Clarence J. Sodemen, who was recently elected captain of Company E, served on the border as lieutenant in Company M. He was graduated from Culver Military Academy as senior captain and entered the service of the regiment as junior lieutenant.

Capt. John Pearson of Company L has just been elected to this office, having been formerly first lieutenant of the machine gun company of the regiment. He also served on the border and is regarded as one of the most skilled men in the service. In private life he has a responsible position with the International Shoe Company. The captains of the other unfilled companies are: Sugden of B, Boettger of K and Lloyd of F. Companies E, F and L are encamped at Maxwellton, G at the Arsenal and K at St. Charles.

"Foster Parents" for Companies.

The companies of the First Regiment are being adopted by St. Louis organizations and individuals. The "foster parents" of the companies will look after their welfare while the men are in France fighting for the republic. This means that the men enlisted in the First Regiment will receive regularly from home everything they need for their comfort, and many things for their amusement and entertainment. The pay of privates in the regiment is $30 a month and board and clothing.

The members of the regiment have been in continuous training for several months, in addition to the six months of intensive training they received on the border last year. The recruits are being drilled in all the specialties of modern warfare and will be fairly well equipped for service in France when the regiment lands on the soil of the sister republic. Under the direction of the skilled officers of the regiment the recruits make rapid advances in training.

Officers pointed out today that one of the advantages of serving with the regiment, which has been nicknamed "The Fighting First," is that it will retain its identity as a St. Louis regiment and will have the interests of the entire city behind it when it gets to France. The history of the regiment antedates the Civil War. Frank P. Blair was Colonel of the regiment during the Civil War, and it has retained its identity as a St. Louis regiment from that day until the present.

Ages Especially Desired.

The officers of the regiment are especially desirous of enlisting men between the ages of 18 and 21 and 31 and 45, so as not to interfere with the draft.

The new Fifth Regiment, under command of Col. Le Roy K. Robbins, has been accepted for Federal service by the War Department. Mayor Kiel received a telegram from the department yesterday announcing that the regiment had met the requirements for Federal service.

The regiment has been recruited since the declaration of war against Germany. It is not yet up to war strength, but every company has been recruited to peace strength, and Col Robbins and his Captains will continue their recruiting campaign to raise the regiment to war strength. St. Louis now enjoys the distinction of being the only city in the United States which has recruited an entire regiment since the declaration of a state of war. The regiment will be called into Federal service Aug. 5.

Street Car Strike in Toronto.

TORONTO, July 11.—A strike involving more than 1600 motormen and conductors began today on the trolley system of the Toronto Railway Co. Several lines are in operation, but they could not begin to handle the rush hour crowds. The strikers demand a shorter working day and a wage increase of 10 cents an hour.

NEGRO BUSINESS LEAGUE

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 11.—The 18th annual session of the National Negro Business League will be held in this city Aug. 15-17, inclusive. The gathering will include several national bodies of negroes, such as the Press Association, Funeral Directors, Insurance, Retail Merchants, Farmers and Bar Associations. It is expected also that many delegates to the Grand Lodge, Knights of Pythias, which will meet at St. Louis shortly before the Business League meeting here, will come from that city in time to attend some of the latter's sessions, Supreme Chancellor S. W. Greene having given assurance that he would urge them to do so.

The National Business League has always endeavored to keep before the country the most reliable facts of the negro's progress, and the program for this year will include a number of the foremost leaders of both races who will discuss in a spirit of helpfulness a constructive program for the race during the present crisis.

DRAFT DRAWING PROBABLY CANNOT BE HELD FOR WEEK

Many of Local Boards Unorganized; Others Have Not Begun Work.

WASHINGTON IS READY

President Will Take Out First Number; Physical Examination Rules Issued.

By Wire From the Washington Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—The Provost Marshal General's office of the United States Army is ready to draw the numbers which will designate the order in which 9,600,000 registered male citizens of the United States are to be called for examination as to their fitness to serve in France under the Stars and Stripes, but the states are hanging back. From reports reaching Washington it appears that the instructions to the local boards and the procedure to be followed by such boards are being ignored or misunderstood in many instances.

It is quite safe to say that President Wilson will draw the first number from the container, already filled and sealed, which holds the serial numbers marking the registered citizens liable to duty in the army. Secretary Baker may draw the second number. Members of the Cabinet may then take out the numbers one by one. This has been determined, but the date in the latter part of this week which had been set by the army executives may be put back considerably.

Waiting on Civilians.

The army made the rules for the selective draft which the President promulgated, but the machinery is now in the hands of civilians, many of whom do not understand the rules and regulations they have received.

If the rules and regulations had been strictly followed by the local boards, and if everybody appointed on the local boards had accepted service, the comparatively simple operation of numbering the registration cards in serial figures in red ink would have been completed by this time and the drawing could be held today or tomorrow. Indications now are that the drawing cannot be held before the middle of next week.

The difference is between military efficiency in preparation and civilian efficiency in execution. Dispatches show that many local boards have not organized, and that many boards which have organized have not selected headquarters or taken any steps to gather the registration cards in order to give them their serial numbers. Until they perform their official functions the actual drafts in Washington must be postponed.

Physical Examination Rules.

The regulations governing physical examinations of men eligible to the service, just issued, indicate that the tests for those called by the selective draft will be almost as severe as those prescribed for recruits for the regular army. The regulations, as approved by Secretary Baker, have been mailed to 4500 physicians and surgeons attached to local boards.

Their text was not made public, but it may be said that in general the requirements are as follows:

Height, 5 feet 1 inch to 6 feet 6 inches.

Weight, between 118 and 211 pounds.

Variations in weight above 211 pounds are not disqualifying, unless sufficient to constitute obesity.

Chest measure, 31 to 38¼ inches.

The prospective soldier must be sound organically and mentally, and he must have good teeth and feet.

Examinations of the eyes and ears are to be made by charts and whispering tests.

Almost any disease of the lungs or heart is disqualifying.

The men must have at least four serviceable molars—two above and two below, opposed.

The pulse and respiration must be nearly normal and the skin in good condition.

Old dislocations and badly united fractures form a disqualification.

Chronic disease of any kind will disqualify.

Jumping and Hopping Tests.

Before the heart and lung test the conscripted man will be required to jump straight up, kick the heels up behind, hop around the room first on one foot and then on the other, and then make several standing jumps.

"The regulations provide for practically the same standard as the regular army," said an official. "What few deviations there are are of minor character. Persons suffering from tuberculosis and other communicable diseases, or from social diseases, of course, will not be accepted.

The feet will receive special attention. Flat feet will be a bar. The feet play an important part in the effectiveness of an army, it is explained, and, although trench warfare is not so exacting as open campaigning, no man will be accepted whose feet would make him a poor marching soldier.

Only One New York Exemption Board Has Completed Work.

NEW YORK, July 11.—With an announcement today that only one of the 189 Exemption Boards in the city had completed its work and was ready for the selective draft, doubt was expressed that many of the other 188 boards would be ready for the draft drawings before next week.

NEW APPEAL SENT OUT FOR RESERVE OFFICER CANDIDATES

Effort Being Made to Procure Men With Executive Ability; Chamber of Commerce Aids.

As a last effort to procure men with executive experience before the final day for receiving applications for admission to the second training camp for reserve officers at Fort Riley, the Chamber of Commerce yesterday sent out letters to its entire membership asking their aid in obtaining applications from mature men. The applications must be in the hands of Capt. Barry, Examining Officer, at Jefferson Barracks, by next Monday morning.

The War Department has named examining boards for Missouri and these boards of three men will visit nearly all of the larger towns and conduct the mental and physical examinations.

On the examining boards are Capt. I. S. Martin, Capt. J. T. Donnelly, Capt. Louis Farrell, Lieut. McBeath, Medical Corps, U. S. Army; Lieut. H. G. Wyer and Lieut. Hobbs of the Medical Reserve Corps.

These officers will begin making their examinations Monday. Successful applicants are to report to the camp commandant at Fort Riley Aug. 27, to begin their three months' training.

Capt. Barry says the applications received by him undoubtedly will reach the 1500 mark by Monday. He says that the material obtained for the second camp is of exceptional quality.

WIRELESS OPERATOR'S WORK SAVED 46 MEN

Stuck to Key Till Pulled From Cabin, Orleans Captain Says.

PARIS, July 11.—The fortitude of a wireless operator in sticking to his instrument made possible the rescue of forty-six men out of fifty on the American steamship Orleans, when she was torpedoed unawares by a German submarine, according to Capt. Allen Tucker, commanding. He has just reached Paris from Brest.

The torpedoing of the Orleans only became known here Sunday in a dispatch from Washington, although she was sunk off the French Coast on July 3.

"We saw nothing and heard nothing," Capt. Tucker said, "until the torpedo struck us amidships and burst with such force that it seemed to tear the ship asunder. It was a fairly clear night, but the water was very black. I gave orders to launch the boats immediately, and we got all but one, which had been smashed by the explosion, into the water in record time.

"Meanwhile Larson, our wireless operator, was sitting in his cabin and sending S O S calls as coolly as though they were merely commercial messages. He finally got into radio touch just as the stern began sliding under the water. I ran in, pulled him out on deck and practically threw him overboard, knowing he could swim. Then I followed, and we both swam fast to get away from being dragged under the sinking ship.

"The Orleans sank within 10 minutes. Meanwhile the boats had got some distance off and it was a good hour before Larson and I were dragged aboard one of them. Neither could have held out much longer.

"I felt the undertow as the Orleans dived clutching at my heels, but managed somehow to pull myself out of it. I caught a glimpse of the black hull of the U-boat once, but, believe me, I wasn't bothering much about that.

"Afterward a third mate told me the submarine commander had asked him whether I was among the survivors. When the mate answered that I was not, the German remarked, "Well, that saves us taking him prisoner."

"I had my shoes on all the time I was in the water, and one of my feet swelled badly. Apart from that I was all right. Nobody was hurt, and it really was a miracle that only four men were lost out of the 50.

"We were hit at 9 p. m., but it was 6 the next morning—the Fourth of July—that a boat found us. And it certainly was a funny feeling to be taken aboard off the coast of France. My hat's off, but if it had not been for the courage of Larson, they never would have known what had happened to us."

TEACHERS TO GET PAY INCREASE OF $218,113

Board Also Votes $94,000 for Same Purpose for Other School Employes.

Because of the high cost of living, the Board of Education last night voted salary increases totaling $312,000 a year for teachers and other employes of the St. Louis public school system. Of this amount, $218,113 a year is added to the teachers' salaries, the increase for each teacher being 7 per cent over present compensation in the grade schools, 5 per cent in the high schools and 13 per cent in the kindergartens. Janitors will receive an increase of $5 a month and scrubwomen $7.50.

Increases in smaller proportion are provided for principals and supervisors and for the headquarters staff. The raise in salary will affect 2696 employes.

Superintendent of Instruction Withers, in a report recommending the increase, said the unprecedented increase in the cost of living had made present salaries wholly inadequate. He cited Government figures to show that since 1910 there has been an increase of 45.5 per cent in the price of food, 54.5 per cent in the price of clothing and 95.8 per cent in the cost of fuel and lighting. He also cited the action of several other large cities in raising teachers' salaries.

ROOT SAYS RUSSIAN CHARACTER WILL PULL NATION THROUGH

Declares His Mission Has Found No Organic Malady in Country's Democracy.

PETROGRAD, July 11.—The American commission, headed by Elihu Root, has completed a month's survey of all the phases of the Russian situation and is confident in the belief that the nation will successfully emerge from its internal difficulties and be able to redirect its forces toward the energetic pursuance of the war.

Mr. Root made the following statement to the Associated Press:

"The mission has accomplished what it came here to do, and we are greatly encouraged. We found no organic or incurable malady in the Russian democracy. Democracies are always in trouble, and we have seen days just as dark in the progress of our own.

"We must remember that a people in whom all constructive effort has been suppressed for so long cannot immediately develop a genius for quick action. The first stage is necessarily one of debate. The solid, admirable traits in the Russian character will pull the nation through the present crisis. Natural love of law and order and capacity for local self-government have been demonstrated every day since the revolution. The country's most serious lack is money and adequate transportation. We shall do what we can to help Russia in both."

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Punish the East St. Louis Murderers.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

In as much as our Federal Government has assumed control of the meat-packing concerns and is, by contract, the sole customer of other manufacturing establishments whose laborers were murderously assailed in the successful attempt to drive them from their government employment, the United States courts and their police ramifications have unquestionable jurisdiction to apprehend and try the East St. Louis murderers, independent of any request to do so by the Illinois State authorities. Under the conditions named, the Federal Government not only has the power to punish the rioters; IT IS ITS DUTY TO DO SO.

Gov. Lowden and all others who verbally bemoan the massacres and pray the punishment of the guilty can no better stamp their words with sincerity than to demand that the Federal Government perform its plain duty, immediately and directly.

The United States is at war and the National Government has as much reason and right to stand aloof should the scum of the population assassinate our soldiers and civil officers as it has to stand aloof when our laborers who are making munitions and provender for the National Army are so assassinated.

The Federal Government must detect and punish the East St. Louis murderers AS A DUTY.

The curse of our country today is the widespread disposition of liberty enjoying American and European ex-slaves and children of American and European ex-slaves to assume and enforce distatorships over selected classes of their fellow freemen. This disposition is disgusting and disquieting in peace; it will prove fatal in this time of war.

The East St. Louis riot situation is the first acid touch of the present war to the administration at Washington. The duty of the National Government is as clear as noonday. If the disposition to caste that I have cited—the disposition that, in excess, murdered babies at East St. Louis—infects (however it be refined) our Federal Government, that government fails in the first test of its competency to conduct a war for democracy.

No better, more loyal citizen service is possible to us than to DEMAND, with every individual voice, that Washington must do its DUTY. GEO. B. VASHON.

Chaos in Congress.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Your editorial in the Post-Dispatch of July 8 concerning the present lamentable state of affairs in Congress is very much to the point. The prohibition obstructionists are showing their true colors. Their partisan selfishness is without bounds—inordinate beyond all restraint. They would willingly see our country lose its fight with Germany if thereby they could gain their ends. If they can only down John Barleycorn it would be a matter of indifference to them if coincident with the rout of their foe they have to witness the painful spectacle of Columbia "licking the military jackboots of a pinchback Caesar." They are positively aiding the common enemy by their tactics, obstructing the food legislation so imperatively demanded by present exigencies.

Can you find a better description and characterization of the whole deplorable affair than in the following lines of poor Cowper's "Expostulation?"

"Our Senate is a scene of civil jar,
Chaos of contrarities at war;
Where sharp and solid, phlegmatic and light,
Discordant atoms meet, ferment and fight;
Where obstinacy takes its sturdy stand
To disconcert what policy has planned;
Where policy is busied all night long,
In setting right what faction has set wrong;
Where flails of oratory thresh the floor,
And yield but chaff and dust, and nothing more.

DAVID ROSS.

Favors Existing Zoo Board.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

There is and should be much interest taken in the Zoological Garden which St. Louis has so generously and wisely supported. As the Botanical Garden is one of the educational features of so much value to all the people and so conspicuous a point of interest as to make St. Louis well and favorably known along botanical line, so the Zoological Garden should be so managed as to make its influence felt by our people, as well as throughout this and other countries. To attain these ends all selfish aims should be cast aside. The experience of many new institutions shows the tendency to recognize the interests of persons selfishly inclined, which leads to many unpleasant and costly events before it is possible to properly organize the work. St. Louis should profit by the experience of others and not create conflict by unnecessary legislation. Let the board of management, as it now exists, proceed with the organization of the garden. The bill increasing the number of members on the board should be defeated. ST. LOUIS.

GOLDMAN AND BERKMAN.

In sentencing Emma Goldman and Alexander Berkman to prison for conspiracy to defeat the selective draft law, Judge Mayer of New York expressed regret that the ability and energy of the two offenders had not been used to make better citizens of those who come under their influence, instead of law breakers.

Both prisoners came from Russia and have neglected American citizenship. Both have ability and intelligence. Instead of accepting the free institutions of the United States as a refuge from old Russia and recognizing the boundless opportunity they offered for social and political reforms through legitimate agitation and legislation, these two transported the revolutionary spirit of Russia, under the old autocratic regime, to America. They protested against all government and all law and carefully fostered disobedience and violent rebellion against law. They held to the theory that all law is imposed by some power above and is an invasion of individual rights, which should be opposed by force.

Proclaiming themselves revolutionary anarchists, believing in rebellion by force against law, they shut their eyes to the spirit and structure of American free government, which enables any man or set of men to accomplish any end through the political action of a majority of the people. They refused to see that when they convinced a majority of the people that their political views were right they could change the whole face of the government. They assumed that the republican government of America, with its free parliamentary system was like the Russian Czar with his bureaucracy. They assumed that it imposed its oppressive will on the people.

They and their associates were free to hold their anarchistic opinions and to preach and teach them. Both Goldman and Berkman wrote and lectured. They were accorded free speech in fullest measure. Not much attention was paid even to their counsel of violence. Miss Goldman's revolutionary publication, Mother Earth, and many pamphlets counseling violence passed through the mails and were freely distributed. But when, in the nation's war crisis, they conspired to defeat the laws providing for the country's defense and openly counseled disobedience to law, patience ceased to be a virtue. They were arrested and severely punished.

The trouble with Goldman and Berkman is that they are professional propagandists. They have lived on their propaganda and made money preaching violence and lawlessness. They have deliberately, willfully and for personal gain misrepresented American institutions and preached the right to disobey laws that did not please, to destroy property and kill in order to win social or political ends. "Direct action," meaning the bomb, the revolver, the torch and all forms of sabotage, has been their slogan.

This doctrine, coupled with counsels of license in individual conduct, appealed to some thoughtless, enthusiastic youth of both sexes, the discontented, the disorderly, the immoral and the violent, the ignorant and shiftless foreigners. Upon these elements, gathered into groups in various cities, with headquarters in New York, the anarchist leaders lived. They incited them to disorderly living and violent demonstrations against law enforcement. Their punishment under law is the logical result of their unbridled propaganda. It should have a salutary effect on their misguided followers, who are taught by example that this is a free country governed by law.

ILLINOIS OFFICIAL EXCUSES.

Making excuses is the oldest and most unprofitable business in the world. Whether the Illinois National Guard commanders will have better success with it than Father Adam did in the first place remains to be seen. Just now the prospects are not promising.

In explanation of the failure of the guardsmen to stamp out the East St. Louis rioting before it was well started, it is said that Col. Tripp will report to his superiors that his men were without ammunition. But what right had a national guard organization, called to such duty, to be without ammunition? The mobsmen had it in plenty. What would be thought of any system which was ready to send men in a hurry to do any piece of work, but failed to provide the necessary tools for them when they got there?

Were the militiamen expected to cow the mob by their fierce aspect? Was it expected that khaki uniforms would inspire a respect for law when the hot fires of passion, the lust to kill and racial antipathies had already swept aside all respect for law and for the simple rights of humanity?

Assuming that the guardsmen were without cartridges, what had become of their bayonets? One looks in vain in the police and hospital reports for instances of rioters treated for bayonet wounds.

The public awaits with somewhat of impatience the complete text of the Colonel's report. There is a consuming curiosity to know just how efficient Illinois militia rhetoric is.

REACTION LOSES AGAIN IN CHINA.

Republican government in China can no longer be regarded as the fantastic conception of a few native faddists who have absorbed foreign ideas, particularly American ideas. A remarkable demonstration of the strength of the republic, of the affection it inspires and of readiness to make sacrifices in its defense has been given in the last few days.

Although the Chinese republic dates from Feb. 12, 1912, when Pu-yi, reigning under the name Hsun Tung, abdicated, Yuan Shi Kai was only a provisional President until regularly inaugurated for the 1913-18 term on Oct. 10, 1913. Accordingly the first constitutional term of China's first President has not yet expired.

Elections in November, 1915, were interpreted as indicating a strong reaction toward the monarchy. Yuan pretended to yield to a popular demand and aided by one or two misguided American advisers, announced plans for restoring the empire, with himself as Emperor. The storm of protests from the country forced him to back down in 1916. Soon after he died suddenly and suspiciously and Li Yuan Hung became President. The attempted coup d'etat in favor of Hsun Tung is to be regarded as principally the work of a single ambitious man, Gen. Chang Hsan, who, unfortunately, had subject to his order a few thousand troops, not all of whom were in sympathy with his plot. That the foreign aid given the conspiracy is attributed this time to Germans and not Americans is gratifying.

The Chinese have shown that they will not tolerate a revival of the old regime under one of their leading Generals or statesmen as Emperor. They have shown that they will not tolerate a revival under a Prince of the Manchu dynasty. Under what other appeal of any plausibility can headway be made against the republic? Gen. Chang's rebellion has been costly in its interruption to security and trade. But it has been worth all it cost in showing how strongly the new Government has taken root.

THE VOICE OF ERZBERGER.

In Mathias Erzberger, leader of the Centrists in the Reichstag, the powerful clerical unit, is typified the mind of Germany today.

In the spring of 1915, Dr. Erzberger, then as now a conspicuous figure in the councils of the empire, spoke with enthusiasm of the vast territories that would be added to Kultur through the irresistible might of the German arms. He even predicted that the submarine blockade—fangless though it was two years ago—would bring England to terms in a short time. It would be a short and profitable war so far as the Central Empires were concerned, according to the Centrist leader.

At that time Italy was on the verge of coming into the war. Interviewers asked the Herr Doctor what he thought about it. He replied:

"We are already fighting seven nations, and we can deal just as easily with the eighth."

This was not only the member of the Reichstag talking; it was all of Germany, from the peasant in East Prussia to the General Staff in Berlin.

Today comes Herr Dr. Erzberger before the Reichstag with piercing questions concerning the length of the war, the value of ruthless submarine campaigns, the condition of the food supply and other matters. When the Kaiser in 1915 signed the submarine blockade order it was known in Berlin that Erzberger was largely responsible for turning the vacillating Hohenzollern mind to an approval of undersea piracy. But Erzberger now thinks that England cannot be starved by U-boats and that the entire war holds out no hope of victory for Germany. It is the mouth of Mathias Erzberger that says these things, but it is the voice of Germany that is speaking.

With the most enthusiastic imperialist in the empire, the great proponent of annexations and indemnities, is skeptical and critical on the situation, it is easy to imagine the state of mind of those who had misgivings from the beginning.

THE UNHAPPY NEUTRALS.

It has not been so long since the United States, a neutral, was vexed by the shipping restrictions imposed by the belligerents that Americans cannot sympathize with Holland and Denmark in their new troubles arising from the President's embargo proclamation. At the same time we cannot lose sight of our own embargo needs.

Already between 30 and 40 Dutch ships loaded with grain and foodstuffs urgently needed at home are tied up in American harbors waiting assurances from the British Government that they will receive safe conduct. Denmark is feverishly working for permission to send out 10 cargoes of cattle feed before control of exports becomes operative.

There would be no trouble about the shipments at all if the allied countries were sure the stuffs would be used exclusively for neutral consumption. The Governments of Holland and Denmark declare that no part of them will get to Germany. Unfortunately, experience seems to prove conclusively that those Governments cannot or do not control them after they are distributed to Dutch and Danish cattle raisers.

The Dutch Minister has declared that most of Holland's surplus dairy products are exported to England and only a small part gets to Germany. The usually well-informed London Times, however, presents figures purporting to show that in the first three months of this year Holland sent to Germany 1847 metric tons of butter, 9216 tons of cheese, 3443 tons of eggs, making a total of 14,506 tons. At the same time she exported to England only 4617 tons altogether.

Under the law of nations for which the United States is fighting Holland and Denmark have a right to trade with Germany when they can do so. America, on the other hand, has an equal right to refuse to send to Holland and Denmark supplies that will ultimately get to Germany.

The lot of the neutral states bordering upon Germany is a most unhappy one, but it is their misfortune and not our fault. The choice is bitter, but, nevertheless, they must choose whether they shall discontinue shipping surplus products to the enemy or discontinue receiving surplus products from us.

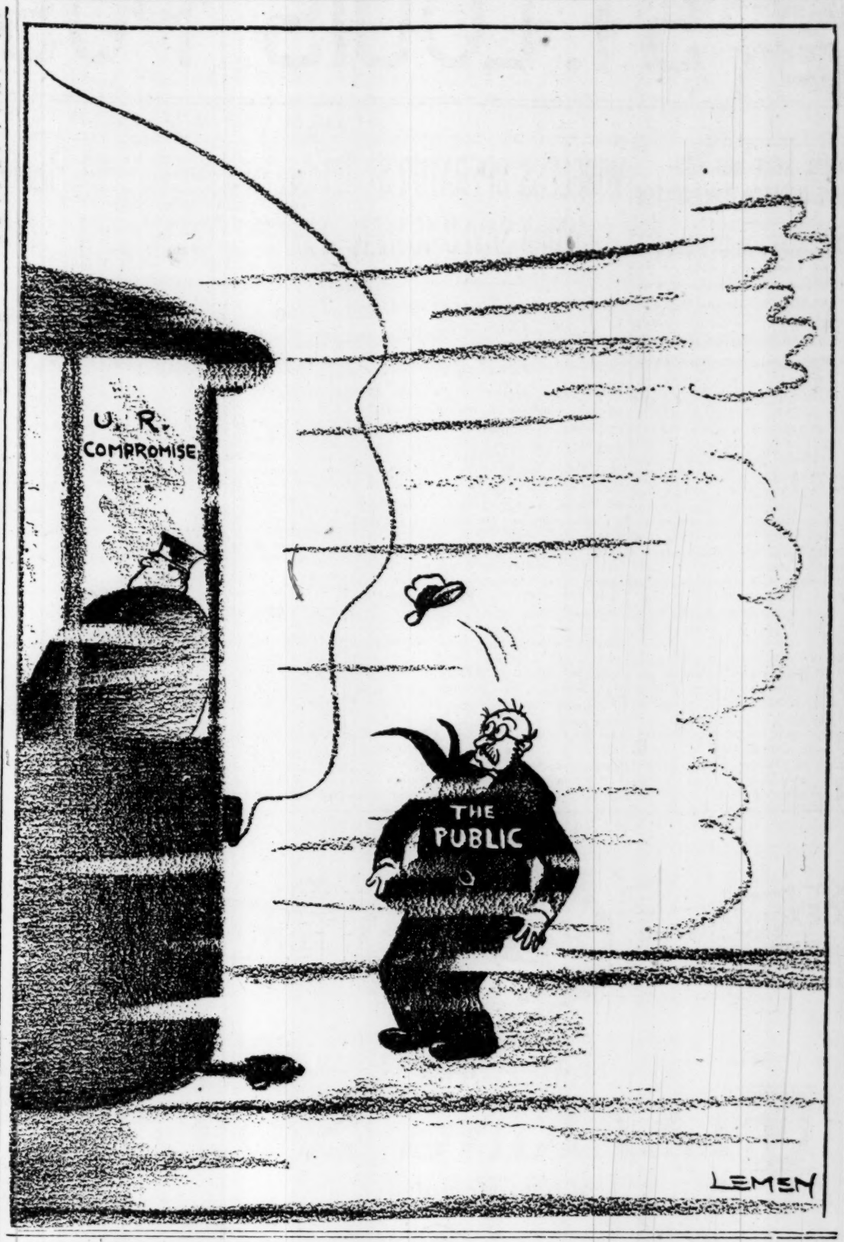
AN OLD SCHOOL PASSES.

St. Louisans generally read with regret the announcement that Christian Brothers' College will not reopen this fall. That it ever will do so is extremely doubtful. The fire which destroyed its big building at Easton avenue and King's highway, the subsequent sale of the old campus and the later sale of its temporary quarters in the Smith-Manual buildings have left it without a home.

Time was when it was the best known of all St. Louis institutions of higher education. For years it was not only a cultural center, but was the home of athletic sports. When St. Louis University and Washington University were small institutions without athletic grounds, its huge campus accommodated two or three baseball diamonds, rugby gridiron and soccer fields. Some of its athletes and athletic teams achieved considerably more than local fame.

Its prestige began to decline some years ago, when, by a papal decree, instruction in the more advanced classical studies was taken out of the hands of the brothers and left principally to the Jesuits. Even then it continued to hold an important place among schools of scientific education. The disastrous fire, however, gave it an almost mortal blow.

Whether it passes or is restored, the school will long remain alive in the loving memory of older St. Louisans as well as of its alumni, many of whom are prominent in all departments of the community life



JUST A MINUTE

Written for the POST-DISPATCH by Clark McAdams

MR. ANTWINE ON DEMOCRACY.

"ALL those who love democracy and want to see it endure must breathe easier now that the Russians have resumed with the war, the Republicans of China have overwhelmed the monarchists, and a coal oil inspector has been successfully appointed in Missouri," Mr. Antwine said.

"Of the three great triumphs for democracy, the appointment of a coal oil inspector in Missouri without overturning our present form of government was probably the greatest. Here was a conflict which raged about the heads of our United States Senators, shook with its thunders the Governor's Mansion at Jefferson City, and rocked to its foundations every Democratic stronghold in the state. I find upon investigation that the coal oil inspector is paid $3500 and is appointed for four years. He has the appointment of eight deputy inspectors and a chief clerk at $2000 each, and a stenographer at $1200. The aggregate of money involved in this struggle upon the part of our political Titans is $90,800, split ten ways. Its average aggregate value to each participant is $9080, and its average worth to each annually is $2270.

"Truly a momentous cause, well meriting every sacrifice that has been made for it. If men have given it their thought and time through several months; if innumerable conferences among those whose weight is heavy in affairs of state have been held; if our United States Senators and our Democratic Representatives in Washington has each at some time in the battle thrown off the trivial burden of what the nation should do and given himself wholly to the great problem of who should be coal oil inspector in Missouri; if there have been fortunes spent in railroad fares; if the wires have been heavy and the mails big—then must we still say that the cost has not been too great. That is democracy.

"What we have in this life is a choice between two extremes of government, either of which disposes one to think well of the other. At the one extreme we see the appointment of a coal oil inspector take precedence over the gravest affairs of state, and at the other extreme the head of the autocracy hands the job to the first courtier who doesn't object to the odor.

"It isn't much of a choice. However, it is no time to discuss it. Let us wait until the world has been made safe for this kind of monkey business, only hoping for the present that someone will tell us what in hell a coal oil inspector does."

THE WAR AMONG LANDLORDS.

Sir—In Illinois, as in Missouri, there is an insane asylum and competent practitioners to examine into the sanity of the citizens; therefore I would advise that the aforesaid W. J. L. of Carrollton go and submit to an examination of the herculaneum and ascertain if there are any screws loose, and if so tighten them up. There's a nut to be cracked. I don't suppose W. J. L. can remember the days of his childhood. No doubt his parents were three score years old at his birth and he or she was born fully matured; therefore an ignorance of children. SILVER KING.

UNFORETOLD.

THE genius loci, which lay here asleep,
Sleeping the sleep in which she long had lain,
Before the Mayflower to the goal did gain;
Before the Half Moon hitherward did sweep;
Before the Spaniard, standing on the steep,
Saw the great river flowing to the main;
Before the Genoese, with toil and pain,
Followed the sun into the trackless deep;—
The genius loci, which here sleeping lay,
Had dream or vision of the times to come
Into her slumber slid, and showed the day,
When teeming marts with traffic here should hum;
And Empire's architraves should here be raised,—
She had woke up, astounded and amazed.

R. E. LEE GIBSON.

Dear Sir: You mention "speeders" and the police department. While I understand the humorous vein in which it is written, still the serious side of it cannot be overlooked, and it makes me wonder why people continually put it up to the police department to stop speeding. Why don't some of you sit in Police Court any morning, see the "speeders" brought in, and hear the Judge say "discharged," "dismissed on costs," etc., with monotonous regularity, rarely assessing a fine, and then a very small one, frequently addressing the police officer in a sarcastic manner, in fact, making a boob out of him if he possibly can. Right there is the reason why speeders are running wild on St. Louis streets, with the police powerless to check them.

Make the Police Court Judges do their duty, and the police department will bring in the speeders.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

COLD-PACK CANNING.

WAR TIMES—First steps consist in preparation and cleaning of containers and in preparation of products to be canned by washing, paring, trimming and cutting into pieces where division is necessary. Start with clean hands, clean utensils, clean, sound, fresh products, and pure, clean, soft water. No vegetables or fruits which are withered or unsound should be canned. If possible, only fruits and vegetables picked the day of canning should be used. Peas and corn, which lose their flavor rapidly, should be canned, in fact, within five hours if a choice product is desired. Before preparation of products is begun, containers should be washed. If glass or crockery jars are used they should be placed in vessel of cold water over fire to heat. They will then be hot and ready for use when the products have been prepared for packing. All grit and dirt should be washed carefully from the materials to be used. All products should be graded especially for ripeness. Large fruits and vegetables should be pared if necessary, and small fruits, berries and greens picked over carefully. After the materials have been cleaned and put into shape in which they are to be canned, and containers have been cleaned and tested, the canning procedure for most products by the one-period cold-pack method consists of five steps—scalding or blanching, cold-dipping, packing, processing and sealing. In canning berries and all soft fruits the blanching is dispensed with. The products to be canned are blanched or scalded usually by being placed in a cheesecloth bag or dipping basket into boiling water and allowed to remain from 1 to 15 minutes, depending on kind of product. In case of greens and green vegetables, however, the scalding is accomplished most satisfactorily in steam, as volatile oils and other substances remain in the food under this treatment. Such products may be put into a colander, set over a vessels of boiling water and covered as tightly as possible. Better results may be obtained, however, by the use of a steam cooker. As soon as the product is removed from boiling water or steam it should be dipped into cold, clean water and immediately removed and drained for a few moments. Temperature of water used for cold dipping should be as low as possible. Product should be packed carefully into hot jars as soon as removed. In the case of fruits, boiling hot sirup or hot water is then added. In case of vegetables, hot water usually is used and salt added for seasoning. Scalded rubbers and tops of jars are put into place, tops of cans sealed, and containersare placed in hot water bath, pressure cooker, or other similar device for processing. Processing is the final application of heat to sterilize the product and is continued for a period determined by the character of the product and the kind of apparatus used. The containers should be placed in the processing vessel as they are filled. Immediately after the termination of the processing period, while products are still hot, glass and similar containers must be sealed. Jars should then be placed in a tray upside down to cool and closely examined for leaks. If leakage occurs, the covers should be tightened until they are completely sealed. Tin cans may be cooled by plunging them in cold water. When the packed containers are thus cooled, they should be stored in a cool, dry place not exposed to freezing temperature. Most products packed in glass jars will bleach or darken if exposed to light. It is well, therefore, to wrap jars in paper. From time to time, especially during very hot weather, both glass jars and tin cans should be examined to make certain that there are no leaks, swellings, or other signs of fermentation. See Answers June 17.

HOUSEHOLD HELPS.

DAILY.—Of the house centipede ("thousand-legged" worm) an entomologist writes: "An examination of the head of this centipede will reveal a pair of strong jaws that are used against enemies and for the purpose of capturing small insects for food. It considers the fly a great delicacy and, besides this, it eats fleas, mosquitoes, clothes moths, roaches and other small household pests. It hunts its food mostly at night. The house centipede has seldom been known to bite a person and if in self-defense it should happen to pinch the baby's finger or toe, the swelling produced, if any, could be quickly alleviated by an application of ammonia. Most household pests live upon scraps of meat and vegetables left about the sink and pantry. If no inducements are held out to these pests the house centipede will be an effective ally in ridding the premises of the detestable things. (Those unwise enough to drive the "worm" away sprinkle pyrethrum powder.)

LAW POINTS.

P. J. R.—If you found an abandoned ship at sea bring it into port and be paid salvage. (At 18 a female of Missouri may sign deeds, contracts, etc.; she is then of full age.)

L. M.—Under the law one might mail a politely phrased dunning card, asking for the payment of a just debt, day after day for weeks or months without incurring a penalty, but the use of libelous, abusive or threatening language would be punishable.

WAR TALK.

L. M. M. K.—No woman is compelled to register. Registration is a labor of love to help out Uncle Sam. Nothing expected of women not able.

D. K. G.—A joint resolution of Congress, approved July 12, 1862, directed that 2000 "Medals of Honor" be prepared, "to be presented to such enlisted men as shall most distinguish themselves in action during the present insurrection." Ten thousand dollars was appropriated for the purpose of carrying the resolution into effect. It will be noted that officers could not obtain the medal. An act of Congress, approved March 3, 1863, amended the former act so as to include officers. Thus was the "Medal of Honor" of the United States Army brought into being. The medal is of bronze in the form of a five-pointed star and bears the inscription: "The Congress of the United States to ——." An officer or enlisted man to be eligible for a medal of honor must have risked his own life in saving the life of another on the battle field. The action which constituted the eligibility must be certified to by one or more commissioned officers who were eye witnesses. In all respects the "Medal of Honor" of the United States is the equivalent of the "Victoria Cross" of Great Britain and the "Iron Cross" of Germany.

KING.—Against Germany: *Russia, *France, *Belgium, *Britain, *Serbia, *Montenegro, China, *Brazil, Bolivia, Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua, *Japan, *Portugal, *Italy, *Rumania, *United States, *Cuba, *Panama, Liberia, Hayti, San Domingo, Greece. Of these countries, those marked with star are at war with Germany. Others, such as Greece, have definitely abandoned their neutrality and now favor the allies. Tavolara, the smallest country in the world, has declared war on Germany because of submarine outrages and is preparing to muster all its 170 inhibitants capable of bearing arms. Six-sevenths of Europe is in the war area. Only Spain, Switzerland, Scandivania, Denmark and Holland are out of it. Yet Europe, the very center of the vast upheaval, is not as fully represented, according to its area, as the other continents, with the one exception of South America, although, if the Argentine joins Brazil, even that vast continent will be almost entirely belligerent. With the exception of Mexico, the whole of North America is in the fighting, and, if China be counted a belligerent, less than one-sixteenth of Asia is at peace. With the exceptions of Spanish Marocco and Abyssinia, the whole of Africa is in the war, while it goes without saying that every square inch of Australia, the smallest of the continents, although more than two-thirds the size of Europe, is devoted to the cause of the allies

Dorothy Dix says

It's a Mother's Inhumanity to Other Mother's Children That Make Thousands Mourn.

WE have glorified mother love as the very essence of altruism, but in reality it is the most selfish passion that animates the human breast.

No matter how good and kind and generous and sympathetic a woman may be in other relations of life, when it comes to her own children she becomes a savage, fighting tooth and claw to get everything they want for her own offspring.

She is incapable of perceiving that anyone else has any rights or is entitled to any privilege if they conflict with her children's.

Of course, the wise ones will tell us that this ruthless mother's selfishness is an instinct inherited from our primative mothers who had to fight with wild animals for the food to sustain their children, but it's curious how, to this very day, every woman with a babe in her arms reverts to type.

Watch the mother on the street car who is taking her precious little Bobby down town with her. Bobby's shoes are covered with mud and dirt, and the street car is crowded with expensively dressed men and women, whose clothes will be soiled by being used as a door mat for Bobby's shoes. But does mother consider this? Not at all. Se calmly hoists Bobby up on the seat and lets him kneel so he can look out of the window, heedless of the damage that his dirty shoes do to the raiment about him. And by the time they reach their destination Bobby's shoes are quite clean, and four or five gowns and suits of clothes have to go to the cleaner.

OR perhaps Bobby takes the occasion of riding on the street cars to eat bananas or chocolate creams, which he generously smears all over the garments of everybody in arm's length of him. Bobby's mother cannot fail to perceive the havoc he is doing, but she never even dreams of such a thing as interfering with Bobby's appetite for the sake of protecting the innocent bystander. What are other people's rights compared to Bobby wanting to eat his banana right then and there? Nothing to her.

The selfishness of mothers makes a visit from a woman with children more devastating than a plague of the seven-year locust. You have antique mahogany that is the apple of your eye. Mother never lifts her hand to stay little Bobby when he takes a pin and scratches his name upon the polished top of your most cherished table. Instead, mother calls your attention to what a good hand he is going to write. And if you object to having your property destroyed by a lot of little vandals, mother thinks you are a selfish old crank not to be willing to sacrifice your possessions for the amusement of her darlings. She can't rise to the point of view of your having a right to your own things if her children want them.

And it is amusing, and also tragic, to note how this mother selfishness distorts a woman's sense of justice when she comes to deal with one of the most important problems in her life—that of her relationship with the men and women her daughters and sons marry.

She believes that it is the duty of her daughter's husband to toil day and night to supply her Mamie with all the extravagances she craves, and to generally make himself a door mat before her. She thinks that it is a terrible imposition for Mamie's husband to expect Mamie to do her own housework, or even keep house, unless she feels so inclined, or to practice any thrift or economy, or do anything that interferes with her pleasure. She thinks the city is too hot for Mamie in the summer and too cold in the winter, and that the Maine coast or Palm Beach is her befitting habitat in inclement weather.

But mother thinks the city pleasant at all seasons for John's wife. John's wife should economize by doing her own cooking and sewing and baby tending, and why on earth should she consider that she's got a right to spend his money by gadding around instead of staying at home and making her husband comfortable, is something John's mother will never, never be able to understand.

Not long ago a beautiful and noble young girl was invited to make a visit in the home of a woman who was a leader in the church and foremost in all good works and philanthropy in her town. The woman's son, an utterly worthless, drunken, immoral loafer, with a past as black as sin could make it, fell in love with this pure young girl. They married

The mother had urged on the suit.

"You knew your son was not fit to marry anybody," someone said to this woman "How could you sacrifice that innocent girl to him?"

"I thought perhaps that marriage might save him. It was a chance and I took it," replied the mother, with a cynical indifference to everything but her own child's good.

It is mother's inhumanity to other mothers' children that makes countless thousands morn.

Original Designs for The Home Dressmaker

By Mildred Lodewick.

A PRETTY SUMMER FROCK.

Description.

ONE of the most characteristic details of the summer modes is the higher neck line. All winter Dame Fashion strove to influence fashionable women against the low neck. While succeeding in making popular certain outlines for the neck, which tended steadily upward, the high collar was considered an impossible thing. And the reason may have been Dame Fashion's own, for did she not make last winter a winter of furs And what woman would choose as a background for them a high collar when next her bare throat a fur's becomingness and picturesqueness would lend her such bewitching charm!

Now that the season for furs is over—for a month or so at least—women are willing to let fashion have her way, and so we see the high wired collars with lace jabots accompanying smart street suits and dresses, and summer frocks of fabrics ranging all the way from linen and Georgette crepe, being made with Dutch necks or the medieval neck line which is straight across the front and back, from shoulder to shoulder.

The design for today shows a simple but effective treatment of lace. If an all-over pattern were used, the joining of the lace portions with the other parts of the frock could be done by hemstitching, or a very narrow insertion especially made for seams. However, the straight lines of the design make lace banding suitable. A 12-inch width would do well for the waist, and and voile to lace could be divided for the sleeves. The continuation of the front of the skirt up past the waistline to form a conspicuous part of the waist is a distinctive feature of the frock. Finishing in an inch-wide beading, the effect is somewhat suggestive of an apron.

At the left a striped fabric composes the entire frock with the exception of the lower sleeves and the double belt. The effect is particularly good. Green and white stripe voile with plain white batiste or organdy would be pretty for this design.

What Do You Know About SALT

SALT is such a common thing, such an ordinary, everyday household necessity, that one would hardly thing it ever had a story. Salt and its usefulness must have been discovered in very early times. It is frequently mentioned in the Bible. One of the earliest of such references is in the Book of Leviticus, in the directions for preparing burnt offerings of meat. Before that, the salt sea was mentioned frequently, and we have the story of Lot's wife having been turned into a pillar of salt.

Over in the New Testament we find the question asked: "But if the salt have lost his savor, wherewith shall it be salted?"

In ancient times the salt cellar marked the division of guests at the banquet table.

Instead of having separate tables for those representing different classes of society, all the members of the household, whether of high or low degree, sat about a common board at one long table in the halls of nobility, a large, beautifully ornamented salt cellar marking the division between those of greater importance and those of less.

Many of these salt cellars were shaped somewhat like hourglasses, others were rectangular or cylindrical, and all were ornamented variously with chasing, filigree work and embossed figures.

There were also used "trencher salts," smaller salt dishes placed near the plates or trenchers of the guests. There were of many shapes, triangular, circular, etc., some of them standing on legs. They were usually made of richly ornamented silver with glass dishes within to hold the salt.

To have eaten salt with anyone was equivalent to a declaration of loyalty among ancient peoples. Probably this was the "covenant of salt" referred to in the Bible.

The Orientals used to be quite superstitious about salt. They believed that salt had something sacred about it and that it created in some way a sort of bond between those who ate it together. In the Book of Ezra in the Bible, revised version, we read, "Now because we eat the salt of the palace and it is not meet for us to see the kings destroyed, therefore have we sent and certified the King" * * * The Persians spoke of any who showed themselves ungrateful or disloyal as "untrue to salt."

A salt stream in an inland country was looked upon by the ancients as an especial token of favor and approbation from the gods, and they believed that prayers offered up from such a region were particularly sure to receive a favorable hearing.

Even in very early days salt was an important article of commerce; the Phoenicians carried on a brisk trade in both salt and salt fish. Salt was also an important item in caravan trade across the Desert of Sahara.

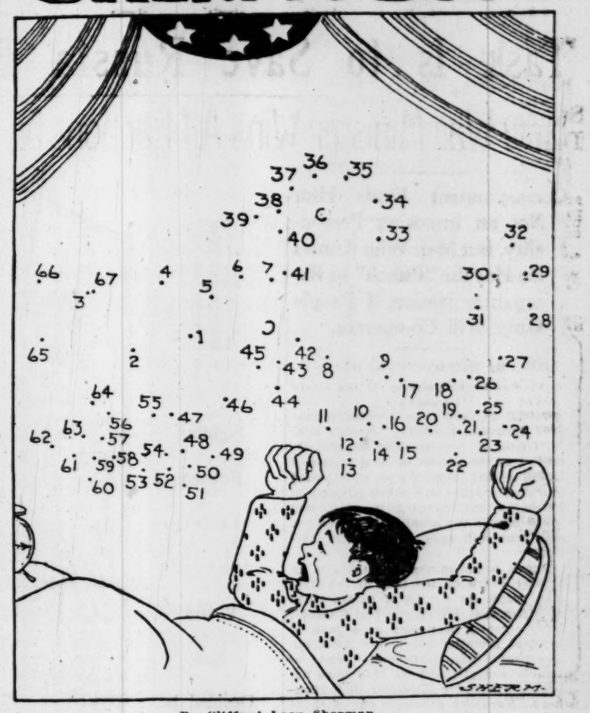
As for Italy, one of the oldest roads, that by which salt was carried up into Rome, was called the Via Salaria, and there is even today a gate in the walls of Rome known as the Porta Salaria.

Salt was so early felt to be so much of a necessary luxury, if such it might be called, that it became the custom in the Roman army to give the soldiers a regular allowance of the condiment. Our word "salary" is directly descended from this; it originally meant "salt money," and thus evolved into a regular payment, or wages. Later on salt became a Government monopoly, in order that the people might buy it at moderate prices, and once, later, salt taxes were imposed in various European countries. At one time salt cakes were even used as money in many parts of the world. Many nations, however, could get salt only by sending abroad for it, and even today there are, so it is said, certain parts of the interior of Africa where salt is a luxury to be indulged in by only a few, those possessing great wealth.

Salt is now produced in the United States, in Canada, in South America in India—there one may see "the great salt range of the Punjab—in Siberia, China, Persia, to some extent in England and in other countries. One of the oldest known salt mines is that of Marston Rock, England.

This, it is said, was worked for 1000 years without going below the upper bed. Rock salt is frequently blasted out and that it created in some way a sort with dynamite. Much is mined in various parts of England, Lancashire, Yorkshire, Durham, Isle of Man and other places. Rock salt is mined also in several states in America, among them New York, Kansas and Louisiana. At one time, however, salt was almost entirely produced by the evaporation of the water of the seas.

SHERM'S DOTS



By Clifford Leon Sherman.

THE next part of the entertainment showed one of the boys lying in bed at 9 o'clock, and he yawned and stretched just as boys do when they hate to get up in the morning. Then a voice, presumably his mother's, was heard, and she spoke of the difficulty of getting her son aroused in the morning. Then she went on to remind him that as he had said he wished to be of some assistance to Uncle Sam, the best thing he could do would be to immediately change his habits and get to bed early in the evening and get his sleep over at reasonable hours, so he could get up in the morning with the ———.

A Novel Way of Making Pillows

HERE is a new idea for making pillows for the summer cottage in the country or at the seashore, and for such a place, as most housekeepers agree, it is practically impossible to have too many of such convenient things for use both outdoors and in, on couches and hammocks and steamer chairs.

Did you ever hear of a "snip" pillow? That is the sort of thing one city woman, preparing to go off for a long summer of delight on the old farm she has bought up in the Berkshires, is busying herself with making these days. Good feather pillows are both heavy and expensive, as she says, and deserve more respectful treatment than one wants to accord them out of doors. And the small boys of her household like to have pillows that they may use as they may happen to choose.

These snip pillows, as perhaps you have already guessed, are stuffed with snips of old cloth. They afford an excellent way, according to this housekeeper, for using up old blouses and kitchen aprons and other articles of clothing that are too much worn for mending and good for nothing but rags. She has them all washed carefully—but they do not require any ironing, of course—then she takes her scissors and snips them into tiny pieces. These snips, put into a plain unbleached cotton case, make a pillow that is easily washable and may be shaken and beaten into shape. It is soft, too, which is a good point in a pillow. Outside cases may be fashioned of chintz or cretonne or figured calico—any material one may choose—but it should be washable and so made that it may be easily removed. These snip pillows are made to withstand hard usage.

Ellabelle Mae Doolittle

By Bide Dudley.

DELHI is rejoicing over the fact that it is soon to be able to boast of a $5000 automobile. There are 16 machines in the town now, but none cost more than $1500. Bailey's Hollow, Delhi's greatest rival, hasn't as many automobiles as Delhi, but it points with pride to Cooger Hoskin's machine, which cost $2000 new. Ever since Hoskins bought his car last May Delhi's pride has been injured. Therefore, it is with great rejoicing that Delhiantonians are awaiting the arrival of the expensive machine.

To Ellabelle Mae Doolittle the town owes much for removing the stigma placed on its reputation by Bailey's Hollow. She is to have the $5000 car. The particulars of the story are as follows:

Last week Miss Doolittle noticed in Fireside Fancies, a monthly story paper, the offer of a New York auto firm of $5000 car for the best rhyme describing the comfort one may enjoy in the Scooter Six. The great poetess had never ridden in a Scooter, but being possessed of an imagination of marvelous scope she decided to win that prize.

Speaking of her plan to no one, she hurried upstairs to her boudoir and penned her contribution to the contest. It was such a fine effort that she decided to reveal to Delhi its great stroke of luck. First she sent a copy of the poem to the New York firm and then she permitted the Hon. Alex Appleby to outline what she had done in the Delhi bazoo. The poem was printed, also, so it is without violating any confidences that it is reproduced here. Here it is:

Once again I'm up to my old trick,
Of calling on my muse.
I want to tell you about Scooter Six,
But not by any ruse.
The springs are very fine; the cushions, too,
The riding is very easy
"I likee de car," would say Yee Fun Loo.

Were he to enjoy the breezes.
My sister's child, Tesney Ricketts,
Called the preacher an idiot,
Father chastised her with a fence picket,
A whipping the little kid got.
But getting back to the Scooter Six,
Buy one if you have the money
At this car nobody can throw a brick,
And you will win your sweet honey.

In another column was an editorial by Editor Appleby, which pointed out the great honor Miss Doolittle had conferred on Delhi.

"With a $5000 Scooter Six on our streets," it concluded, "we will be very happy and the claim that Delhi is the most enterprising city in this neck o' the woods will be fully borne out. All hail, Ellabelle Mae Doolittle!"

When Mrs. Elisha Q. Pertle read of what the poetess had done she called a meeting of the Women's Betterment League, and a resolution was passed offering the city's thanks to the poetess. Miss Doolittle appeared before the women and said:

"I invite you all to take a ride with me when the big car comes."

"When is that contest to be decided?" asked Mrs. Cutey Boggs.

"In four weeks," replied Miss Doolittle. "But what matters that? Undoubtly 100,000 poets will submit rhymes, but"—here she blushed—"I feel that we need not worry about the outcome."

As the poetess shrank modestly back into the line of women on the rostrum the audience stood up and applauded with great gusto.

Old Game of Pall Mall

FIVE hundred years or more ago the young people of France had a game that they called "paille-maille." In the time of Charles I, or perhaps a little earlier, the young people of England took up the game and called it pall-mall—which they pronounced "pell-mell," says a writer in Youths Companion. It has not been played in recent years, but it was the beginning both of the game of croquet and of the game of billiards. The players used a large wooden ball, a wicket or iron arch and a mallet or heavy bat. The object of the game was to drive the ball through the wicket and hit a stake or other mark beyond it.

Sometimes, however, the ball was placed at a long distance from the wicket, even several hundred yards, and the contest took the form of seeing which player could drive the ball through the wicket with the fewest strokes, or whether any player could drive it through in a certain number of strokes agreed on in advance. In London, the game became very popular in the Seventeenth Century, and one of the best-known alleys, that of St. James, was 800 yards long, and made of hard sand "dressed with powdered cockleshells."

How I Helped My Husband

The Doctors' Wife Learned Tact.

A DOCTOR'S wife can help her husband more by the things she refrains from doing than by any active endeavor on her part. This may sound very easy, but I can assure you that such is not the case. Many a promising medical man has had his business ruined by the indiscretions of a well-meaning wife.

My husband had opened an office in a small but prosperous town three years before I married him. There were two other very popular doctors in the place, so his patients came but slowly. He had been called in for several emergency cases and had been so successful that a few people began to send for him on the recommendation of their friends. But in spite of all this his practice was small. Sometimes his office hours would pass without a single patient coming in, and there would be even days when he had no call to go out. I was as economical as I knew how to be when we were first married, the little cottage we lived in, though near the main street, being rented very cheaply, because it was rather old-fashioned, and we managed to get along.

The doctor came home one afternoon, and instead of greeting me with a kiss the young bride always expects, he said with a frown:

"Well, you have got me into a lot of trouble. I have just come from the Browns and found Mrs. B. on the verge of a nervous collapse, the worst thing that could happen to her in her high-strung condition. As you know, I have been attending her for the last month, and everything was going along nicely until this occurred. It seems old Miss Blake had just been there and had told the invalid that the doctor's wife had said that Mrs. Brown was very sick indeed, and so she had come to condole with the family and seemed surprised not to find the invalid in a dying condition. Of course Mrs. Brown, who is intensely nervous, immediately began to suspect that her condition was really critical, and as she was apt to be frightened about herself anyway, she grew so much worse that if I hadn't arrived promptly there would certainly have been more truth than fiction in the rumor."

Then I explained that Miss Blake had run in to see me that morning and asked if my husband was not attending Mrs. Brown. And all I said was that he seemed worried about her and went there almost every day. I did not think there was any harm in that.

"I blame myself," said my husband, "but I thought you had sense enough to know that a doctor's relations with his patients should be even more confidential than a lawyer's with his clients."

To say I was mortified about this would be putting it mildly, and I determined in future to think well before I told anybody anything again. And if I was asked prying questions I always replied, "The doctor didn't say."

Nothing to Put in Them.

"DON'T you think the war will affect our pockets?"

"Oh, yes; I guess we can do without them, too."

The Jerusalem Artichoke

THE Jerusalem artichoke, which was known in English gardens before the potato, was imported to Europe 300 years ago. It was also called the Canada potato—a misnomer indeed, but less of a misnomer than the name Jerusalem artichoke, which, according to the Manchester Guardian, has a curious history.

In the first place, the plant is not an artichoke at all; it was merely so dubbed because its flavor was thought to be like that of the globe artichoke (the thistle-like plant of which the fleshy part of the large flower buds is eaten).

Secondly, it is a native of tropical America, not of Palestine, although by a culinary joke "Palestine soup" is made from Jerusalem artichokes. "Jerusalem" is merely a corruption of the Italian "girasole," or sunflower.

The plant, said to have come from the Farnese Garden in Rome, is a tuberous-rooted sunflower (helianthus tuberosus), and does in warm situations produce small yellow "sunflowers."

Like the potato, it is propagated by its tubers, and, although less nourishing, has more varied uses. The leaves and tender stalks make fodder for cattle, potash can be extracted from the plant, and cordage and coarse cloth can be made from the fiber of the stems. Various fanciful explanations of the word "artichoke" have been recommended, but it has nothing to do with choking either people or their gardens. In old Italian it is "articiocco," which is traced back to the Arabic name of the plant.

Worse and Worse.

"DON'T you think the world is getting better?"

"No, I don't. Now I see mechanism whereby the music of a piano and phonograph can be combined has been patented by a New Jersey inventor."

The "Touchy" Person

By Sophie Irene Loeb.

A WOMAN writes to me as follows:

"About a year ago a friend of my husband paid us a visit with his wife and three children. I had extended the invitation, as I wanted to get acquainted with the wife of my husband's friend, being unacquainted in the city.

"I entertained them as best I could and upon their going home I bought each kiddie a pretty present. I also took some lovely pictures of them and sent them to the mother the following week, asking her to come again soon.

"I heard nothing from her for 11 months. A few days ago she called with her husband and children again and never said a word of my letter, nor why I hadn't heard from her. I felt awfully hurt over it. I feel as if she slighted me, although I didn't mention the fact.

"My husband sees hers every day, as they work in the same building and they are just as friendly as ever.

"It has made me feel very unhappy and I hardly care to see anyone any more. My greatest hobby is to prepare a dinner for my husband's friends, but since this affair I have no inclination for anything."

My dear woman, you are suffering from what somebody else failed to do. Stop and think how foolish that is.

You did your part nobly and well. All satisfaction should come to you; but you are "touchy." The fact that your kindly efforts were not appreciated by this woman should make you feel glad that you are not like her.

Your visitor was ungrateful, so why should you suffer for her shortcomings? To win such a woman over to you would be no credit, for she would only fail to be the friend in some other way.

I can assure you that if she has cultivated such an ungracious disposition everybody will find her out and she will lose in the end. In the meantime, there is no reason for you to punish yourself and lose interest in other people because of an incident like this.

Such a friend as this woman is not worth having. Your husband and hers may go on and enjoy each other's society for all time, but this does not always follow with the wives. These are the kind of women who are called "catty."

Doubtless the green-eyed monster was what came between you. You may have proved to be a better housekeeper; and her husband has teased her about it. Or you may have shown yourself a more delightful hostess than she and it rankled in her.

There is no need for you to close the door to other delightful would-be friends just because ONE has not measured up.

Remember, there are people who are grateful for kind acts. The thing to do is to ignore it and invite her no more.

Treat it all as you would any other unpleasant occurrence. There are good people in the world who would enjoy your hospitality and would be glad to know and love you. Besides, business associates do not always make social ones.

In like manner other people are prone to take to heart something that has hurt them and in which they have done their full part. This is all folly.

When you have the assurance that you have done the best you could and the other fellow has fallen short somewhere just "pat yourself on the back" and look forward to others who will appreciate.

The milk of human kindness occasionally sours and makes "pieces of cheese," but remember, there can always be a fresh supply.

KNIFE ON CORNS CAUSE OF LOCKJAW

Tells how to loosen a tender corn so it lifts out without pain.

You reckless men and women who are pestered with corns and who have at least once a week invited an awful death from lockjaw or blood poison are now told by a Cincinnati authorit; to use a drug called freezone, which the moment a few drops are applied to any corn, the soreness is relieved and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts out with the fingers.

It is a sticky substance which dries the moment it is applied and is said to simply shrivel the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin. It is claimed that a quarter of an ounce will cost very little at any of the drug stores, but is sufficient to rid one's feet of every hard or soft corn or callus.

You are further warned that cutting at a corn is a suicidal habit.—ADV.

WHY?

THE question is often raised, "Why is it that the restaurants nearly always mark prices up when foodstuffs advance, and seldom mark prices down when foodstuffs decline?" It is doubtful if this can be answered with satisfaction to the restaurant patron And there is another question somewhat akin to it, namely, "Why is it that, when the restaurant people mark up charges) they almost invariably cut down quantities?" And yet another, "Why should the restaurant people raise prices and cut down rations, in order to preserve the level of their profits, when they might reduce their expenses by removing the flowers and the orchestra which, in many instances, their patrons often would like to, but cannot eat?

Here's a chance, Miss Freckle-face, to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable dealer that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of othine—double strength—from any druggist and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength othine, as this is the prescription sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.—ADV.

Compromise Is Watchword of Kerensky

Task Is to Save Russia From Herself

New War Minister Wins Aff Factions by Antagonizing None

Correspondent Finds Him Not an Imposing Personality, but Man Who Knows He Has the "Punch" to Reorganize Nation if People Only Will Co-operate.

By HENRY SUYDAM
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

FACE to face with Alexander Feodorovitch Kerensky, Russian Minister of War, who led the first offensive of the armies of New Russia, I looked at this young lawyer of 36 seated in a shabby office in a public ministry in Petrograd one morning in May, and asked myself the question: "Is this the man who will save Russia from herself?"

Russia needs saving, and there is an intense desire on the part of the Russian people for a man of native blood to effect that salvation. The Russians have accepted Kerensky as a man of brilliant promise, but unlike American newspapers and magazines, fond of treacherous catch-words, they have not begun to compare Kerensky with Mirabeau. Kerensky possesses one of those quick personalities that wins all factions by antagonizing none, but Russians of the better sort are speculating, without disparagement, whether or not Kerensky will develop into the benevolent, pedagogic Napoleon that New Russia unconsciously demands.

Kerensky's task, in a word, is to provide a background for the Russian revolution. The background for the actual revolt had been prepared since Bloody Sunday, 1905, but it was a temporary background and the events of March, 1917, tore it to shreds, leaving nothing more substantial than an empty political horizon in its place. Kerensky must teach 170,000,000 people to distinguish between the use and the abuse of freedom.

Compare Him With Roosevelt.

Russian aristocrats with Tory connections in England tilt their noses and compare Kerensky with Mr. Lloyd George, and there are Americans in Petrograd who trace some subtle dynamic apposition between Kerensky and Theodore Roosevelt.

Kerensky is not an imposing personality. He is merely Kerensky. He is too fiercely sincere to make threatening noises in the Georgian manner, or to set the stage according to the Roosevelt tradition. In behavior speech, belief and action he epitomizes so many of the qualities of New Russia that one may learn as much by watching him work and hearing him talk as by reading accounts of his political philosophies, which have lately resolved themselves into the single, and rather British, philosophy of compromise.

I arrived at Kerensky's waiting room at 8:45 a. m. There were a dozen dingy civilians and two muddy soldiers sitting on rickety chairs around the wall. The room was quiet, and the visitors were the distant, meditative expression that seems to have settled like a common mask upon the people of Petrograd since they caught a glimpse of primitive Russia during the revolution.

At 9 o'clock the double doors that led into an inner office opened suddenly and a man of middle height, with close-cropped brown hair, flashing eyes and a sullen mouth, stuck his head out. He surveyed his callers, saw the two soldiers, and cried out abruptly in a rough voice: "Come on, comrades." They arose, shook hands, and went inside. That was Kerensky.

Fifteen minutes later the door opened again and the soldiers emerged, smiling. Kerensky wanted to know where the American newspaper man was. I entered his private office and asked him five or six exhaustive questions, and during the hour that he took to reply I had an opportunity of studying him with care.

Like a Keen Young Student.

My chief impression was that I was listening to a keen young Russian student of the type serving as Petrograd policemen since the ruffians of Protopopoff were killed or imprisoned. Kerensky seemed to be expounding a passionate theory of government with the self-confidence that blesses only the young.

"Kerensky respects the Russian army for our fighting," a Russian noncommissioned officer said to me. "We respect Kerensky for his well-directed intelligence. We are brave and he is honest. That is why we shall work together until either we become cowards or Kerensky becomes a faker."

There is no doubt in Kerensky's mind that he is an asset of New Russia. He is not conceited, but he possesses the calm assurance of one who recognizes the value of his own powers.

"The Russian democracy shall be landlords of the Russian land," said Kerensky, during the early weeks of the revolution. That is the sort of policy that Prof. Paul Miliukoff, ex-Minister of Foreign Affairs, would shrink from proclaiming, because he would doubt the feasibility of its achievement. Kerensky knows that he has the "punch" to reorganize Russia if the people have the common sense to submit to his dictatorship. He has not yet begun to exercise his prerogatives in any open, decisive manner because the extrem elements in the confused political lineup of Petrograd are not quite convinced that Kerensky is not a bit too conservative, while the conservative elements tend to regard manner because the extreme elements in future will show whether Kerensky has that workable proportion of both radicalism and conservatism that Russia needs so critically, as the time approaches for the constituent assembly that is to make the new constitution.

To the Russian army, Kerensky is a fighting leader. To the peasantry, Kerensky is the man who will get for them their share of Russian land. To the bourgeoisie, Kerensky is a level-headed radical who will protect them from the excessive republicanism of the workmen. To the workmen, Kerensky is a crusader who has intimated—even, perhaps, too delicately—to Russian financiers that there is a limit to the power of a Russian rouble. To the secret adherents of the old regime, Kerensky is an infernal anarchist. To the German Government, Kerensky is anathema. In his modest way, you will observe, Kerensky is something to all men, and even the Petrograd servant girls puff heavily when Kerensky's name is mentioned in connection with an eight-hour day.

Fighting Russian Leader Who the World Has Decided Is the Big Man of the Revolution So Far.

ALEXANDER FEODOROVICH KERENSKY.

The eyes of Kerensky have the strained, suspicious look of one who has been taught by bitter experience to search for hidden motives in his associates. His expression is sullen and dogged, except when he smiles, when he seems a charming young gentleman out of some university.

He seldom appears in anything more elaborate than a plain black serge coat, tailored high at the neck in peasant fashion. Among the doddering footmen of the old regime who page his corridors, Kerensky strides in and out of the ministry with the tolerant, good-natured humor of new Russia; the moldy purple uniforms of the old empire amuse him; it is the surging crowds of free citizens on the Nevski Prospekt that stimulate.

Facing a Nervous Collapse.

When I saw Kerensky during the time that he was planning the Russian offensive that he has just delivered in person, he seemed on the verge of a nervous collapse. He drew fantastic designs on his desk blotter as he talked, he tapped incessantly with his right foot, and whenever he paused for a word he seemed to groan deeply. His physical strength is impaired by an internal malady, said to be tuberculosis of the liver, and he has been forced, therefore, to derive his immense driving power from his reserve of nervous energy. Kerensky works frantically in Petrograd for a fortnight or three weeks, and then rushes off to a sanitarium in the Crimea for two or three days to recuperate. How long such a Minister of War, who delivers offensives in person, can stand the pace, is one of the grave problems that confronts the Russian democracy.

Photographs of Kerensky are scattered all over Russia, his name is in everyone's mouth, and yet Kerensky is seldom recognized when he ventures abroad. I was at the Duma one Sunday afternoon on the occasion of a demonstration of Esthonians. The streets were filled with soldiers from the Lettish provinces, waiting to approach the building to hear speeches. Kerensky's motor car drove past, and directly in front of the Duma was stopped by impassable crowds. A young officer who was riding beside the Minister of War alighted, and in the extremely polite fashion of New Russia asked the soldiers if they would mind standing aside to allow "a Minister" to drive through. The soldiers stood aside, and Kerensky was driven through hundreds of his own men, without one of them, apparently, recognizing him.

I smiled tolerantly, and it was a smile of great wisdom, as of a father gazing at a boisterous, uncouth son.

Such is Kerensky at close range. He has learned revolutionary enthusiasm from France and stability from Great Britain, but he is a Russian first and last, and he has left no doubt in the minds of the French and British Governments that Russia will henceforth endeavor to manage her own destiny. Kerensky is strong enough to swing the entire Russian nation in any given direction. He has swung the nation into an offensive, despite the most insuperable difficulties that ever faced a Minister of War. He is springing them gradually away from license toward restraint, from oratory toward action, from a temporary autocracy of workmen and soldiers toward general tolerance.

"An autocracy of workmen, or an autocracy of soldiers, is as bad as an autocracy of aristocrats," he said. "Russia must have no autocracies. Each man must be a free citizen of New Russia, with as much respect for his neighbor's rights and prerogatives as for his own."

Kerensky may be set down as one of the most loyal and discerning friends the United States possesses among European governments. He is pro-American to the backbone and whole-heartedly pro-American, not because he expects to derive any material benefit from "Yankee adherence," but because, as an expert democrat, he recognizes beneath provincial, contemptuous, omniscient and sometimes blatant Americanism a background of splendid essential freedom.

The world has already decided that Kerensky is the big man of the Russian revolution—so far. As compromise is the essence of the English system of government, so compromise is the essence of Kerensky's method of brisk checks and balances. It is possible that the history of Russia during the next ten years will be founded on moderation and compromise between extreme elements, between land owner and peasant, between workman and capitalist, between conservative bourgeoisie and anarchistic socialism. If compromise prevail, Kerensky will have his chance.

Revolution to Last 10 Years.

If compromise fails, and Russia and Siberia begin to degenerate into a series of semi-independent nations—each nation composed of quarreling factions—Kerensky may not be strong enough to command, and another leader may be tossed up on the shores of government. The Russian revolution will not be over for a decade or so, and no person with any sense of historical perspective will start thus early to distribute epithets. The surest way of hurting Kerensky is to sentimentalize about Danton today and to search Carlyle for less flattering comparisons tomorrow.

At two opposite extremes of new Russia stand Kerensky and Miliukoff. Each detests the other's attitude with deep aversion. Miliukoff was indiscreet in his utterances, too patently an imperialist, and unfortunately patronizing in his public poses at a time when patronage was first on a list of a thousand or more deadly aristocratic sins. But so long as Miliukoff sat in the silk-hung apartments of the Russian Foreign Office, the British and French Governments regarded the Russian revolution from a diplomatic standpoint as something not unmitigatedly awful.

Miliukoff has gone and Kerensky remains; this Kerensky from Tashkent, who sticks his cropped head out of the doors of his shabby office and cries in a harsh but friendly voice to the Russian soldiers, "Come on, comrades!"

I. W. W. AGITATORS DEPORTED

Armed Citizens Turn Back Car of Them From Needles, Ariz.

KINGMAN, Ariz., July 11.—Sixty-three men deported from Jerome yesterday as I. W. W. active in the strike there, arrived here today from Needles, where armed citizens had met the car in which they were held prisoners and caused its return to Arizona on the next eastbound train.

Some of the men said they had been victims of unfortunate circumstances in the clash between their organization and union miners and mine operators. Several declared they had been forced to leave claims they were working near Jerome and join picket lines in the strike called Friday.

FOUR AUTOMOBILES IN MIXUP

Accident in Which One Man Was Hurt Caused by a Fire.

A motor truck of the Salvage Corps skidded against the automobile of Assistant Fire Chief James Ozulin, while the machines were en route to a fire at Fourteenth street and Chouteau avenue last evening.

The truck was swinging into Chouteau from the Twelfth street viaduct and sideswiped the Chief's car, which was westward bound. The latter machine was knocked against a delivery truck driven by Elmer Oswald of 1408 St. Ange avenue and bumped that vehicle into the auto of William Heikert, 5305 Union boulevard. Heikert's left shoulder was dislocated and he was taken to the city hospital. All of the motor vehicles were damaged.

Advertising Essential for the Growth and Development of St. Louis Made Furniture.

The St. Louis Furniture Board of Trade at their meeting Monday night at Mission Inn went the war slogan of "business as usual," one better by deciding to make their business "better than usual."

The meeting was in the nature of a summer outing, but the members got down to business when the subject of advertising the St. Louis furniture production was brought up. It was pointed out that this city although fourth in the United States in population, ranks only fifth in the manufacture of furniture. The furniture business here should easily rank with the city's standing as to population, the members thought.

All kinds of furniture is made by our St. Louis manufacturers, and for a decade or more this city has been the main supply for such goods for the great Southwest.

The main need, it was decided, is that the people of the city and of the great Southwest territory be informed by advertising and publicity of the possibilities for the growth and development of the furniture business here.

TRADING STAMP CO. MANAGER WITNESS BEFORE GRAND JURY

Inquisitorial Body Also Summons Patrolmen to Testify as to Statements by Cummins.

S. W. Weisbart, manager of the Eagle Trading Stamp Co., in the Railway Exchange Building, was summoned today before the grand jury to testify in an investigation being made into the trading stamp bill which was before the Legislature at its last session.

Dan C. Nugent of the Nugent Dry Goods Co. and C. O. Haines, president of the Missouri Fair Dealers' Association, appeared as witnesses yesterday. They were in favor of the trading stamp bill, which provided for a heavy tax on stamps given away at retail stores. The measure failed of passage. Its opponents at the time declared the measure would result in driving trading stamp concerns out of business.

Patrolmen Charles M. Dumont, John S. McCaffrey and John T. Sanders, members of the Police Salary Committee of the Police Relief Association, were summoned as witnesses as a result of statements about the police salary increase bill, which Ray Cummins, secretary of the association, made last week to prosecuting authorities.

Last month the Post-Dispatch printed 334 Agents Wanted Ads—107 more than the FOUR other St. Louis newspapers combined.

The Post-Dispatch Daily Short Story.

The Ambush

By F. H. Sweet.

(Written Especially for the Post-Dispatch.)

HENRI GASPARD worked swiftly. The tiny flicker of light across the lake, flaring up and dying out quickly, could be nothing less than a man lighting his pipe. His wood knowledge told him that, as other knowledge warned him who they were. In half an hour they could circle the lake. And they were after him. He knew that, too. It was le bon Dieu that had turned his eyes that way just as the light flared. So he worked swiftly.

There was a dense mass of broad-leaved laurels at one side, which he had selected as a wind-break for the camp. In the flickering light of the fire they looked like a solid wall which wavered backward and forward.

Armful after armful of straight sticks, the size and length of a rifle barrel were gathered and carried to the thicket, and arranged. Then he threw more fuel upon the fire, so that when it flared up the light should fall clearly upon the laurels.

That done, he threw himself upon the ground with his feet to the fire, and waited.

It was not long, and he was conscious of the stealthy forms as they slipped from the darkness and surrounded him. But he made no effort to rise until the exultant voice of his enemy hissed in his ear:

"Caught at last, Henri Gaspard! Now git up!"

Henri did so, slowly.

"What do you want?" he demanded.

"Heap," was the answer. "Fust, we take your furs, then we carry you two t'ree day north an' take away all your weapons an' t'ings, an' let you go. Meb-be you git to coast an' be save, but most likely not. I been promis' kill you many time, but this be more fun."

"Too bad," commented Henri, "but you see, I happened to be expecting you. He stepped a little closer to the fire and gave it a vigorous kick, which sent the flames shooting upward. "See!"

He threw his arm toward the wall of laurel where, in the strong light, their blanching faces saw a long line of rifles covering them, a dozen, twenty, forty—they could not tell how many, for the motionless, impacable barrels extended entirely along the wall and back into the semi-obscurity.

"The—the trading post men," faltered the leader of the enemy. "How they come here? How could you get?"

"By knowing in time," easily.

"What you do with us?" sullenly.

"Why, just pull your teeth a little, I think," smilingly. "You know I want to marry your daughter, Aline, and for her sake I shall let you go, you and your half-breed Joe and all the men. But for precautionary reasons you must leave your weapons here, guns, knives, hatchets—everything. I shall not confiscate the firearms, but will leave them at the big rock two-thirds of the way from here to the trading post. You may send some of your men there one week from today. Now," his voice suddenly becoming stern and his hand rising significantly toward the thicket, "you may as well drop the weapons at once. Quick!"

They did so, scowling but hurriedly. With that line of rifles covering them they could do nothing less. But the leader's face had grown dark.

"So it my girl who warn you," he hissed. "I goin' make her suffer for it. I'"—

"You will do nothing of the kind," sternly. "If you punish Aline in any way I shall hear of it, and"—

"Huh! I no punish myself," vindictively. "Soon's we catch I give to Half-breed Joe. He her master then an' know how fix 'bout this all right."

Henri took a quick step nearer.

"Listen to me," he warned, his voice low, but cutting like a knife. "You see the number of men I have ambushed here, and you know I make no promises I do not fulfill. Now, if you or the halfbreed so much as lay a finger upon Aline, if you offer her to him, or even do not protect her in case he seeks her, I will hunt you both from the big river to the ocean, and the punishment will be something for the whole country to remember. Now go!"

They slunk away, with furtive, baleful glances, but cowed by the line of rifles. As the last one disappeared into the darkness, the confidence left his face. What would their temporary fear amount to when back in the fastnesses of the great forest? Once in their clutches, what would be Aline's fate? It was not conjecture but certainty, and he groaned.

He did not hear the approach of swift moccasined feet, and was only aroused by a soft touch on his arm. Aline was at his side, but not the Aline he had known. This one did not hold her head scornfully erect and regard him coldly, as she had all men. Instead, she was leaning forward a little, and in her eyes was a look of unfathomable gladness and trust and love.

"Henri," she whispered happily, "I have been watching and listening, only a few steps away in the forest. I saw and heard everything. I had come to warn you, but my father moved too swiftly. But it is all right now. And you are not a weak man, like they tell me. You are brave and tender and true—all that a woman could ask. Now I and ready to go with you to the priest at the trading post."

The Sandman Story for Tonight

By Mrs. F. A. Walker.

Telia and Her Stepsister.

TELIA lived with her stepmother and stepsister Betta, who did not treat her kindly, for Telia was very pretty, while her stepsister, Betta, was not.

They made poor little Telia do all the hard work and wait on them as if she were their servant, for Telia's father was dead and there was no one to take her part. One day there rode up to their cottage a Prince with his servants, who had been hunting in the woods, and asked for a drink of water.

Betta, who was sitting by the window and did not know a Prince was at her door, called for Telia to bring a cup of water.

When the Prnce saw how pretty Telia was he fell in love with her, and the next day he called again and asked for water.

This time when Telia gave him the cup the Prince thanked her and told one of the servants to give Telia the box he was carrying.

When the servant gave Telia the box, Betta, who was watching behind the curtain at the window, heard him say, "His majesty the Prince begs that you will accept this for your trouble."

Betta grew very angry when she heard this, for she knew she had missed meeting a Prince because she did not serve the water when he first called, but when Telia opened the box and she saw a beautiful dress embroidered in gold, Betta could bear no more.

She began to cry and make such a noise that her mother, who loved her better than all else, took the dress from poor little Telia and gave it to Betta.

The next day the Prince called again and this time Betta went to the door with the cup of water, dressed in the beautiful dress the Prince had given to Telia.

"My sister is not here," said the bad Betta. "She has gone to town with her sweetheart and she gave me this beautiful gown. She does not care for gold, but I think it is beautiful."

The Prince turned away without taking the water and poor little Telia, who was locked in a room upstairs, saw that he looked very sad, and she longed to cry out that Betta had not told the truth, but she was afraid she would not have any supper if she did, so she watched the Prince ride away, never expecting to see him again.

But the next day the Prince came again and his servant left a box for Telia, saying the Prince hoped that would please her better than the other dress.

Before Telia could reply Betta came out and sent her into the house, saying servants should not neglect their work and that she would give the Prince a cup of water if he wished it.

When Betta opened the box, for she would not let Telia open it, she found a beautiful dress embroidered in silver. Then she knew the Prince must be in love with Telia, and she began to cry in such a dreadful manner that her mother was quite at her wits' end to know what to do to comfort her.

At last she told Betta to dry her eyes, and that at midnight she would go to an old witch she knew that lived in the middle of the forest, and ask her for a love powder which she possessed.

So that night when the moon was big and bright and showed her the path through the forest, Betta's mother went to the old witch and told her what she wanted.

"I will give you the powder for the prince on one condition," said the old witch, "and that is that your daughter shall give me two beautiful dresses."

Betta's mother hurried home and took the beautiful dresses the Prince had given to Telia and took them to the witch, who gave her the powder.

"This powder must be baked in little round cakes to have the charm work," said the witch.

The next morning bright and early Betta and her mother baked the little cakes, and in one they put the powder and sat the cakes in the window to cool to wait for the prince.

Poor little Telia was again locked in the attic, for they did not intend to allow the Prince to see her this time when he came.

Now it happened that while the cakes were in the window cooling a poor peasant came along and, seeing the tempting-looking little cakes, he thought that one would not be missed, so he took one and ate it, the very one that contained the magic powder.

He then moved another cake in the place of the one he had taken and went around the house to the road.

Just then the Prince and his servants came along and Betta came to the door, and the minute the peasant beheld her he fell in love with her.

He was under the spell of the magic powder and, without noticing anyone, he ran to Betta and threw himself at her feet, calling her by all the terms of endearment that a lover can master.

Betta was very angry and tried to drive him away, but the powder was doing its work, and when the servants of the Prince began to laugh, the Prince told them to be silent, that true love was not to be despised.

Telia forgot that she might be punished when she heard all the noise below her window and looked out, and at that minute the Prince looked up and their eyes met.

Betta forgot all about the cakes in her eagerness to be rid of the peasant, nor did she notice that the Prince got off his horse and entered the house.

He went to the attic where Telia was hidden, and when he found the door was locked he called one of his servants and broke the door open.

Betta and her mother were so busy trying to drive away the peasant who was telling his love to Betta that they did not see Telia as she went out with the Prince, and they know what had happened. That night Telia was married to the Prince and lived with him in the palace, where she was happy the rest of her life.

Betta drove away her lover after the charm of the powder was gone, and as he was the only lover she ever had she wished many times after that she had married him. As it was she lost a lover and the beautiful dresses which she took from Telia and grew to be a sour old woman, thinking the world was a very bad place.

Of course, the trouble was all with Betta, as she could have made her life very different if she had had good thoughts instead of unkind thoughts about Telia.

Lucile the Waitress

By Bide Dudley

"SAY," said Lucile, the waitress, to the friendly patron, "what's a humortist?"

"You mean a humorist," he replied. 'He's a funny man, usually a writer."

"Oh, I get you!" said Lucile. "And, trust in me, friend, it explains much to me. Just this morning two of them come in here and it falls to my lot to do the honors. When I greet them one says: "Has many of the American Fresh Humorists been eating in here?"

"I guess he said 'Press Humorists,' didn't he?" asked the friendly patron.

"Well, maybe he did," she went on, "but I thought he said 'Fresh.' I told him I never took any inventations of the victims and therefore wasn't cognificant to their business. Then the other one speaks up.

"'Did you notice any men in here springing jokes?' he asks.

"'A lot of 'em does until they begin to eat,' I says. 'Then they get solemn. The food sort o' puts all their humor in the humidor.'

"'Pretty good!' said one. 'You're a great audience. Guess I'll try my latest joke on you. Do you mind?'

"'Say,' I says, 'I'm so battered up with jokes around here that one more couldn't make a dent in my physiology. Rip it off, if thou desirest.'

"So this guy grins more and says: 'I told a man it was time for use to show our teeth to Germany, and he says, he, too, thought it was a great mistake not to send Teddy Roosenfelt over to France.'

"He quits talking and I wait. Then I ask: 'When are you going to spring the joke?' He says he just sprang it and ain't I got the point. I make him tell it over again and I'm hep right away.

"'I presume,' I says, 'that you mean Roosenfelt should take his cavalry over so that each horse can do his bit.' It was just a return joke, you see. As I understand it, every horse has got a bit in his mouth, so you get my point. Well, sir, he looks at me in a blandsome way and wants to know what horses have got to do with our showing our teeth to the Germans. It rather provokes my goat.

"'I don't know,' I says. 'You introduced the subject of teeth, not me. To expedite the joke, I might say you bit off more than you could chew.'

"You see, we were getting all tangled up in our jokes. So I says for them to order please.

"They both took some of the so-called roast beef and, oh boy, how they did eat! It was a case of too much in the mouth for dialogue for a while. But when the meat was gone, one of them says to me; "You ain't mad are you?"

"'No,' I says, 'but you're kind of an irritant to me.'

"'Well, you're a counter irritant,' he tells me.

"'Yes,' chirps the other. 'A sort of lunch counter irritant.'

"With that they beat it, after me hinting to them just where they got off."

Lucile went to the kitchen. Upon her return she asked: "Say, what is a counter irritant?"

"Ahem!" came from the friendly patron, looking perplexed. "A counter irritant usually means a—a—well, a pretty waitress."

"Gwan, you!" said Lucile, visibly pleased. "Don't move now, and I'll slip you a couple of more hunks of bread and you can plug yourself up good today."
